UP-STATE CROWDS CHEER WILSON ON HIS JOURNEY WEST

People Shouting for the President Throng About His Car at Every Stop.

10,000 OUT AT SYRACUSE

Poughkeepsie, Albany, Schenectady, and Other Towns Also Give Enthusiastic Welcome.

OVATION BY RAILROAD MEN

One Eager Handshaker Cuts President's Finger—Three Speeches in Chicago Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ON BOARD THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN, SYRACUSE, Oct. 18.—President Wilson, on his way through New York State to Chicago, where he speaks tomorrow, was greeted this afternoon by large crowds at the railway stations. Up to 8 o'clock the train had made nine stops since leaving New York City, exclusive of Harmon, where the engines were changed, and it was estimated conservatively that the President had been cheered by 50,000 persons. The President's advisers were especially pleased with the reception because his route lay through normally strong Republican territory.

Two of the largest crowds were at Albany and Schenectady. At both places the narrow station platforms were packed with people who tried to force their way back to the observation platform of the President's car to see him and, if possible, shake hands with him. The local Democratic leaders had brought bands with them, and the trip began to assume the appearance of a triumphal tour. This appearance was heightened as the train passed through the New York Central yards in North Albany. The air was filled with the noise of locomotive whistles, and every railroad employe in the yards seemed to be lined up beside the track over which the President's train was to pass. The windows of freight houses and office buildings were filled with men and women who waved handkerchiefs and flags and added their voices to the general din.

Shouts for "Eight-Hour Wilson."

Everywhere the crowds were enthusiastic, and Mr. Wilson was constantly greeted by shouts of "Four years more for Wilson" and "Hurrah for eight-hour Wilson." At several places along the line local politicians boarded the train to assure the President that he could depend on up-State New York to do its share toward delivering the State's electoral vote to him.

"Packey" McCabe, Democratic leader of Albany, climbed on the train to predict that the President would carry the State if New York City would give him a majority of 75,000. He declared that Mr. Wilson was far stronger than his party up-State and that the Democratic national ticket would cut into Mr. Hughes's up-State plurality far more than the Republican managers realized.

The President nowhere consented to make a speech, but at Albany, where fully 5,000 people had gathered, the cries for a speech became so strong that he said:

"I am a very poor hand, my friends, at commending myself. You all know just exactly what has been done by the present Administration, and you know just as well as I do how to judge it; so that I am perfectly content to leave myself in the hands of the jury."

At Albany, as the crowd swarmed around the President to shake hands, some eager enthusiast reached forward too hastily—the President drew his hand back with a bad cut on the forefinger, presumably from the man's fingernail. It bled freely. The President laughed as he wrapped his handkerchief hastily around it.

"It's good, red blood, anyway, Mr. President," some on shouted. Mr. Wilson went on shaking hands as if nothing had happened. He admitted when the train was in motion again that the cut was rather painful. Dr. Grayson bound it up. The President stopped using his right hand at the later stations, offering his left hand instead.

A still larger crowd was waiting for the President at Schenectady, a crowd estimated conservatively at 8,000. Poughkeepsie, the first stop, greeted him with 3,000. At Oneida, where a crowd of 5,000 was waiting, some one shouted, "Hurrah for the second Abraham Lincoln." The President laughed and shook his head.

"I can't play that," he said. Other towns which turned out large crowds to greet the President were Amsterdam, Fonda, Utica, and Rome.

Crowd of 10,000 at Syracuse.

At Syracuse his reception was particularly impressive. For blocks the railroad tracks run through the main part of the city, and the streets on both sides were filled with masses of cheering people. The crowd probably numbered 10,000. Bands and red fire added to the display, and the occasion took on all the features of an old-time political rally. The President seemed greatly pleased, and it was plain that he had difficulty in holding himself to his determination to make no speeches. As in all the President's recent trips, the railroad men along the route were among the most prominent of the enthusiasts.

The President and those with him are looking forward with great anticipation to the trip through Indiana tomorrow morning. The whole territory through which the President's train will pass has been regarded as more or less doubtful, and party managers are determined to make the most of the journey. Local leaders all along the line have been advised of the hour of Mr. Wilson's coming, and plans have been made to give him a rousing welcome.

KILL ONE IN HOLDUP OF SANTA FE TRAIN

Bandits Shoot Express Clerk and Rob Car Near Bliss, Okla.—Posse on Trail.

BLISS, Okla., Oct. 18.—A southbound Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe passenger train was held up two and one-half miles north of here tonight and an express clerk of the name of Norman was shot to death. The safe in the express car was blown open and rifled of its contents. It was impossible to learn here how much money, if any, the robber obtained.

Posses from Bliss, Perry, and other nearby towns were carried to the scene of the robbery in a special car. Picking up the trail almost immediately, they followed the robbers toward the hills, and late tonight reported they believed the outlaws were surrounded in a ravine.

It is believed that at least two of the bandits boarded the train at Ponca City. As the train neared Bliss two men climbed to the top of the tender and commanded the engineer to stop the train. When the enginer obeyed four other men appeared and the engine crew was ordered to detach the engine, tender, and baggage car from the passenger coaches. When the door to the express car was opened Norman was shot to death by a bandit, who fired a load of buckshot into his face and breast.

SOUTHERN STORM DOES GREAT DAMAGE

Several Ships Are Sunk and Many Houses Unroofed—Two Deaths Are Reported.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 18.—The South was swept by a severe storm to-day during which the wind at one time reached a velocity of 114 miles an hour, and lifted roofs from houses at Pensacola, Fla., and sunk a number of vessels in the harbor. One life was lost.

At Mobile, where the wind blew 110 mile an hour, two small buildings were destroyed, and a negro woman was killed by a live wire. Although shipping at Mobile had been warned of the approaching hurricane two river steamers were sunk, a schooner and a steamer were driven ashore, and small boats were lost.

The hurricane had been sweeping northward from Yucatan and hit the coast early today. It had moved well into the interior tonight, with decreased intensity, and shipping was notified by weather offices that all danger was past on the sea.

Mobile was struck early in the day and wire communication went down in a short time. Soon Pensacola, too, was cut off, and not until tonight was it possible to reach that city. Estimates tonight put the damage in Mobile at $15,000. New Orleans escaped the storm.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 18.—The Navy Aeronautic Station, near here, escaped with comparatively little damage as the result of today's storm. The newly completed permanent hangars withstood the gale, but several aeroplanes were reported damaged.

The gale came in such terrific and sudden gusts that it blew several persons through plate glass windows in the downtown district and carried away the weather observation tower on top of a high building. The barometer registered 29.05 just before all instruments were put out of commission this morning.

The one life reported lost was that of Daniel Cobb, cook on the small steamer Flanders, which was reported sunk two miles from here. Its crew was brought here tonight. Several persons were slightly injured.

Shipping damage besides that to numerous small boats and fishing craft and the Flanders included the driving together of the Norwegian bark Oaklands, 898 tons, and the 468-ton steamer J. E. Dubignon. Both vessels were slightly damaged. Three fishing schooners were driven ashore, and the Russian bark Albyn went adrift in the bay, but was recovered.

LUSITANIA CASE STILL UNSETTLED

State Department Denies Published Reports That Agreement Has Been Reached.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—No settlement of the Lusitania case has been reached between Germany and the United States. Published statements that an agreement had been effected on this issue, which nearly caused a severance of relations between the two Governments, were denied today at the State Department in a way to make it clear that the United States Government had no intention of making terms with Germany.

It was declared in the published statements that this Government had accepted Berlin's proffer and that a note, containing the terms, sent by Count von Bernstorff to Secretary Lansing would be made public soon. Concerning this Acting Secretary Polk authorized the following statement today:

"The note has not been accepted and is not to be given out. The State Department is not to be drawn into a discussion of this case at this time."

Mr. Polk remarked in answer to a question, however, that the political situation had not been taken into consideration in connection with the Lusitania case, and that Secretary Lansing would not permit foreign affairs to be brought into domestic politics.

The disposition in Government circles is to believe that the statements that this Government had agreed to Germany's terms were put out for partisan purposes. Officials made it plain that as no decision had been reached in the Lusitania case, it went without saying that no time could be set for the publication of any statement on the subject. There is no prospect of negotiations, looking to an adjustment, being resumed for several weeks, which means that the prediction of an announcement before election will not be realized.

DESTROYERS AT JUTLAND.

"Have you news of my boy Jack?"
Not this tide!
"When d'ye think that he'll come back?"
Not with this wind blowing,
And this tide!

"Has any one else had word of him?"
Not this tide.
For what is sunk will hardly swim—
Not with this wind blowing,
And this tide!

"Oh, dear! What comfort can I find?"
None this tide,
Nor any tide,
Except he didn't shame his kind,
Not even with that wind blowing
And that tide!
Then hold your head up all the more
This tide,
And ev'ry tide!
Because he was the son you bore
And gave to that wind blowing,
And that tide!

There was much destroyer work in the battle of Jutland. The actual battle area may not be more than 20,000 square miles, but incidental patrols from first to last must have covered many times that area. Doubtless the next generation will comb out every detail of it. All we need to remember is that there were many squadrons of battleships and cruisers engaged over the face of the North Sea, and that they were accompanied in their dread comings and goings by multitudes of destroyers which attacked the enemy both by day and by night from the afternoon of May 31 to the morning of June 1, 1916.

We are too close to the gigantic canvas to take in the meaning of the picture. Our children stepping backward through the years may get the true perspective and proportions.

The Battle Described.

To recapitulate what every one knows: The German fleet came out of its North Sea ports, scouting ships ahead, then destroyers, cruisers, battle cruisers, and last the main battle fleet in the rear. It moved north parallel with the coast of stolen Schleswig Holstein and Jutland. Our fleet was already out—the main battle fleet—Admiral Jellicoe, sweeping down from the north, and our battle cruiser fleet, Admiral Beatty, feeling for the enemy.

Our scouts came in contact with the enemy on the afternoon of May 31, about 100 miles off the Jutland coast, steering northwest. They satisfied themselves he was in strength and reported accordingly to our battle cruiser fleet, which engaged the enemy's battle cruisers at about 3:30 o'clock. The enemy steered southeast to rejoin his own fleet, which was coming up from that quarter. We fought him on a parallel course as he ran for more than an hour. Then his battle fleet came in sight, and Beatty's fleet went about and steered northwest in order to retire on our battle fleet, which was hurrying down from the north.

We returned, fighting very much over the same waters as we had used in our slant south. The enemy up till now had lain to the eastward of us whereby he had the advantage in that thick weather of seeing our hulls clear against the afternoon light, while he himself worked in the mists. We then steered a little to the northwest, bearing him off toward the east till at 6 o'clock Beatty had headed the enemy's leading ships and our main battle fleet came in sight from the north. The enemy broke back in a loop first eastward, then south, then southwest.

Our fleet edged him off from the land, and our main battle fleet coming up behind them was following in their wake. Thus for awhile we had the enemy to the westward of us where he made a better mark, but the day was closing and the weather thickened and the enemy wanted to get away. At 8:15 the enemy was still heading southwest. He was covered by his destroyers in a great screen of gray smoke and he got away.

As the darkness fell, our fleets lay between the enemy and his home ports. During the night our heavy ships, keeping well clear of possible minefields, swept down south to south and west of Horn's Reef, so that they might pick him up in the morning.

When morning came our main fleet could find no trace of the enemy to the southward, but our destroyer flotillas further north had been very busy with ships apparently running for Horn's

Earthquake Is Felt in Three Southern States; Tall Buildings Rocked, Causing Some Alarm

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 18.—A distinct earthquake shock, that in some instances knocked small articles off shelves, was felt in and around Atlanta a few minutes after 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Reports reaching here early tonight show that the earthquake was felt generally throughout the Southeast. Overturned chimneys were reported from some districts, but there was no news of serious damage anywhere.

ANNISTON, Ala., Oct. 18.—A murder trial in session in the County Court House here was halted this afternoon for a few minutes as the result of two distinct earthquake shocks. Judge, jurymen, and spectators rushed from the building. No damage was reported. The shock was felt in all towns in this vicinity.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 18.—Birmingham felt three sharp earth shocks separated by brief intervals today. Little damage was done other than to windows and chimneys, but great excitement was caused.

Thousands poured from office buildings and downtown structures. A matinée audience at a theatre rushed for the exits. All the country courts adjourned in alarm.

The main central telephone exchange set a new record by handling 25,000 calls within an hour.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 18.—A slight earthquake shock was felt over a wide area in Louisville at 4:05 o'clock today. The police reported that tall buildings noticeably were rocked downtown, while in the outlying districts pictures swayed and chinaware rattled.

OSBORNE FINDS PLOT IN SING SING ESCAPES

Hears Runaways Were Planned in Albany in an Effort to Discredit His Reforms.

OPENS FIGHT ON WHITMAN

Tells Thousands, Ranging from Capitalists to ex-Convicts, Governor Put Politics Into the Prisons.

Thomas Mott Osborne, former Warden of Sing Sing, last night opened his fight for his methods of prison reform and against the re-election of Governor Whitman by charging before a crowd that packed Cooper Union to the doors that escapes from Sing Sing had been engineered from Albany in order to discredit him and the Mutual Welfare League, which he organized. He charged, further, that the Governor had for political reasons caused his indictment and trial, and that Mr. Whitman had made a political plum tree out of the prison system of the State.

Mr. Osborne saw in the continuance of the present administrative methods a death blow to all he had fought for at Sing Sing, and at the end of his bitter arraignment of Governor Whitman he said:

"I leave it to your discretion as to whom you elect the next Governor of New York.

"There is one peculiar fact about the last two runaways," he said with reference to the Sing Sing escapes. "They occurred very shortly after the Superintendent's order about the escapes was issued. I cannot prove it, but I have word from Albany, from some who are in touch with the underworld, that the escapes were deliberately planned to produce the very conditions which brought about Mr. Carter's third order, which made me see that there was nothing left for me to do but resign so that I could tell the people of New York the truth about what was going on in the prisons."

Reiterating that Governor Whitman had broken repeated pledges to him, he said the "prison system was so rotten" that convicts who had testified before the Prison Commission in an investigation which led in June, 1915, to a report criticising Clinton Prison had been punished by the keepers against whom they had testified, and that Governor Whitman and Superintendent of Prisons James M. Carter had failed to take any action, although the full facts had been placed before them.

Overflow of 2,000.

It was a mixed crowd that the prison reformer faced. Wealthy social reformers sat side by side with men whom Mr. Osborne recognized as "graduates" of Sing Sing. Two thousand persons could not get into the auditorium and were addressed by speakers at overflow meetings. The feeling ran high, and at every mention of the Governor's name there was some such cry as "Get him, Tom Brown," or "We'll put him where he belongs."

Mr. Osborne earned the name "Tom Brown" when he voluntarily "did time" in Sing Sing some years ago in order to acquaint himself with conditions. That was before he became Warden.

The former Warden began his speech by saying that he had been criticized for "putting prisons into politics."

"But," he shouted, "the prisons have been in politics all the time. I am fighting to take them out of politics, so that the Governor of this State will never again dare to dangle before any man's eyes the political prize of a Wardenship or of a Superintendency. Slavery could never be exterminated until it was made a matter of politics, and so the present condition in New York prison administration must be exterminated through politics, because that is the way the American people have of doing things.

"Governor Whitman has asked for your votes on the record of the prison administration. That put it into politics before I did. His three supporters, Mr. Wickersham, Mr. Hurd, and Dr. James, have put it into politics by writing the Governor that he always treated me fairly. They insist on putting prisons into politics, and we will meet them half way. Both candidates for Governor are making the prisons a political issue.

"In their letter the three men said that Governor Whitman removed Superintendent Riley for my sake. That is false, and the men who wrote it knew it was false. I suggested to Governor Whitman often that he remove Superintendent Riley, but I wasn't even Warden when Mr. Riley was removed. He was removed because he made it impossible for Warden Kirchwey to run the prison, and I had nothing to do with it.

"The matter will remain in politics until the people have spoken."

Calls Clinton a "Hell Hole."

Mr. Osborne said there were three prison systems in the State—the old-fashioned harsh regime at Clinton; "the sentimental" at Great Meadow, and the Mutual Welfare League system at Auburn and Sing Sing. He told of alleged tortures inflicted on the men at Clinton and then said that the honor system at Great Meadow was "a farce because it was no honor system at all."

"It's time that Clinton Prison was known for the hell hole it is," he said. "They say that down at Great Meadow there is no punishment and that all the convicts smile. Sure there is no punishment there, but when they want to punish a convict they send him up to Clinton, and there he gets it. And the Governor calls Clinton the best-regulated prison in the State.

"The Governor points to Great Meadow as the model prison. They play ball in an open field! But there's a fence around the field, and there are armed guards outside, and outside of them there are armed patrolmen, and outside of them there are the bloodhounds. Privileges without responsibility do no good, as is shown by the fact that the graduates of Great Meadow are no improvement over the graduates of the old system.

"How about Sing Sing? Sing Sing is in the best condition it ever was. The drug and liquor traffic I found there

LLOYD GEORGE ASKS JUSTICE FOR IRISH

Makes Conciliatory Answer to Nationalist Complaints, and Admits Stupidities.

REDMOND'S ATTACK FAILS

Motion of Censure Beaten, 303 to 106—Immediate Home Rule and Release of Prisoners Urged.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, today formally accused the Government of having turned the patriotic enthusiasm of Ireland into indifference and finally into rebellion. In a speech supporting his motion of censure, which was defeated by a vote of 303 to 106, he demanded the immediate granting of Home Rule, the release of the prisoners still untried for their part in the late rising and the abolition of martial law.

While the answers of the Prime Minister and the Secretary for Ireland offered small comfort to the complaining Nationalists, the speech of David Lloyd George, Secretary of War, was distinctly conciliatory. He admitted that "stupidities beyond belief" had been perpetrated in Ireland and had killed the original enthusiasm for recruiting, and he urged all parties to co-operate in removing causes of injustice, distrust and suspicion "before beginning any controversy about recruiting."

This appeal made it evident that the Government had no intention of applying conscription to Ireland.

Replying to a challenge by Timothy Healy, Nationalist, Mr. Asquith said he would willingly invite Ambassador Page to visit the Irish prisoners and report on their treatment.

Text of Redmond's Resolution.

Mr. Redmond's resolution read:

"That the system of government at present maintained in Ireland is inconsistent with the principles wherefor the Allies are fighting in Europe, and is, or has been, mainly responsible for the recent unhappy events and for the present state of feeling in that country."

John Rawlinson, Unionist member for Cambridge University, moved as an amendment to the Redmond motion the following:

"Having regard for the importance of the United Kingdom and Ireland combining with the rest of the empire in presenting a united front to the enemy, it is not desirable at the present time to discuss controversial matters of domestic politics."

Mr. Redmond moved his resolution in the presence of a crowded House. Among those in the gallery were Lord Wimborne, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; Lord Charles Beresford, Lord Pirie, and Lord Stanfordham, King George's private secretary.

The Irish leader said it was undeniable that the situation in Ireland was full of menace and danger, and he contrasted this state of affairs with the genuine enthusiasm for the Allies in Ireland at the beginning of the war.

He said the situation was full of menace and danger—of menace to the hopes and aspirations of Ireland and to a good understanding between Great Britain and Ireland, and of danger to the highest interests of the empire at the present moment.

"My object is to ally, not to inflame, feeling, and to show how it is possible to save the situation," he continued. "I do not want to make a party speech and accordingly start my survey with the outbreak of the war.

"From the very first the efforts of the Nationalist leaders were thwarted and snubbed, and, looking back, I am amazed at the success which under the circumstances attended their efforts. Ireland had 157,000 men in the army, of whom 92,000 were Catholics, and 10,900 in the navy. Thirty thousand Nationalist volunteers had enlisted, and if it had not been for distrust of Ireland in the early phases of the war the number of volunteers would have been trebled."

The Nationalist leader complained that the delay in putting the Home Rule bill on the statute book gave the Government's opponents in Ireland an opportunity of saying that they were about to be cheated in their trade. The promise made by Premier Asquith as to the creation of an Irish army corps also had never been fulfilled, he said.

The difficult task of the Nationalists to popularize military service had been systematically thwarted, Mr. Redmond coninued. The new National University was not allowed to organize an officers' training corps, while a number of privileges had been granted to Trinity University. He complained generally of the unsympathetic attitude of the War Office in regard to measures suggested to popularize recruiting in Ireland. Changes were made, but too late, he said.

The final blow came in the formation of the coalition Government, the speaker said. The inclusion of Sir Edward Carson in the Cabinet convinced thousands of Irishmen that they had been betrayed. From that day recruiting for the army had diminished and recruiting of the Sinn Feiners had increased. From that day things went from bad to worse, and finally came the rebellion.

Cites South African Precedent.

"I am profoundly convinced that if the rising had been dealt with in the spirit with which Premier Botha dealt with the rising in South Africa it would have meant the saving of the situation," Mr. Redmont went on. "Ireland was denounced because a couple of thousand men had attempted this mad rebellion—Ireland, who had not been trusted like South Africa; Ireland, who hadn't had

TIMES MAN FLIES IN GERMAN BIPLANE OVER FRENCH LINES

While Thousands of Massed Guns in Full Operation Are Seen, but Not Heard.

TRENCHES LIKE COBWEBS

Lowering Sky Keeps Other Airmen Below, and He Returns Safely to the German Air Base.

By CYRIL BROWN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD A GERMAN AEROPLANE OVER THE SOMME FRONT, Oct. 13, (by Military Telegraph via Berlin, Oct. 17.)—Flirting with death 5,000 feet above the battle of the Somme is the unique experience I am enjoying, thanks to the courtesy of the Kaiser's air champions here. They thought at first that I was joking when I pleaded to soar over the French lines and date my dispatch from the air, as no neutral correspondent was ever before permitted to fly in the West, and it required the persuasive rhetoric of a professional life insurance agent before I was draped with flying helmet, goggles and leather coat and lifted into the machine-gun turret of a newest model fighting biplane.

My pilot, Sergeant H., asks if I am ready. There is a solemn ceremonial leave-taking from the German staff officers, who cannot understand why an American correspondent should want to expose his neutrality to French aeroplanes, or battleplanes, and who look worried; whereas the group of fighting fliers seeing me off, including the decorated Fokker champion, Baron von Athaus, and the trick flier, Lieutenant Bernert, smile at the correspondent's first agitation.

I give the high sign, the field-gray mechanics, wearing French fishermen's tasseled caps, release the biplane, and we are off, riding so smoothly that one has no more difficulty in scribbling notes than in a railway train. We spiral up to 3,000 feet, and for the first time the battle of the Somme is revealed to me in full.

At first we follow the railroad to Amiens, then branch off and fly for miles above the arrow-straight Somme Canal and later follow the silvery, tortuous band of the Somme, which enables me to orientate myself. We rise to 4,000 feet. My pilot slows down his 200-horsepower motor and volplanes, turns and shouts to me: "Péronne!" then starts his motor going again and climbs to 4,500 feet. Standing up in the tonneau of the biplane and leaning over the machine-gun, I see stricken Péronne below me to the right and the silent shell dropping into it. For my birdseye view of the titanic battle is the quintessence of perfect peace.

The incessant booming of the nearby French and German batteries, the wail of big shells winging their way below me, the ominous drum-fire of the heavy artillery just north of the Somme, where fierce fighting is in progress around Hem and Monacu Farm, and the sullen, muffled roar from the English front further north, which I had heard on the ground, are all drowned by the giant motor and the small hurricane of the propeller. I sit down in a hurry as the biplane lurches. My pilot cuts a sharp curve over the French lines, as I note by network of trenches below us, and we quickly and wisely climb to 5,000 feet.

Shrapnel Bursts Beneath Them.

The pilot again shuts off the gas, slows his motor down to a gentle cough and coasts. "Shrapnel and shells!" he shouts to me. I stand up again for a good look overboard at the little white and brownish-gray smoke blossoms below me that seem to sprout and spring from an empty battlefield. "Mündungsfeuer!" he shouts again, calling my attention to the instantaneous flash of flame at the mouths of the French cannon. The frequency of these little red tongues in battle landscapes is fascinating.

You would like to watch their play all day if the smoke clouds below you were not uncomfortable reminders that it is a dangerous pastime. A professional observer, however, gets a valuable, vivid, first-hand impression of the massed thousands of French cannon, as it seems, by watching the heavy Somme artillery duel from the air. But you also realize more keenly than from the most detailed staff map the import of that fire-flashing horseshoe, the nemesis of German concentric fire that seems to pursue the French, first at Verdun and now on the Somme. But there are still more interesting sights to see from the air. We circle above and behind the first French line at La Maisonette, the tip of the French wedge driven toward Péronne and one of the critical points of the Somme battle. This 300-foot rise shows like a small greenish-brown wart on the checkerboard-patterned battlefield, as seen from the aeroplane. You realize why the French strained and made heavy sacrifices to get it firmly in their hands. It enabled them to dominate Péronne and the German positions on both sides of it.

La Maisonette, this highly desirable and for artillery observation purposes ideal blot on the battle real estate, looks from 5,000 feet above like one giant spider web of trenches, which show with incredible sharpness brown ribbons with darker strands running through the cen-

HEARS WILLIAM THAW WAS KILLED IN FRANCE

Yale Student Gets Report of the Aviator's End—Thaw's Father Does Not Believe It.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 18.—According to word received by Kenneth O'Brien of New York, '17, from Samuel S. Walker, '17, who left in June to serve in the American ambulance corps at the French front, William Thaw, a former Yale man, has been killed while serving as an aviator in the French army. The letter is dated Sept. 27, and the part that refers to the American aviator reads:

"We have heard today that 'Bill' Thaw was killed three days ago."

The manner of his death is not described, but reference is also made to the other casualties suffered by the American corps in the French army.

This is the second time that a report has reached this country of Thaw's death. The first one came from Paris on April 21, but was later denied.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18.—Inquiry at the office of Benjamin Thaw, father of Lieutenant William Thaw of the French aviation corps, brought the information that neither Mr. Thaw nor any member of his family had been notified of William Thaw's death, and they were inclined to doubt the authenticity of the New Haven report.

NORWAY REFUSES TO BAR SUBMARINES

Has Forbidden Undersea War Craft to Enter Save in Emergency—Will Go No Further.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Reuter's Christiania correspondent says Norway has informed the Entente Allies that it does not recognize it is its duty to prohibit belligerent submarines from passing through or sojourning in Norwegian waters. The Norwegian note is in response to the memorandum of the Entente Powers to neutrals suggesting that belligerent submarines should be excluded from neutral waters.

The Norwegian Government declares it considers it has the right to prohibit submarines designed for war purposes and belonging to belligerents from passing through Norwegian territorial waters or sojourning in them, and says it made use of this right in issuing the royal decree of Oct. 13, under which belligerent submarines are forbidden to traverse Norwegian waters except in cases of emergency, when they must remain upon the surface and fly the national flag. The decree also provides that mercantile submarines are to be allowed in Norwegian waters only in a surface position in full daylight and when flying the national colors.

On the other hand, the Government does not find that it is its duty as against any of the belligerents to prohibit such passage or sojourn. Concerning commercial submarines, the new Norwegian regulations impose no prohibition, it is pointed out, as far as concerns arrival or sojourn of such submarines under the conditions designated in the royal decree. The Norwegian Government says care will be taken to see that commercial submarines which may arrive in Norwegian waters really bear the indubitable character of merchant ships.

Until experience has shown what difficulties may arise for maintenance of neutrality in consequence of the use of commercial submarines, the note continues, the question of issuing special new regulations for such vessels cannot be taken into consideration. In view of the generally recognized principles of impartial neutrality, which were clearly expressed in the introduction to the Thirteenth Treaty adopted at The Hague, the Government says it is always necessary during the existence of war to avoid a change of neutrality regulations unless experience demonstrates the necessity of doing so in order to protect neutral States in their own rights.

CHARGES HUGHES GAVE PLEDGES TO GERMANS

Chicago Journal Asserts Lutheran Ministers Are in Secret Campaign for Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—That Charles Evans Hughes, if elected President, would make it "his especial task to bring the allied powers of Europe to terms in regard to their transgressions" was the assurance given more than two hundred German Lutheran Ministers in a secret political meeting in the Kaiserhof Hotel Friday night, according to a statement made by The Chicago Journal tonight.

The pastors, who came from all parts of Illinois, were told also that Mr. Hughes "had especially and plainly stated to a committee of ministers that Theodore Roosevelt, under no conditions, would be considered by him as a possible member of his Cabinet," the story said.

The secret meeting in the Kaiserhof, followed by a few days a similar session held in a Milwaukee hotel. Meetings are to be held in other cities in the next few days to line up the German-Lutheran clergy of the United States for the Hughes-Farbanks ticket. It is said that the first meeting was held in Detroit on Sept. 7, and there plans for getting the German-Lutheran pastors behind the movement were made.

Representatives of the German-American Alliance, the Embargo Conference, the American Independence Conference, and the American Truth Society attended the meetings. At Detroit a committee of four was appointed to wait on Mr. Hughes and get a statement of his position. It was this committee's report which was read at the meeting in the Kaiserhof Friday.

Names of the members of the committee which is alleged to have met Mr. Hughes and the place of meeting have been kept secret. According to The Journal, it was reported that the expenses of pastors who attended the secret conference were paid by checks given out through C. J. Jacobson, who at times has acted as treasurer of the embargo conference.

Mr. Jacobson was found at the Kaiserhof today after he had lunched with several Lutheran pastors.

"Yes," he said, "we had a meeting and took very important action, but I am not prepared to discuss it with any person."

KING OF GREECE TRIES TO PLACATE ENTENTE POWERS

PROTESTS HIS GOOD FAITH

Greeks Excited by Tales of American Fleet, German Army, and Turks Coming.

RUMANIANS NOW ATTACK

Drive Teutons Back on Hungarian Frontier—Russians Gaining in Battle for Halicz.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—"The British Minister to Greece had a long interview with King Constantine this evening," says a Reuter dispatch from Athens under date of Tuesday, "and it is understood his Majesty insisted on the groundlessness of the suspicion that Greece contemplated an attack on the forces of General Sarrail. As proof of his good faith the King is said to have declared his readiness to withdraw the Greek forces from Larissa."

The Greek Government, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch, has protested to neutral powers against the manner of application of police control in Athens on the ground that it constitutes a serious violation of the sovereign rights of Greece.

Greek Troops Charge Mob.

Other dispatches say that a French marine patrol last evening arrested at the point of the bayonet seven youths who were hooting the Entente Powers. A huge crowd gathered for the purpose of rescuing them. The Greek military commander in Athens called out troops who charged and dispersed the crowd. Greek patrols were immediately placed in various districts to control any attempts at anti-Entente manifestations.

The French Admiral in command informed the Premier that he would call at the Ministry in the morning, although it is thought possible that as a result of the British Minister's audience with King Constantine the French troops may be withdrawn on a pledge that the Greeks maimain order.

It is known that the King has given command that anti-Entente demonstrations must cease, as the very existence of Greece is at stake. It is difficult to say, however, whether in the present state of public opinion over the presence of marines of the foreign powers at Athens and Piraeus, even the King's orders will be obeyed by the excited populace.

Three hundred French marines were transferred yesterday from the Municipal Theatre to the Zappeion Exposition Building within 400 yards of the King's Palace. They marched through the streets with bayonets fixed and trumpets blowing, accompanied by moving picture apparatus and an automobile with Franco-British secret police. The front of the larger palace structure is occupied by Prince Andrew and Princess Alice.

Midway on their march the French contingent met three companies of sailors from the former Greek fleet and who have now been formed into infantry organizations. Their trumpets were also sounding, and they made quite as impressive an appearance as the French, with the added picturesque touch of the swinging right arm peculiar to Greek troops on the march.

When the squads met the Greeks turned down another street, leaving the Stadium street to the French.

French View of Situation.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Every act of Vice Admiral du Fournet, Commander of the allied fleet in Greek waters, respecting control of the Greek administration, has been by direction of the allied Governments, it is explained here, with the sole object of safeguarding the communications of the Entente armies on the Macedonian front. According to the view expressed here, the safety of the Entente armies, now fully occupied in the campaign against the Bulgarians, has been imperiled by what are regarded as the pro-German leanings of the King, the Cabinet, and the commanders of the army and navy.

Such offers as King Constantine recently made to join the Allies were not trusted. It was felt that to accept them might have been to arm and finance a potential enemy, for the King's offers were always conditioned upon being amply supplied with money and fighting equipment. About one-quarter of the Greek army's fighting material recently was surrendered to the Bulgarians, and it is regarded by the Allies as unwise to provide more equipment and pay for the troops.

The French press is deeply impressed by King Constantine's Order of the Day to the crews of the Greek battleships taken over by the Allies. The Matin says: "King Constantine in a public speech affirms his antipathy to the Entente. * * * We must look the fact in the face and not allow ourselves to be deceived. Constantine is the friend of the enemy."

The Petit Parisien says: "All doubt is at an end. The King of Greece is against the Entente. The Order of the Day which the King caused to be read in his presence to officers and men of the Hellenic Navy expresses his intimate thoughts, his hostility to our cause, and the tenacity of his sympathies for our adversaries.'

HEARD AMERICAN FLEET WAS BOUND FOR GREECE

Athens Demonstrators Presented to Our Minister Petition for Protection from Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Oct. 19.—The Athens correspondent of The Daily Chronicle sends the following to his paper under Tuesday's date:

"The utmost is being done by the military party at Athens to rouse the people against the Allies. Up to the moment of telegraphing the Greek police have wholly abdicated their functions and authority and the streets of the capital are entirely given over to the so-called reservists and the rowdy elements of the population.

"The demonstrations show clearly that the German propaganda is still powerfully organized. All day yesterday at the German Legation and elsewhere money flowed out to the reservists and other buyable roughs to an extent never known even in the palmiest days of Baron Schenck's regime. That class of rowdy yesterday received 10 francs each, and assisted by a large number of soldiers and sailors in uniform made up last night's demonstrations, which were openly of an anti-Entente nature, and probably for the first time in history Athens heard shouts of "Long live the Bulgaria!" "Long live the Turks!" in addition to "Long live Germany!" The whole matter, indeed, was a deliberate and desperate piece of mixed provocation and defiance by the reactionaries, who were persuaded that they only need show temper and force to defeat the measures of the Allies, who they believed to be divided as to the measures to be taken.

Wild Yarns in Pro-German Press.

"For some weeks past the Nationalist press has been buoying up the hopes of its readers with promises of tremendous German reinforcements for the Balkans. The number of these reinforcements grew steadily day by day till it became forty-four divisions. Day by day, too, the date of arrival of the Germans at the front line in the Balkans was postponed until the final date was given as Oct. 14.

"When that date had gone by without the slightest sign of these mythical divisions another hare had to be started. It was announced that a United States warship intended to visit Piraeus. This vessel in the course of a few days grew into a tremendous fleet coming to intervene on behalf of Greece, and the news was used to bring about the demonstration last night before the United States Legation—another clumsy method of stirring up anti-Entente feeling.

"This morning a deputation from these demonstrators, headed by a number of nobodies, presented a long-winded declaration to the United States Minister about Greece being the victim of one of the rival belligerent groups simply because she did not want to fight. The demonstrators therefore called upon great and free America to use her powerful influence to avert the subjugation of those who merely desired to remain free. The Minister replied that he would bring the statement to the notice of his Government, adding, personally, that it had always been the principle of the United States not to intervene in European affairs.

Imaginary Fleet Greeted.

"Meanwhile, outside, newsboys were actually selling papers reporting the arrival of this imaginary armada, and the Mea Hermera, the organ of the Court and military clique, this morning saluted it in these words:

"'With the greatest joy the Greek people learn the news of the approaching arrival of the great American fleet news. It is indeed a relief in the midst of the torments we endure. The citizens of America resent the sorrows of the Greek people and they will proclaim without doubt their reprobation in a loud voice which will resound across the seas.'

"The American war vessels in the Mediterranean are a small cruiser and a collier. On all hands today one hears the people saying that Greece could do nothing against the Allies, but that now with the United States fleet she can do what she likes.

"Knowing this dodge is condemned to be shortlived, papers of a like kind are already reporting the arrival of 15,000 Turks in Macedonia, who will sweep the Allies into the sea.

"Today the crowds have been extremely rowdy and provocative. The situation can only be said to have become extremely dangerous. They hissed and jeered both the French Admiral and the French Minister, and when the guard at the Municipal Theatre was taken to a building in the Zappion Garden the crowd shouted: 'Turn them out!' and 'Long live Germany!' An evening paper calls for a demonstration tonight before the British Legation, where something of the sort was attempted this morning."

Text of Demonstrators' Petition.

ATHENS, Oct. 17 (via London, Oct. 18).—Following the demonstration here yesterday against the Entente Allies, during which a procession of several thousand persons marched to the American Legation and protested against the landing of French marines, a delegation of six persons, including an English-speaking Greek named Kilkis, formerly from Mississippi, called at the American Legation today and presented resolutions asking the sympathy and protection of the United States against the encroachments of the Entente Powers. The spokesman sain in English, in presenting the resolution:

"Henry Clay's speech in regard to Greece's struggle for liberty, as well as one by Daniel Webster, said the struggle would have been made meaningless if the liberties of Greece had been subsequently lost."

Following is the text of the resolution:

In the name of the people spontaneously assembled before the Legation yesterday evening, to come to you as a representative of the great, free, liberal American people, to register with you and through you to the people you so worthily represent the protest of the Greek people:

The Greek citizen has decided to remain neutral because he does not think it to his interest to participate in the European war, and on this account he has become the victim of coercion by the rival groups engaged in the struggle. During the year past the rival groups gradually abolished all the functions of the Greek state, and now one of the groups even occupies our capital.

We are aware the American people always have fought for liberty against slavery and therefore appeal to their powerful influence to avert the subjugation of those who desire only to remain free. Owing to our exceptional position with respect to the powers in the conflict, such influence can be exercised efficaciously only by America. We trust that the noble American people will lend a sympathetic ear to our appeal, and call for three cheers for the American people. Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!

The names signed to the petition are Vassos Vergis, Constantine Englesis, Constantine Cotseas, G. Roussos, and Themistocles Tasoularis.

The American Minister, Garrett Droppers, said today he would forward the petition to Washington, as requested. He expressed the opinion that the demonstraion and appeal to America were due to reports that are current here of the coming of an American fleet of thirty warships.

Appealed to News Agency Also.

After the demonstration before the Legation last night the crowd, constantly increasing in numbers, marched to the hotel in which are the offices of The Associated Press, and renewed the demonstration, waving the American flag and calling on the representative of the news agency to inform the world through the press as to what was going on in Greece.

The Royalist newspaper Neo Hemera this morning published a half-page editorial addressed to The Associated Press, calling on it to voice "the far-reaching cry being addressed to the whole universe by a defenseless people, which is being forced to leave neutrality under the whip of violence; a cry of protest and indignation embodying all the incalculable moral force concentrated in the American citizen—the cry of elementary justice against the unforgetable iniquities being committed, to the destruction of the liberties of the people of Hellas."

The Neo Hemera further declared that the imparial American press was the only bar before which Greece could obtain justice and sympathy.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The Rumanian resistance to the Teutonic advance continued yesterday, Berlin not being able to report a gain at any of the many points of attack. Bucharest reports similarly, although there is a claim that a counteroffensive has begun at one point at least on the western frontier.

There is a note of confidence in the Bucharest reports which is in strong contrast to the panicky feeling which provoked King Ferdinand to allow the publication of his remarkable interview a few days ago. There seems to be no doubt now that he was simply in a funk. In fact, his country did appear to be in serious danger of a Teutonic invasion in force, and the world has seen in the cases of Belgium and Serbia what this means. Whether his appeal to the other nations of the Entente had the effect he desired, or whether the Rumanian Army found itself, so to speak, is one of the things that will only be known when a true history of the war is written.

From a military standpoint, however, it makes but little difference what produced the change in the face of things. The situation has changed materially and von Falkenhayn's drive has, for the time being at least, come to a halt. As was pointed out yesterday, delay is fatal to his entire enterprise, as the approach of Winter, if he does not reach the plains beyond the mountains in a short time, will soon put a stop to offensive operations in this quarter.

On the Saloniki front the situation seems to be seriously confused by the Greek domestic situation. Greece seems to be almost on the verge of civil war. The action of the Allies in seizing the capital appears on its face to be an unwarranted proceeding carried out in rather a high-handed way. The situation must have presented a most serious aspect for them to have taken a step which they knew beforehand would antagonize a large element of the population. For this element has great potentiality for harm.

The Allies have advanced almost to the borderland between Greece and Bulgaria and Serbia, so that most of the Greek Army is in their rear and on their line of communication. But a short time ago it was almost certain that Greece was about to enter the war on the side of the Allies. At this juncture the Allies began what seemed to be a real campaign against the Teutonic allies, [illegible] til the last few days. This is coincident in point of time with [illegible] between the two parties, that is, between the followers of Constantine and those of Venizelos.

Sarrail's situation is uncomfortable, to say the least, and until matters have simmered down somewhat it is easy to understand why the fighting there has come to a standstill. It seems that the military situation will have to remain in statu quo until the political clouds have been dissipated.

Here, also, the element of weather is an important one. The Allies face high mountain walls at all points of the front, walls which at some points assume great heights. It is probable that here, too, the fighting will of necessity be suspended when the snow begins to fall.

Up to a certain point time has favored the Allies. It favored them so long as their organization was in process of being perfected, while their industries were being put on a war basis, while all the reserves of the countries involved were being mobilized for war purposes. But at the present time, with but one exception, this state of affairs has now been reached. The Allies are manufacturing almost up to their requirements of shell, their systems of recruiting have reached their maximum development, their finances have been satisfactorily arranged.

This one exception is the very one which will prove the great crushing force of the war—the Russians. The Russians, by reason of their very size and the ponderousness of their mass will always be benefited by delay. The Winter means to them another period of shell accumulation, of training another new army of reserves. To Germany and to her allies, as to the Entente with the exception of Russia, it will bring but little to one that it does not bring to the other.

It has been announced that the English and the French will continue the battle of the Somme during the Winter. There is no decided climatic reason why this should not prove to be the case. The temperature in Western France is in no way severe.

On the Russian front, however, the climate is exceptionally severe. Last Winter proved beyond doubt that any extensive military operation is practically impossible. The marshes are treacherous and, although they freeze over, it was shown last year that they do not necessarily permit the passage of armies over them. The same situation as far as the severity of the Winter season prevails on the Rumanian front, on the Saloniki front, and in the Trentino. Only in Istria and in Mesopotamia may fighting continue.

Therefore, if the British and French attempt to continue the fighting during the Winter, forcing it as they are now doing, the Germans, fearing nothing on the other fronts until the warmer weather comes, will be able with perfect safety to increase greatly their forces on the Somme and make the path which the western Allies have to hew extremely difficult. If the Germans are able and do effect this concentration on the western front, we will see the battle of the Somme slacken and temporarily die out, to be revived only when the warm weather brings again the present concentric pressure on all points of the iron ring.

EXPECT GREECE TO JOIN WAR.

Central Empires Ask Us to Act for Them in That Event.

ATHENS, Oct. 17, (via London, Oct. 18.)—On the initiative of the Central Empires Washington has been asked to permit the American Legation here to take charge of Austrian, Bulgarian, and Turkish interests in case of a declaration of war by Greece or other complications.

Permission has been given as regards Austria.

ASKS OUR RECOGNITION.

Greek Provisional Government Would Recruit Greeks Here.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The Greek Provisional Government has opened negotiations with the United States, says a dispatch from Athens to the Exchange Telegraph Company, for the purpose of obtaining freedom of action in recruiting Greeks in America.

Upon being officially recognized the Provisional Government will send representatives to the United States and to Egypt and Cyprus to conduct recruiting campaigns.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—State Department officials would not comment on Athens reports that the United States had been asked to take over the diplomatic interests of Austria, Bulgaria, and Turkey in case of war with Greece. It was announced, however, that Austrian interests had been taken over in the City of Patris, from which the Austrian Consul was withdrawn recently. Turkey several weeks ago requested the American Government to take over its interests in Greece in case of eventualities. No action was taken at the time, except to indicate America's willingness to do so.

RIVAL GREEK COMMITTEE.

Defense Body Not Connected with Hellenic Liberal, It Is Explained.

Exception was taken by Petros P. Tantanis, founder of the Greek daily National Herald, and other prominent Greeks in New York, yesterday, to a statement published in THE NEW YORK TIMES and other newspapers that John Panagoulopoulos had received a cable stating that President Venizelos of the Greek Provisional Government had accepted the honorary presidency and General Danglis the presidency "of the Hellenic Liberal Committee formed here last Sunday."

"Kindly correct that the name of the committee is the National Defense Committee, with which a certain John Panagoulopoulos of 80 Wall Street is in no way connected, having not even been present in the mass meeting," wrote the National Defense Committee in a letter to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Mr. Panagoulopoulos was not in his office when a reporter called there yesterday. It was explained by other Greeks that the Hellenic Liberal Committee, formed some time ago, had a different object from that of the recently organized body and that communications cabled to it by M. Venizelos and others were received several months ago.

ARABIAN TRIBES AT WAR.

Constantinople Tells of Revolt Against Emir Hussein.

BERLIN, Oct. 18, (via Sayville.)—Reports from Constantinople to the Overseas News Agency say that a powerful Sheik of Western Arabia, Abdul Aziz Fanson Emir Seid, has declared war on the former Emir Hussein after learning that the Emir had rebelled against the Sultan of Turkey. Emir Hussein was the Grand Sherif of Mecca, and proclaimed his independence of Ottoman rule in June, 1916.

Sheik Abdul Phelis, advices from Constantinople say, has placed his forces on a war footing, and has sent delegates to Damascus to repeat his assurances of fidelity toward the Califate.

To Discuss Isles' Sale in Secret.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 18.—At a meeting of the sale commission this afternoon the President proposed that sessions be held behind closed doors. This was agreed to by a vote of 19 to 11, the Conservatives and Moderates favoring it, and the Radicals and Socialists opposing. Helwig Larsen, recently Governor of the West Indies, will arrive in Copenhagen on the 26th and hearings will begin the next day.

RUMANIANS TURN ON INVADING ARMY

Heavily Reinforced by Russians They Begin to Roll Falkenhayn's Forces Back.

BATTLE ON ENTIRE FRONT

Teutons Reported to be in Retreat in the Predeal Region, South of Kronstadt.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Not only has General von Falkenhayn's drive against the Transylvania frontier of Rumania, with a formidable army in which Germans predominate, been checked, but is being rolled back, according to official advices from Bucharest which report that "all the military news is reassuring." Large Russian forces have joined the Rumanians at various points along the border and are helping to defend the passes, correspondents of the Budapest Hirlap and Az Est with the Teuton Army report to their respective newspapers.

These advices are regarded by British experts as reassuring. Yesterday's Bucharest communication admitted that the Rumanian troops had been repulsed on Mateias Hill, twelve miles within Rumanian territory in the Torzburg Pass region, but military experts here think that if fortune favors the Rumanians in the Predeal District, the invading force at Mateias may find its position precarious. In the Gyimes Pass, where the Austro-Germans have reached Agas, seven miles within the frontier, fighting is still going on.

Following is the communication issued by Rumanian Army Headquarters late last night:

In the Pradeal region (south of Kronstadt) the Rumanians are resuming the offensive and are pursuing the enemy on the Transylvania slope. Very stubborn fighting is in progress.

On the whole Carpathian front the enemy is attacking violently, but so far without success.

All the military news is reassuring.

The Rumanian communication issued today says:

On the northern and northwestern fronts there have been artillery actions to the west of the Tulghes and Bucaz. The enemy attacks were repulsed. We took ninety prisoners. On Bolovis we also took two officers and sixty-five men prisoners. In the Trous Valley fighting continues. Up to the present we have taken one officer and 100 men prisoners. In the Uzul valley all enemy attacks have been sanguinarily driven back beyond the frontier.

In the Oituz valley both attacks and counterattacks continue with the same violence. We have inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, capturing three officers and a 100 men. In the region of Verancy minor engagements took place to the west of the frontier. The enemy has been repulsed in the Buzoui (Buxen) valley. Our artillery dismantled an enemy gun and forced the advanced enemy lines to be withdrawn one kilometer.

To the north of the Tabla Butzi there have been artillery duels.

Calm prevails at Bratocea and Predelus. At Predeal there has been an interesting artillery duel and violent engagements at Mateias. We took here four machine guns and made some prisoners.

In the Alt valley we repulsed an enemy attack on Mont Robul and made several prisoners. We also captured two machine guns.

On the Jiul front calm has reigned. The enemy's artillery has violently bombarded the Orsova front.

Berlin and Vienna report that there is no change in the situation on the Transylvania front.

Only aviation activities on the Dobrudja theatre are mentioned in the Russian official statement, which says:

Dobrudja front.—An enemy seaplane was hit by our artillery fire and fell between the enemy lines and our own. The seaplane blew up during this fall and was burned.

SOFIA, Oct. 17 (via London, Oct. 18.)—The following bulletin was issued by the War Office today:

The situation on the Rumanian front is unchanged. Along the Danube there is quiet. In the Dobrudja there was weak artillery firing at some points. We dispersed an enemy detachment, composed of two batteries and three battalions, between Kujus Manu and Enigea. In his flight the enemy left behind his him guns and ammunition cases. There is quiet on the Black Sea coast.

Asserts Portuguese Oppose War.

BERLIN, Oct. 18, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—A Madrid dispatch to the Cologne Gazette says no Portuguese troops will be sent to France until two new divisions have been made ready to preserve order in Portugal. Travelers reaching Vigo from Portugal, the dispatch says, declare most of the Portuguese people are opposed to war and many arrests are being made. At Oporto a crowd attacked the barracks and 130 persons, including soldiers, were arrested.

FRENCH WIN SAILLY AND HILLS NEAR BY

Gen. Fayolle's Troops Also Capture First German Line West of Peronne.

BRITISH MAKE SMALL GAIN

Push Forward Toward a High Ridge Barring the Boad to Bapaume.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—After frustrating several German attempts to drive them from the village of Sailly-Saillisel, north of the Somme, the French troops, under General Fayolle, not only forced the Germans completely out of the village today, but captured the ridges dominating the position on the northwest and northeast. This success is reported in the French War Office communiqué issued this evening.

South of the Somme the French attacked on the front extending from Biaches to La Maisonette, villages just west of Peronne, and carried the entire German first line. Biaches fell into the hands of the French on the night of July 9, but in the severe fighting which followed it changed hands several times and was not finally occupied until over a week late. Since that date, (July 17,) there has been no fighting in this immediate neighborhood.

The British also gained some advantages today, pushing forward their line north of Guedeucourt and in the direction of the Butte de Warlencourt. This height lies to the east of the Albert-Bapaume railway, north of Eaucourt L'Abbaye.

A German attack early this morning, east of Berny-en-Santerre, succeeded in penetrating the French line, but the French drove out the attackers, capturing those who survived the engagement. The French night report follows:

North of the Somme we completed the conquest of the village of Sailly-Saillisel and drove the enemy from the ridges northwest and northeast of the village.

South of the Somme the first German line was carried with a rush on the whole front, between La Maisonnette and Biaches. In these two attacks we took 250 prisoners, including five officers, and also several machine guns.

On the remainder of the front the usual artillery actions occurred:

Despite misty weather our aviators were active throughout Tuesday. Three enemy aeroplanes were brought down on the Somme front—one near Aizcourt, a second west of Bouchavesnes, and the third between Rocquigny and Le Transloy. The last mentioned was brought down by Lieutenant Heurteux, bringing his total to nine.

One of our aviators, attacked by three Fokkers between Roye and Lassigny, drove down one of his adversaries and put the other two to flight.

The French afternoon communiqué reads as follows:

North of the Somme, toward the close of the day yesterday, the enemy renewed his attempts on the Sailly-Saillisel position. Three attacks by the enemy debouching from the north and east were successfully broken by our fire, which caused him considerable loss. Our gains were maintained in their entirety. During the course of the night there was no infantry action.

South of the Somme the Germans, about 5 o'clock this morning, attacked one of our trenches east of Berny-en-Santerre. Some enemy fractions of the first wave succeeded in penetrating our advanced elements. Immediately counterattacked by our troops, the occupants were killed or captured. The following waves were caught under our barrage fire and were compelled to fall back in disorder, leaving a number of dead on the ground.

South of the Avre our reconnoissance penetrated enemy trenches in the Fresnières district and brought back prisoners.

Southeast of Rheims another coup de main carried out in the Fort de la Pompelle sector was perfectly successful.

The official bulletin from British headquarters in France issued tonight reads:

An attack this morning extended our front north of Gueudecourt and toward the Butte de Warlencourt. So far, over 150 prisoners have been reported.

Yesterday, besides many reconnoissances, our aircraft carried out three bombing raids against enemy communications, in which railway stock and station buildings were damaged. A train was hit and derailed.

There were many fights in the air, in the course of which four enemy machines were driven down damaged; one fell into a lake. Four of our machines have not returned.

The British afternoon report says:

Rain fell heavily during the night. Notwithstanding this, we made progress at various points between the Albert-Bapaume Road and Lesboeufs. We have taken some prisoners.

Berlin Says Attacks Failed.

BERLIN, Oct. 18 (via London.)—French attacks in the region of Morval and Rancourt, north of the River Somme, were repulsed yesterday after hard fighting, says the official statement issued today by the German Army Headquarters Staff. British and French attacks near Thiepval, Courcelette, and Bouchavesnes, the statement adds, also failed.

On both sides of Eaucourt l'Abbaye, it is officially announced, the German destructive fire reduced the British attack to failure at the outset. North of the Somme the artillery bombardment was intense. The statement says:

Army group of Prince Rupprecht—The artillery fighting attained considerable intensity over wide sectors, especially north of the Somme. During the evening the British attacked between Le Sars and Gueudecourt and the French from Lesboeufs as far as Rancourt. On both sides of Eaucourt l'Abbaye our destructive fire, brought to bear upon the enemy's storming trenches, reduced the attack at the outset to failure. Near Gueudecourt stubborn hand-to-hand fighting developed, during which our positions were held in their entirety.

French troops which advanced to the attack from the region of Morval and Rancourt were repulsed after a hard fight. The enemy has forced his way into Sailly-Saillisel, and fighting there is still going on.

Adjacent to the principal place of attack near Thiepval, Courcelette, and Bouchavesnes, attacks made by the enemy failed to gain any success for him.

Five enemy aeroplanes were brought down in the course of aerial fighting.

Army Group of the German Crown Prince—On the eastern bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) there was lively artillery firing.

SAY ALLIES HIDE TRUTH.

Berlin Declares "Terrible Defeats" Are Not Mentioned.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Oct. 17, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—In German military circles attention is called to a new system of war reporting in the bulletins of the Eentente allies, in which it is alleged that attempts are made to conceal the failure of their tremendous attacks by simply announcing that "nothing of importance has occurred."

German oficers say the most striking illustration of this was seen in the Somme operations from Oct. 9 to Oct. 13. On Oct. 12 and 13 especially the attacks were undertaken with bitterness and were preceded, it is declared, by an artillery pounding which broke even the previous Somme records for big gun bombardments.

"The attacks were the heaviest around Sailly-Saillisel and St. Pierre Vaast Wood," army officers say. "On Oct. 12 the enemy advanced in six to ten lines and led by mounted officers. Everything indicated the long-expected and eagerly looked for offensive movement, yet the attacks totally failed under frightful carnage. The English troops were decimated to an unprecedented degree by the German machine guns, the infantry being literally mowed down. A regular barricade of corpses lies before St. Pierre Vaast Wood. Nevertheless the English and French official reports touched only briefly or partly ignored this fighting.

"Austro-Hungarian reports indicate that a similar policy has been adopted by the Italians and Russians in issuing their bulletins. Readers of the Italian official communications do not suspect that General Cadorna, the Italian Commander in Chief, suffered terrible defeats last week in the Carso region. It has also been noted for several weeks that the Russians have despised the truth regarding the numerous disastrously repulsed Russian attacks in Volhynia and Galicia."

FRENCH AND SERBS TAKE BULGAR TRENCHES

British Shell Village Near Demir-Hissar—Turks Arriving on Struma Front.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Both the French and Serbians on the Macedonian front are advancing again toward Monastir, while in the Struma region, where the presence of Turkish troops is reported, British artillery is shelling a village only six miles south of Demir-Hissar.

Following is the report of operations issued tonight by the French War Office:

On the right bank of the Vardar River (Macedonia) we took enemy trenches to a depth of 400 feet. The Serbians continued their progress on the northwest slopes of Dobropolye. There has been rifle firing and cannonading on the plains of Monastir. Some Turkish contingents have arrived on the lower Struma.

A Serbian official announcement received here from Saloniki says:

On Oct. 16 our troops attacked Bulgarian positions at Dobropolye and Sokol, (on the Nidje Planina.) The operations were continued on the 17th with regularity and success.

On the rest of the front there was the usual fighting activity.

The British War Office announcement follows:

On the Struma front our heavy artillery successfully shelled the village of Barakli-Juma, (six miles south of Demir-Hissar,) where enemy movements were observed.

On the Doiran front the activity of our patrols continues and enemy working parties have been dispersed.

Berlin Army Headquarters issued the bulletin subjoined:

Macedonian Front: Increased artillery fire preceded enemy local attacks west of the Monastir-Florina railway line and also north and northeast of the Nidje Planina. These attacks failed. A Bulgarian attack cleared a Serbian outpost on the northern bank of the River Cerna.

SOFIA, Oct. 17, (via London, Oct. 18.)—Only minor actions on all fronts are reported in the official statement issued by the Bulgarian War Office today. The text of the statement follows:

The situation on the Macedonian front is unchanged east of Presba Lake and in the Cerna bend there was vigorous artillery activity. We repulsed weak enemy attacks near the villages of Gradeshnitsa and Tarnova. In the Moglenica sector there was quiet. At some points on the Vardar there was weak artillery firing. During patrol skirmishes east of the Vardar we captured two English soldiers. At the foot of the Belaschitza mountains there was weak artillery firing. On the Struma front there were patrol skirmishes. The Aegean coast is quiet.

TAKE SUMMIT OF PASUBIO.

Italians Storm Strong Austrian Positions in the Trentino.

ROME, Oct. 18.—Italian troops on Mount Pasubio, in the Trentino, yesterday broke the last Austro-Hungarian lines of resistance in the region between Cosmagnon and Roite, says the Italian official statement issued today, and stormed the Austrian lines north of the summit. The statement follows:

On Mount Pasubio, after breaking the last resistance in the region between Cosmagnon and Roite, our troops stormed the enemy lines north of the summit.

Following an effective artillery preparation, the strong redoubt which the Austrians had built on a commanding position called the "Tooth of Pasubio" was carried by assault. Seventy-two prisoners and a quantity of arms and ammunition were taken.

Two strong enemy columns which moved to the counterattack were allowed to advance within a few hundred yards of our lines, when they suddenly found themselves under the concentrated fire of our batteries and were almost destroyed. During the night the enemy attempted further attacks, all of which were driven off with heavy losses.

Along the remainder of the front only artillery actions took place, enemy batteries firing a few shells on Asiago (Trentino) and Gorizia.

VIENNA, Oct. 18, (via London.)—The War Office issued the following statement today concerning operations on the Italian front:

Yesterday evening considerable enemy forces attacked our positions on Monte Testa, Roite Ridge, and north of the Pasubio Peak. Our brave defenders repulsed this attack sanguinarily.

At some points in the Flein Valley, on the Dolomites front and also on the Carso Plateau, there are sporadic artillery actions, which sometimes become very violent.

ITALIAN CRUISER HIT.

Badly Damaged by a Submarine Attack, Says Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 18, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The Admiralty announced today that the Italian protected cruiser Libia was hit and severely damaged in the Mediterranean on Oct. 7 by a torpedo from a German submarine.

The Libia is a protected cruiser of 3,740 tons displacement. She is 341 feet long, with a normal complement of 300 men. She is armed with two 6-inch guns, eight 4.7-inch guns and two torpedo tubes.

The Libia was laid down in 1912 as the Turkish cruiser Drama. She was seized by Italy while being built, during the Turco-Italian war.

TURKS ATTACK IN ARMENIA.

But Are Repulsed with Heavy Losses, Says Petrograd.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 18, (via London.)—Russian troops in Turkish Armenia, in the region to the southeast of Erzingan, have driven off, with heavy losses, attacks by strong forces of Turks and Kurds, according to today's War Office statement, which says:

"During Oct. 15 and 16 considerable forces of Turks and Kurds attacked seven times at Sudindag Mountain, sixty versts (about forty miles) southeast of Erzingan, occupied by our gallant Caucasian regiments, but were repulsed by our fire with heavy losses."

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 17, (via London, Oct. 18.)—The following official communication was issued today:

"On the Caucasian front we advanced our trenches further eastward. On the centre surprise attacks against the enemy were crowned with success. We took a number of prisoners on the right and left wings. There have been successful reconnoissances.

"Egyptian Front.—Two regiments of enemy cavalry which attacked Limegare, east of Suez, were repulsed with losses.

"On the other fronts there is nothing to report."

ten years' experience with free institutions, like South Africa."

Mr. Redmond asked what was the purpose of the Government in setting up a Unionist administration in Dublin and what they proposed to do. Had the new Chief Secretary found a solution? Was it proposed to maintain martial law? He said he would do everything possible to maintain the Irish regiments at their full strength, but it was no use asking him to do the impossible. It was the duty of the empire to remove all that made for bad faith and bad management and settle Ireland on a basis of freedom and responsibility. Compulsion, he declared, would only aggravate the difficulty, and he asked that the Irish recruits enlisted in the United Kingdom should be sent to Irish regiments.

"The whole situation can only be met by boldly grappling with the Irish situation," continued Mr. Redmond. "So long as the present state of Government exists in Ireland, so long will the present excited and irritated public feeling exist; so long as the Irish people see that England, fighting for the rights of small nationalities in Europe, is maintaining by martial law the Unionist Government against the will of the people of Ireland no real improvement can be hoped for.

Wants Irish Prisoners Released.

"Let the Government withdraw martial law, and put in command of the forces in Ireland a man who has not been connected with the unhappy transactions of the past. Let the administration of the Defense of the Realm act be as stringent as they like, but animated by the same spirit and carried into effect by the same machinery as in Great Britain. Let the 500 untried prisoners be released. Let the penal servitude prisoners be treated as political prisoners, and, above all, let the Government take courage in its own hands and trust the Irish people once and for all by putting the Home Rule act in operation, and resolutely and on its own responsibility face any problems which that might entail."

Mr. Redmond said that present conditions were injuriously affecting the British cause throughout America and the Dominions, especially at present in Australia. As one who had honestly done his best and who was prepared to continue honestly to do his best to win the war, no matter what the risks to his own popularity and influence might be, he begged the Government to listen seriously to his warning advice.

Recognizes Redmond's Patriotism.

Henry Edward Duke, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, replying to Mr. Redmond, said he recognized that underlying Mr. Redmond's speech was a profound desire that Ireland should play a part worthy of the highest traditions of her countrymen in this great struggle. The real question, he continued, with which this country and Ireland were confronted was whether, when Great Britain was fighting for her existence, Ireland, from one cause or another, should stand aside. Those grounds of criticism which referred to mistakes and recruiting mismanagement were capable of remedy, he added, and Mr. Lloyd George, the Secretary for War, was particularly qualified to deal with them.

Mr. Duke said that 560 men still interned for participation in the Irish uprising were ringleaders, and he asked: "Do the Nationalists desire 560 trials for treason with the consequences which would follow?" The time had not come, he continued, when many of the interned men could safely be allowed to return to the countryside; but men who made application and who had been able to offer security were being released. There must be some restraint, he insisted, upon men from the southwest who took part in or sympathized with the rebellion, and who had not abandoned what he characterized as their foolish ambition, and if nothing better could be devised martial law would have to be continued.

The rising in Dublin, Mr. Duke declared, could not be regarded as a local happening, and it was impossible for the Government to accept the prescriptions of Mr. Redmond. The Secretary said he sympathized with the Nationalists' disappointment in the delay of the application of the Home Rule act, but asserted that the real obstacle was the disagreement among Irishmen themselves, and for that the British system of administration could not be blamed. He pleaded strongly for a voluntary settlement of the Irish problem.

In regard to martial law, the Government must bide its time, he added. It must withdraw every restriction as soon as possible, but its paramount duty was to secure to every law-abiding subject of Ireland protection by every means at its command.

Martial Law Needless, Says Simon.

Sir John Simon, the former Home Secretary, contended that the continuance of martial law in Ireland was needless. Its removal, he said, would assuage the bitter and dangerous feelings.

John Norton Griffith, Unionist, having expressed the opinion that it would be impracticable to attempt to apply conscription in Ireland, Premier Asquith, rising, admitted that there had been a regrettable mistake and blunder in recruiting in the early stages, and said that Mr. Redmond's suggestions for filling up with Irishmen the wasted ranks of the gallant Irish division would receive the most careful and sympathetic attention. No man had rendered more constant, loyal, or effective service in recruiting, he asserted, than the Irish leader.

Repudiating the allegation that Dublin Castle was being run by a Unionist administration, the Premier said that it must be remembered that the Government was dealing with a provisional, and, he hoped, a transitory situation. Martial law in the commonly accepted sense was not being applied to Ireland, and if the desired ends could be obtained by different means, nobody would be more anxious to adopt them than the Government. He did not consider it safe, in view of the possible recrudescence of recent events, to dispense with the existing safeguards, but the Government was desirous to revert to normal conditions at the earliest possible moment.

Says Prisoners Are Starving.

Mr. Asquith promised that the Irish prisoners would be liberated at the moment it was considered safe to do so.

Alfred Byrne, a Nationalist, representing a division of Dublin, shouted: "They are starving!"

Any complaints brought to the notice of the Home Secretary, Mr. Asquith said would receive immediate attention. Timothy Healy interrupted, saying: "He [illegible] hardest-hearted jailer we ever had."

"The honorable gentleman," replied the Premier, "knows that that description is not applicable to the Home Secretary. Let him produce his facts."

Mr. Healy shouted:

"It is idle to do so. Let the American Ambassador visit the prison."

"If the American Ambassador will give himself the trouble," responded the Premier, "I shall be most happy. I take nothing back of what I said on my return from my visit to Ireland with regard to the impossibility of forcibly imposing on any part of Ireland a form of government lacking their consent." Nationalist cries of: "What are you doing now?"

In conclusion the Premier said that the atmosphere now existing in Ireland could only be dispersed by an agreed settlement. He believed there was no party, no sane politician in Great Britain, who would not welcome with joy such an agreement and co-operate wholeheartedly therein, and he prayed it might soon be reached.

Mr. Asquith's speech was received with signs of disapproval by the Nationalists.

Joseph Devlin, Nationalist member for West Belfast, regretted that he was unable to congratulate the Prime Minister on a single suggestion toward solving the Irish problem or a single word of sympathy with those endeavoring to preserve the constitutional movement in Ireland. The Government, he said, had handed over Irish affairs to Lord Lansdowne, Major Price, and the editor of The Morning Post, and he suggested that that triumvirate should take over the work of recruiting in Ireland and see whether they would succeed. The Government could get all the men it wanted in Ireland, he added, if home rule were granted.

Lloyd George Admits Mistakes.

David Lloyd George, Secretary for War, said:

"At the most crucial period of recruiting, at the beginning of the war, some stupidities, which at times almost looked like malignance, were perpetrated in Ireland and were beyond belief. It is very difficult to recover a lost opportunity of that kind, where national susceptibilities have been offended and original enthusiasm killed."

Every effort, he continued, was being made to keep Irishmen in Irish regiments, and only in cases of military emergency were Irishmen drafted into non-Irish regiments. He was sorry to say that some of the Irish battalions of English regiments had ceased to be Irish in character.

The total number of recruits from Ireland since the beginning of the war, said the Secretary, was 105,000, or 2½ per cent. of the population, which was very low compared with what had been done by the remainder of the United Kingdom and the Dominions.

Looking at the urgency of the military problem, he hoped that the men of all parties would help Mr. Redmond to their utmost to solve his difficulties and create a better atmosphere in Ireland with regard to recruiting. He desired to see this gallant and warlike people brought back to their original temper at the outbreak of the war. Everybody in England and the men of all parties in Ireland should consider how to remove the causes of injustice, distrust, and suspicion between the two races which rendered it impossible for them to cooperate.

"I believe it can be done," said the Secretary. "Before beginning any controversy about recruiting in Ireland I should like to see that considered. I am making this appeal as Secretary for War because I know how vital it is that everything the empire can do in every quarter should be summoned to our aid in this great struggle. Let us make it easy for Ireland to assist. Let everybody in Great Britain subordinate everything to securing the assistance of this great race. And I make the same appeal to Ireland."

The Rawlinson amendment was adopted by a vote of 303 to 106, thus eliminating the Redmond resolution.

UP-STATE CROWDS CHEER WILSON

brakemen, surrounded the end of his private car, the Mayflower, and cheered him. The President spoke briefly to the trainmen.

Accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Dr. Cary T. Grayson, his private secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, and Colonel E. M. House, the President arrived at the Pennsylvania Station from Long Branch at 12:27 P. M. The party was met by Vance C. McCormick, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and, escorted by Secret Service men and forty uniformed policemen and detectives, entered automobiles in front of the station. The presence of the policemen attracted a large crowd, and when the President was recognized he was cheered. Headed by the Secret Service men the party drove north in Seventh Avenue to Forty-second Street, and then across to the Grand Central Terminal. Traffic was held up at several points to allow the President's car to pass, but few persons recognized him.

A large crowd had gathered in the station in anticipation of seeing the President. The Chief Executive was taken to the Forty-third Street entrance and thence to his private car, which was attached to a ten-car train. A number of trainmen quickly gathered in the pit in the rear of the car and cheered. The President immediately stepped out on the rear platform. The cheering was renewed. It attracted the attention of hundreds of persons in the terminal above, and men and women broke past the cordon of police and reached the lower level.

The President bowed and smiled at the railroad men and grasped oily hands reached up to him. Some one called for a speech, and the President said: "I'm sorry, but I haven't any speech to make."

"You don't have to," yelled a brakeman. "You're elected already."

The President was plainly pleased. Some one shouted: "Three cheers for the man who's for the eight-hour day!"

The cheering this caused had scarcely subsided when a brakeman, J. A. Dalton, climbed up on a rafter alongside the car and shouted:

"Vote for Wilson, scratching Hughes; join the union, pay your dues!"

The President laughed heartily, and the onlookers joined him. Immediately the brakeman broke forth again:

"If Hughes is rotten, Benson's worse; hurrah for Wilson and America first!"

The President raised his hand for silence and, still laughing, said:

"I had not expected to speak to you, but when you fellows come around like this, without any conveniences or facilities, and speak to me, as you have, in apparent appreciation of what we have tried to do for you, it warms my heart and gives me the greatest encouragement."

"You'll find more of us boys all along the line," spoke up a workman, and another chimed in: "Yes, and every one of them is out to get ten votes for Wilson."

Again some one called for three cheers for the President, and they were given with a roar. Standing hat in hand as the train pulled out, the President was visibly affected by the demonstration. Before the train left ex-Governor Glynn and ex-Ambassador Henry Morgenthau elbowed their way through the crowd into the President's car and had a short conference with him.

Chairman McCormick, who had just returned from Chicago, said he told the President that the West was on fire for him and that nothing could stop the conflagration.

"The West now," said Mr. McCormick, "is Wilson mad."

Charles R. Crane, with Mrs. Crane, joined the President here and is making the journey to Chicago with him.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Oct. 18.—Prior to his departure for the West today the President received a visit from William Graves Sharp, American Ambassador to France. The Ambassador later rode with Mr. Wilson as far as New York. It was reported that interference with American mails by the Entente Allies was the principal topic discussed. Mr. Sharp said the President and he talked over the general European situation. He said he intended to leave New York on Saturday on the steamship St. Paul on his way to Paris.

President's Chicago Schedule.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—President Wilson will make three addresses in Chicago tomorrow. He will arrive in the city at 11:50 A. M. and go to a hotel for a brief rest. At 1 P. M. he will address the Press Club at a luncheon. At 2:30 P. M. he will return to the hotel, where he will confer with Senator Thomas J. Walsh, manager of Western Democratic National Headquarters, and other party leaders. At 4 P. M. he will address a non-partisan mass-meeting for women only at the Auditorium. Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, ex-Superintendent of the Chicago Public Schools, will preside and Miss Jane Addams will occupy a seat in a box with Mrs. Wilson.

President Wilson at 8 P. M. will deliver an address at the third annual meeting of the new Citizens' Alliance at the Stockyards Pavilion, where Judge Clarence N. Goodwin will preside. The President will leave Chicago at 11:45 P. M. for the East.

'VOLUNTEERS' OFF ON TOUR.

Wilson Workers, in Autos, Will Visit Many Cities of State.

A band of Wilson workers known as the Wilson Volunteers started from New York City yesterday morning to tour the State in automobiles in the interest of President Wilson's re-election. In the party were Amos Pinchot, Dr. A. J. McKelway, Coroner Timothy Healy, Frederic C. Howe, Norman Hapgood, and Isidor Jacobs of California. Rabbi Stephen S. Wise will join the party at Troy.

The campaigners, fifteen in all, breakfasted at the Yale Club at 5:30 o'clock. Their first stop was at the Isaac G. Johnson foundry at Spuyten Duyvil, where they addressed the workers. The next stop was at Getty Square, Yonkers, where an early morning crowd of workers listened to the orators.

Joyce an Independent Candidate.

A petition for the independent nomination of William H. Joyce, who is seeking election as Assemblyman in the Seventeenth Assembly District, was filed with the Board of Elections yesterday. It contained the signatures of 1,670 voters. Mr. Joyce has been a member of the Republican County Committee of this county for years and represents an element, he says, which is dissatisfied with the methods of the local Republican organization.

MR. HUGHES FINDS MICHIGAN CORDIAL

Makes Hurried Trip Through State After Record Night Run from Iowa.

FOR GOVERNMENT IN OPEN

Candidate Also Stresses Eight-Hour and Peace Issues—Gift of Lincoln Cane Provides Text.

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 18.—His promise to "conduct government in the open" at Washington, if elected President, was expanded to-day by Charles E. Hughes while campaigning in Michigan.

"I do not propose that any mysterious influences shall brood over the lobbies of the Capitol," he declared. "I propose that we shall have have government in the open, in accordance with the principles of our institutions, and that we shall put into effect the policies now needed to upbuild our prosperity and maintain our institutions.'

The candidate reached Grand Rapids an hour and a half late. He found a big crowd at the station, and the Coliseum, where he spoke, was jammed. When he was introduced Mr. Hughes said:

"I am very sorry that we were delayed in reaching Grand Rapids. I have no doubt that you were 'watchfully waiting.' I know I was."

Mr. Hughes took up the charge made by Democratic campaigners that a vote for him would mean a vote for war.

"I grant you," he said, "that a vote for me does mean a vote for the maintenance of American rights; but it is a great fallacy to suppose that the maintenance of American rights involves a surrender of the ideals of peace or a disregard of the vast importance of peace."

A cane said to have been made from a walnut rail split by Abraham Lincoln and by him presented to D. S. Walbridge in 1856 was presented to Mr. Hughes at Kalamazoo by Dallas Boudoman, who presided at the meeting there. From this presentation Mr. Hughes drew a lesson, declaring that, had Lincoln been guilty of the vacillation which he charges against the present Administration, there would have been no nation.

In developing his answer to the cry of "invisible government" Mr. Hughes used these words:

"Invisible Government."

"I do not propose abuses. When we talk in criticism of what has been done by the Administration, they say, not in reply to what we charge, 'Oh, you stand for invisible government.' What an extraordinary assertion! Why, before the Administration now in power was thought of I was fighting the battles against invisible government, as every American knows.

"If there is any one who has won the right to be regarded as a champion of the people against invisible government, I have won that right. And public service means nothing at all in this country if that can be taken away in the course of a political campaign by general observations as to invisible government. There was no invisible government in New York when I was at the head of the executive department there. There will be none in Washington if I am head of the executive department there.

"We propose government in the open, government for all the people, according to the intent of the Constitution and the statutes, and we propose to inaugurate policies which will secure our peace, secure our prosperity and give us a foundation upon which we can erect the desired fabric of social justice."

Referring again to Colonel E. M. House and John Lind, who have been stamped by Republicans as secret emissaries of President Wilson, he said:

"I believe in government according to the intent of our Constitutional system. I believe in government through the recognized officers of government, acting in the open, in accordance with the professions upon which they obtained office. I am opposed to any subversion of the principles of our institutions. I am opposed to abdicating official or moral authority on the demand of force, either of labor or of capital. I am opposed to every sort of influence which can change the proper current of our public affairs."

Delayed by Freight Wrecks.

Two freight wrecks, one near Gibson, Ind.; the other a few miles east of Niles, Mich., delayed the Hughes special and it was two hours late reaching Kalamazoo, where a meeting was scheduled to be held in the Armory. Thousands of people waited for the nominee, and the big building was filled.

The train had made a record run between Sioux City, Iowa, and Chicago, covering the 514 miles in twelve hours during the night, three hours under the running time of the fastest regular trains. The first news of trouble came when it was dashing along just west of Gibson. The train was flagged, and it was necessary to make a detour by way of East Chicago. This lost one hour. Later the train was flagged again and forced to run slowly for several miles. A freight train of thirteen cars had been tossed from the rails near Niles by a broken wheel. In neither wreck was any one seriously injured.

In his addresses today Mr. Hughes continued his attack on the Adamson legislation. Mr. Hughes came to Michigan, looked upon as a Republican stronghold, because of reports about the effect that the message of the Adamson bill had had on the labor union vote. He found his audiences cordial and responsive, and, as a result of his efforts during the day, the leaders feel that any danger of Michigan slipping is past.

808,728 VOTERS IN CHICAGO.

304,261 Women Help to Exceed New York Registration.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Chicago today has more qualified voters than any city in the country, the total of men and women on the registration books being 808,728, or more than 70,000 in excess of New York's registration. Complete returns today from the registration yesterday show that 504,467 men and 304,261 women are enrolled.

Political managers of all parties today expressed surprise at the big woman registration. If returns from outside of Chicago show the same enthusiasm among women to register as in this city it is estimated that 500,000 of that sex will be entitled to vote in Illinois on Nov. 7.

The total registration of men and women in the entire State is expected to be more than 1,900,000.

O'LEARY CONTINUES ATTACKS ON PRESIDENT

Pro-German Irishman Says His Mail Is Opened and Threatens to "Expose" Mr. Wilson.

Jeremiah A. O'Leary, to whom President Wilson sent his famous telegram saying he would be mortified to receive the political support of him and his kind, continued his attacks on the President last night before an audience of 2,500 that filled Prospect Hall, Prospect Avenue, near Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, and showed its appreciation by throwing hats into the air, cheering, and climbing on chairs. Mr. O'Leary was to have spoken on "The Failure of Our Democratic Congressmen to Serve the Best Interests of the American People," but he ignored his subject, and in the course of a bitter arraignment of the President he accused him of countenancing the tampering with mails, and threatened to "expose him" if he permitted the practice to continue.

Mr. O'Leary referred to the telegram of the President and reverted to this topic more than once, apparently seeking to justify his own message to Mr. Wilson to which the President's was a reply. He mentioned it first when he said:

"When I sent my telegram to Wilson I did not expect any reply. Thousands of communications are sent to him without eliciting a response. But the name of Jeremiah A. O'Leary was too much for him.

"As I was about to leave my office tonight I received from the hands of the postman some late mail. One envelope seemed insecurely fastened and I found that the gum of the flap was still moist as though it had been steamed open. This is the kind of freedom that the Administration of Woodrow Wilson has handed to the free people of the United States, and I want to serve notice on Mr. Wilson that if he doesn't leave my private mail alone I'll expose him."

The audience tossed hats into the air and cheered as O'Leary, who was worked up to high pitch, shouted this declaration, and it cheered again when the speaker denounced The Brooklyn Eagle, which had attacked him, and declared his belief it might be "one of the eighteen newspapers controlled in the United States by Lord Northcliff."

"Apparently," he continued, "Mr. Wilson had his eye on another proposition. He saw the name of Jeremiah O'Leary, and he calculated that was a good name to shoot at. It was strictly Irish. It was strictly Catholic, and in order to make a strong appeal to certain elements in this country who are, unfortunately, obsessed by religious and racial bigotry, he sent his telegram in which he used the words 'you and your kind.' In using these words he struck at the Irish race and he struck at the American Catholics. He struck at the backbone of his own party."

The meeting was held under the auspices of O'Leary's American Truth Society."

RABBIS DENOUNCE LONDON.

Dr. Drachman Says Socialist Has Never Been Identified with Judaism.

Rabbi Rudolph Grossman, President of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers, and Rabbi Bernard Drachman, President of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations, representing the reform and orthodox branches of Judaism, respectively, issued statements yesterday denouncing Meyer London for his attack Tuesday night upon ex-Judge Leon Sanders, his opponent for Congress in the Twelfth District. Dr. Joseph Silverman of Temple Emanu-El also took occasion to warn the Jews of the city against the claim of Mr. London that he represented them.

"Meyer London has never been identified with Judaism," said Dr. Drachman. "He has never been identified specifically with Jewish communal work. I understand that Mr. London made a personal attack on his opponent, ex-Judge Leon Sanders, as a 'cheap Tammany kosher-ham sandwich politician.' He was not justified in such an attack. Mr. Sanders is prominently identified with Jewish work. He is above reproach of such a man as the Socialist, Meyer London."

Rabbi Grossman said Mr. London's statement made him "unfit to be a representative of this nation in Congress." Dr. Silverman said that the Jews were not responsible for what London has said or done.

"The Governor is against the league system. Why doesn't he say so? Carter is against it. Why doesn't he say so? I ask publicly here and now of Superintendent Carter to come out in the open and say where he stands. Does he believe in the old system at Clinton, the sentimental system at Great Meadow, or in the system at Sing Sing and Auburn prisons? I demand an aswer in the name of the people of the State of New York.

"The Governor says he has always stood back of me. That is not true. He promised me in November, 1914, at his home in New York that he would give me a fair field to try my 'experiment' at Sing Sing. Has he done it? I will tell you later in this campaign of other promises he broke.

"I ask the Governor tonight to tell the people that he has not used the prisons for political purposes; I ask him to say whether he has kept the promise he made to me, when he told me that he was determined to get rid of Riley and that the man who succeeded him would back me up; I ask him to give the public his definition of prison reform. And when he does that I'll give him some more questions.

"I need no other proof of what Sing Sing has done than to see here on the platform and around me men who went to Sing Sing as pickpockets, burglars, all sorts of criminals, who are now leading useful lives, proud of the fact that they are graduates of Sing Sing. The old way was to hide in shame when you got out of prison, a worse man than when you went in. I thank God for the new way. When a man thanks God he has been to Sing Sing, I know the work will never die."

Mr. Osborne made a brief address at the Harris Theatre yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of the play "Under Sentence," a prison study.

RUSSIANS CLOSE IN ON HALICZ AGAIN

Great Frontal Drive Carries Them to Within Three Miles of the City.

RAILROAD UNDER THEIR FIRE

Communications with Lemberg Threatened—Armies Locked from Stokhod River to Rumania.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—"A sanguinary frontal battle is proceeding three miles north of the Halicz bridgehead, Galicia, in the angle formed by the junction of the Narayuvka and Gnila Lipa Rivers," says Reuter's Petrograd Correspondent.

"The railway, running northwesterly from Halicz to Jidatcheff, is under the Russian fire and the enemy's communications between Halicz and Lemberg are threatened."

In general, fighting continues without abatement from the Stokhod River in Galicia to the Rumanian frontier, as is indicated by the Russian and Teuton official reports today.

Says the communication issued by the Russian War Office:

Western front—Southeast of the little town of Ozoriany the enemy bombarded our trenches with asphyxiating shells and twice attacked our detachments. He was repelled by our fire.

North of Korytniza fierce and obstinate fighting continues. All the enemy counterattacks were repelled. Colonel Adjiev, the gallant commander of one of our infantry regiments, who had just returned to the front after having been seriously wounded, was again wounded in both legs as he led his gallant regiment to the attack.

North of Ketropatnika our detachments captured by surprise enemy advanced posts.

Near Belshovtse the enemy fiercely counterattacked. These attacks were repelled by our fire.

South of Korosmezo and near Dorna-Watra (Carpathians) all the enemy attacks were repelled.

In the Carpathians snow is falling and there is fog at some places.

The Berlin official statement says that on the western bank of the Narayuvka River, southwest of Herbutov, in Galicia, Bavarian troops yesterday stormed a Russian point of support and took 350 prisoners and twelve machine guns. It follows:

Army Group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—After the failure with heavy losses of strong infantry attacks against our front west of Lutsk (in Volhynia) the enemy limited his efforts there to spirited artillery fire. Infantry which attacked an Austro-Hungarian position near Zwyzyn, northwest of Zalocze, was driven back to its trenches, with heavy losses, by our fire.

On the western bank of the Narayuvka, southwest of Herbutov, Bavarian troops, after effective artillery preparation, stormed a Russian point of support, and brought back two officers, 350 men, and twelve machine gnus.

Army Group of Archduke Charles Francis—On the River Bystritsa, Solotvina, an attack made against our advanced position failed.

In the Carpathians Ludova Height has been under a strong bombardment. Attacks in the Kirlibaba sector were repulsed.

The Austrian official version of the operations issued today reads:

East of Kirlibaba (Carpathians) our troops repulsed several Russian attacks. On the Bystritsa at Sulotvina (Galicia) there were outpost engagements. Northeast of Bajszowce, on the Narayuvka, Bavarian troops mastered a strong Russian vantage point, taking two officers and 350 men and twelve machine guns. On the upper Sereth an enemy attempt was nipped in the bud.

In Volhynia the situation is quiet.

TIMES MAN FLIES OVER FRENCH LINES

tre—the trenches proper and the dirt thrown up on each side of them.

In that labyrinth of interlocking lines I am unable to distinguish the French and the German trenches, but it looks as if the German infantry were clinging stubbornly to at least the flank of La Maisonette toward the Somme, hidden from direct view of the French artillery observers. The French shells dropping on the tip of the ridge indicate that the French, too, share this view.

From my airy observation post I am unable to estimate how closely the trenches are together. They seem only a hand-breath apart at some points; at others they seem to merge and melt into one another. I had been told by a staff officer that the French and Germans, clinging there at La Maisonette, were from sixty to a hundred yards apart.

Now my pilot, at my urgent request, takes me for a long joy ride deeper into France, still at 5,000 feet and speeding at seventy-five miles an hour. With typical Teutonic care he now minds his business exclusively, taking no chances. He no longer shuts off his motor to volplane and call my atttention to interesting features of the battlefield. He now gets the last ounce of power out of his big engine as we rock in a stiff sidewise breeze over the French lines.

I think I recognize Flaucourt and Bethincourt by the aid of my staff map, but then I lose all sense of locality. I pass over trenches apparently forming the French second line, then the French third line.

I have been scanning the sky all along with interest for French or English fighting planes and wondering why no enemy fliers attacked us. I see not one French machine, but likewise no other German aeroplane over the Somme front. The explanation is the bad flying weather, thick air, a drab sky and low-hanging misty clouds. Hence all scout and fighting fliers on both sides are enjoying a holiday except the pilots of American correspondents. Five thousand feet would generally be dangerously low altitude for circling back of the French lines, were we not flying just below the clouds with which the yellow-gray German battle biplane blends inconspicuously, so that, while enjoying a perfect view of the battleground of the Somme, we do not attract the attention of the resting French fliers. This, too, was why the woolly shrapnel clouds come nowhere near us.

After a wide detour we cut a magnificent arrow-straight chaussée, the famous old Roman Road. And now my pilot thinks he has shown me enough. He cannot conscientiously expose himself and his machine further to the danger of French anti-aircraft guns and the possibility of French fighting fliers being goaded, after all, by our foolhardiness and "freshness" into coming after us, and withal for no military necessity or benefit to the German army.

The sight of the little round white tents of the French flying camp reminds me uncomfortably that in a battle in the air THE TIMES correspondent would be an undesirable partner, owing to his ignorance of machine-gun manipulation, even if conscientious neutrality did not prevent his trying to work the gun at his right hand, even for self-defense. By pulling a lever I can and do, however, rotate the whole machine-gun turret, including my motor cycle saddle seat, so that I can sweep the battlefield with my eyes in all directions. But I am nevertheless relieved when the pilot starts a strategic air retreat over the oft-mentioned hamlets and villages in French and German hands, and then makes straight tracks for the home flying field. There I land safely, reasonably convinced of German air supremacy in the West, and to the no small relief of the staff officers responsigle for my safe delivery in Berlin, who, owing to the long absence of our biplane, had feared that we had been forced to make a landing within the French lines and had sent up a Fokker to look for us.

Lieutenant Bendert, the brilliant Fokker fighter, had spotted us and swooped down on us like a hawk during the last lap from a height of a thousand feet, giving a hair-raising exhibition of Fokker evolutions in an air battle, looping the loop above us, overhauling our slower double-decker and striking like a bird of prey sure of an easy victim. Then, when it seemed if he would be in collision with us, he escaped by a sudden "dip of death," climbing again with amazing speed at the sharpest angle and repeating his sham attack, looping the loop three or four times in succession.

Later from the ground, while the Associated Press correspondent was permitted, after THE TIMES correspondent's first successful flight, to go up over the Somme front, I watched the daredevil Fokker fighter do four successive loops, firing his machine gun continuously, even while flying head down. It seemed as if hmuan mastery of a flying machine could go no further.

Later, at the headquarters of the German Army on the Somme, an interesting insight into the logical workings of the German military mind was afforded me, when the Commander-in-Chief on the Somme asked me if I had no hesitation about going up in a German biplane over the Somme front.

"You might have been attacked by a French fighting plane," Gen. von Gallwitz said soberly, considering the consequences.

I tried to explain that that would have made a splendid story.

"But, suppose you had been shot down," he persisted.

"THE TIMES Paris correspondent would have sent the story," I explained.

"If you had been forced to land and had fallen alive into the hands of the French, they would have backed you up against a wall and shot you, Gen. von Gallwitz said with conviction. "You were a civilian, in civilian clothes, and that is the law of war."

I suggested that war corresponding, even in a German aeroplane, could not be construed as a military action, or even as a franctireur offense.

"The French would probably have trumped up something against you," he arguel; and I had difficulty in convincing him that I had no fear of the French doing anything so rash as to shoot American correspondents with the German armies who might happen to fall into their hands from the clouds.

JUTLAND BATTLE TOLD BY KIPLING

Reef Channel. It looks then as if, when we lost sight of the enemy in the smoke screen and darkness, he had changed his course and broken for home astern of our main fleet, and whether that was a sound manoeuvre or otherwise he and the still flows of the North Sea alone can tell.

The Confusion of Battle.

But how is the layman to give any coherent account of the affair where a whole country's coastline was the background to a battle covering geographical degrees? Records give the impression of illimitable gray waters, nickeled on their uncertain horizons with the smudge and blur of ships sparkling with fury against ships hidden under the curse of the world. One sees these distances maddeningly obscured by walking mists and weak fogs or wiped out by layers of funnel and gun smoke, and realizes how, at the pace the ships were going, anything might be stumbled upon in the haze or charge out of it when it lifted. One comprehends too how the far-off glare of a great vessel afire might be reported as local fire on the nearby enemy or vice versa, how a silhouette caught for an instant in a shaft of pale light let down from the low sky might be fatally difficult to identify until too late.

But added to all these inevitable confusions and misreckonings of time, shape, and distance, charges at every angle of squadrons through and across other squadrons, sudden shifts of centres of fights, and even swifter restorations, wheelings, sweepings, and regroupments such as accompany the paassage across space of colliding universes, then blanket the whole inferno with darkness of night at full speed and see what you can make of it.

A little time after the action began to heat up between our battle cruisers and the enemy's, eight or ten of our destroyers opened the ball for their branch of the service by breaking up an attack of enemy light cruisers and fifteen destroyers. Of these they accounted for at least two destroyers, some think more, and drove the others back on their battle cruisers. This scattered that fight a good deal over the sea.

Three of our destroyers held on for the enemy's battle fleet who came down on them at ranges which eventually grew less than three thousand yards. Our people ought to have been lifted off the seas bodily, but they managed to fire a couple of torpedoes apiece while the range was diminishing.

They had no illusions, says one of the three, speaking of her second shot, which she loosed at fairly close range. This torpedo was fired because it was considered very unlikely that the ship would escape disablement before another opportunity was offered.

"But still they lived. Three destroyers against all a battle cruiser fleet's quick-firers, as well as the fire of a batch of enemy destroyers at 600 yards. And they were thankful for small mercies.

"The position being favorable," a third torpedo was fired from each while they yet floated. At 2,500 yards one destroyer was hit somewhere in the vitals and swerved badly across her next astern, which "was obliged to alter her course to avoid collision, thereby failing to fire a fourth torpedo." Then that next astern "observed a signal for the destroyers' recall" and went back to report to her flotilla Captain—alone.

Of her two companions one was "badly hit and remained stopped between the lines." The other "remained stopped, but was afloat when seen." Ships that remain stopped are liable to be rammed or sunk by methodical gunfire.

That was perhaps fifty minutes' work put in before there was any really vicious edge to the action, and it did not steady the nerves of the enemy battle cruisers any more than another attack made by another detachment of guns of ours.

"What does one do when one passes a ship that remains stopped?" I asked of a youth who had experience.

"Nothing special. They cheer and you cheer back. One doesn't think about it till afterward. You see, it may be your luck in another minute."

There were many other torpedo attacks in all parts of the battle that misty afternoon, including a quaint episode of an enemy light cruiser who "looked as if she were trying to torpedo one of our battle cruisers while the latter was particularly engaged." A destroyer of ours—a job which required delicacy—was picking her way back at thirty knots through batches of enemy battle cruisers and light cruisers with the idea of attaching herself to the nearest destroyer flotilla and making herself useful.

It occurred to her that as she "was in a most advantageous position for repelling the enemy's destroyers endeavoring to attack she could not do better than to remain on the engaged bow of our battle cruiser." So she remained and considered things. There was the enemy battle cruiser squadron in the offing, a batch of enemy light cruisers ahead of that squadron, and the weather was thickish and deceptive. She sighted an enemy light cruiser, class uncertain, only a few thousand yards away, and "decided to attack her in order to frustrate her firing torpedoes at our battle fleet." This in case the authorities should think that the light cruiser wished to buy rubber. So she fell upon the light cruiser with every gun she had at between 2,000 and 4,000 yards, and secured a number of hits, just the same as at target practice.

While thus occupied she sighted out of the mist the squadron of enemy battle cruisers that had worried her earlier in the afternoon. Leaving the light cruiser she closed to what she considered reasonable distance of the newcomers and let them have within, as she thought, both her torpedoes. She possessed an active acting sub Lieutenant who, though officers of that rank think otherwise, is not very far removed from the ordinary midshipman of the type one sees in tow of relatives at the Army and Navy Stores. He sat astride one of the tubes to make quite sure things were in order. One torpedo passed quite reasonably close to the light cruiser whom she had been hammering so faithfully till the larger game appeared.

Meantime the sub-Lieutenant was exploring what damage had been done by a big shell. He discovered that only one of the two torpedoes had left the tubes and, observing the enemy light cruiser beam on he fired when the sights came on, but at that very moment a big shell hit the destroyer on the side and there was a tremendous escape of steam.

"Believing that both her tubes had been fired, the destroyer turned away at greatly reduced speed."

He fired the providential remainder at her and it hit her below the conning tower and well and truly exploded, as was witnessed by himself, the Sub-Lieutenant Commander, leading signalman and several other ratings.

Luck continued to hold. The Acting Sub-Lieutenant further reported that "we still had three torpedoes left and at the same time drew my attention to the enemy's line of battleships." They rather looked as if they were coming down with the intent to assault, so the Sub-Lieutenant fired the rest of the torpedoes, which at least started off correctly from the shell-shaken tubes and must have crossed the enemy's line. When torpedoes turn up among a squadron they upset the steering and distract the attention of all concerned. Then the destroyer judged it time to take stock of her injuries. Among other minor defects, she could neither steam, steer, nor signal.

Mark how virtue is rewarded. Another of our destroyers an hour or so previous had been knocked clean out of action before she had done anything by a big shell which gutted the boiler room and started an oil fire. That is a drawback to oil.

The damaged destroyer crawled out between the battleships till she reached an area of comparative calm and repaired the damage. She says: "The fire having been dealt with it was found that a mat kept the stokehold dry. My only trouble now being lack of speed. I looked round for useful employment and saw a destroyer in great difficulties, so closed in on her."

Aiding a Paralytic Destroyer.

She proved to be our paralytic friend of the intermittent torpedo tubes, and a grateful ship she was when her crippled sister, but still good for a few knots, offered her a tow "under very trying conditions, with large enemy ships approaching."

So the two set off together, crippled and paralytic, with heavy shells falling around them, as sociable as a couple of lame hounds. The cripple worked up to twelve knots, and the weather grew vile and the tow parted. The paralytic by this time had raised steam in a boiler or two and made shift to get along slowly on her own, the cripple hirpling beside her till the paralytic could not make any more headway in that rising sea, and the cripple had to tow her once more.

Once more the tow parted, so they tied the paralytic up rudely and effectively with a cable round her after bollards and gun, presumably because of the strained forward bulkheads, and hauled her stern-first through the heavy seas at continually reduced speeds, doubtful of their position, unable to sound because of the seas, and much pestered by the wind, which backed without warning, till at last they made land and turned into the hospital appointed for brave wounded ships.

Everybody speaks well of the cripple. Her name crops up in several reports with such compliments as men of the sea use when they see good work. She herself speaks well of her Lieutenant, who, as the executive officer, "took charge of the fire, and towing arrangements in a very creditable manner," and also of Tom Battye and Thomas Kerr, engine room artificer and stoker petty officer, who were in the stokehold at the time of the shell striking and performed cool and prompt decisive action.

Have you ever noticed that men who do homeric deeds often describe them in homeric language?

Roughly, very roughly speaking, our destroyers enjoyed three phases of prompt and decisive action, the first a period of daylight attacks from 4 to 6 P. M., such as the one I just described, while the battle was young and the light fairly good on the afternoon of May 31; the second toward dark, when the light had lessened and the enemy was more uneasy and I think in more scattered formation; third, when the darkness had fallen and the destroyers had been strung out astern, with orders to help the enemy home, which they did all night as the opportunity offered.

One cannot say whether the day or night work was more desperate. From private advices the young gentlemen concerned seem to have functioned with efficiency either way. As one of them said:

"After a bit, you see, we were all pretty much on our own and you could really find out what your ship could do."

I will tell you later of a piece of night work not with out merit.

WHITMAN TAKES UP THE FINANCE ISSUE

Attributes Direct Tax to Glynn and Calls It a "Brazen Episode."

DEFENDS HIGHWAY WORK

Department "Never in Better Hands" He Says—Addresses Audience at Vaudeville Show.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Oct. 18.—Before an audience of nearly 3,500 persons in the Elmwood Music Hall tonight, Governor Whitman put the responsibility for the direct tax of $19,500,000 which was imposed by the Legislature last year, on the Democratic administration which preceded him under Governor Glynn.

Asserting that the direct tax was the logical sequence of conditions which Governor Glynn and four years of Tammany Hall had created in the State, he said that the Glynn finance plan was "one of the most brazen episodes of deceit and falsification in the history of the State."

"I am very glad," said Governor Whitman, "that Tammany Hall and its friends in their efforts to cover up four years of failure in the State government, have chosen this issue as their battle ground, for nowhere is Tammany more vulnerable than in its record in State finances.

"I regard Governor's Glynn's connection with this episode more discreditable to him than to any other representative of his party who had a share in it, because, as a former Controller of the State, he had intimate knowledge of the machinery of State finances and could interpret conditions better than any of his Democratic predecessors or associates."

The Governor asserted that Mr. Glynn realized the financial crisis in the State and showed his intention of meeting it when on March 27, 1914, he called for the passage of a direct tax bill for 1915. Continuing, Governor Whitman said:

"The Legislature responded to the message, and promptly gave the Governor a direct tax bill for his approval. The Legislature adjourned three days later and reassembled on May 4. In little more than a month it appears that the entire financial condition of the State had changed. The estimate of indirect revenues was not increased; fixed obligations of the State had not been lessened; no departments had been abolished; no offices had been cut out; there was no indication that the State was to proceed other than in the past; yet the Governor, of whose financial wisdom his party had boasted, suddenly saw a light, and on April 23 he vetoed the direct tax bill his emergency message had produced, and he laid claim to the first fiscal year since 1910 that a direct tax had not been levied.

"From then on he threw his campaign of finance reform to the winds and proceeded to enact a plan of repudiation of State obligations which can be accounted for only on the theory that he was suffering from a mental panic at the possible consequences to his political future if the public learned, through an honest appropriation plan, what four years of Tammany had done to the finances of the State."

Mr. Glynn's program, he said, was to limit his appropriations, regardless of present or future liabilities, to $47,000,000 and to "accomplish the feat" of bringing his appropriations down to this amount "Governor Glynn was obliged to cut down and gouge proper appropriation demands to a total of over $11,000,000." Among deficiencies which he said were thus created Governor Whitman mentioned $203,102.61 taxes due from the State to County Treasurers, which he said was met by the Republican Legislature of 1915.

Passing to a discussion of the State finances under his own administration, the Governor said that the maintenance appropriations for 1916, totaling $41,869,000, included $823,000, the excess cost for National Guard mobilization, and $707,000 for Constitutional Convention printing and advertising.

"Without these appropriations the maintenance total for 1916 would have been approximately $40,800,000," Governor Whitman said. "This comparison demonstrates the fact that after meeting the conditions created by the Glynn finance plan of 1915 by an appropriation for these purposes of $46,309,000 it was possible to establish approximately a normal maintenance level in the year 1916 with a reduction of $5,440,000, if we assume the National Guard and the Constitutional Convention items to be extraordinary expenses, or by $4,440,000 if we accept them as a normal expense for the present year.

"This answers the Tammany charge that the Republican Administration reached an inflated maintenance appropriation level in 1915 with the Glynn deficiencies as an excuse, and maintained that level in 1916. The appropriation total of the Republican Administration of 1915 was $63,997,000, of which we have seen more than $11,000,000 represented deficiencies inherited from Glynn. The increase of the sinking fund obligation for 1915 over 1914 was in round figures $2,000,000."

Governor Whitman made speeches today at Bath, Cohocton, Dansville, Mount Morris, Geneseo, Leroy, and Batavia. He made two speeches in the Elmwood Music Hall in this city and addressed members of Polish societies at Dom Polski Hall. He covered the counties of Steuben, Livingston, Genesee and Erie.

There was a mistake in the schedule which the State Committee had made for the Governor's tour today, and the result was that the party arrived in most of the towns from half an hour to an hour ahead of time. In Bath there was nobody in the theatre to receive him, and the crowd was called to the County Courthouse by the tolling of bell. A grand larceny case was on trial, but Judge Cheney called a recess, and then the crowd settled back to hear what Governor Whitman had to say. At Batavia in the local theatre a vaudeville show was interrupted; but the audience acquiesced readily in the addition of the Governor to their bill.

At Bath Governor Whitman spoke of the Highways Department, on which point Judge Seabury attacked him yesterday. He said:

"The Highway Department was never in better hands. We have been in office nearly two years. In 1913 the expense of the maintenance of highways in the State of New York was $1,040 per mile. In 1916 the average expense was $635 per mile. It shows, does it not, that one of two things was true, either that the money was being wasted or the money was being stolen, and it was your money."

William M. Calder, Republican candidate for Senator, spoke on the platform with the Governor in Buffalo.

"The President is a Southern man," Mr. Calder said. "Most of his Cabinet are Southern men. The Speaker of the house and the Chairman of every important committee save one are Southern men. Can you wonder that legislation is in favor of the South?"

SEABURY ANSWERS RIVAL'S CHALLENGE

Says Whitman, to Find an Incompetent, Should Gaze Into a Looking Glass.

CALLS HIM A REACTIONARY

Workmen Cheer Candidate in Republican Counties—Big Rally Held in Saratoga.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Samuel Seabury, carrying his fight on Governor Whitman into the Republican counties of Saratoga, Washington, and Warren today, attacked the Governor as a "reactionary" and "an incompetent official." Speaking for the most part to audiences of workingmen, the Democratic candidate charged Governor Whitman with wastefulness and maladministration.

Mr. Seabury told more than 3,000 persons in Convention Hall here tonight that Governor Whitman had co-operated with leading reactionaries in both parties to urge the adoption of the proposed Constitution submitted a year ago. He charged that in this Constitution the abolition of the Department of Foods and Markets as a separate department was provided for, although Governor Whitman now pretended to be in favor of the work of the department.

"Governor Whitman last night went so far as to challenge me to point to a single incompetent and inefficient official connected with his administration," Mr. Seabury said. "Why, my friends, that is the easiest thing in the world to do! If Governor Whitman will look into the looking glass in the morning he will see an incompetent and inefficient representative of his own administration.

"So far as Goveror Whitman stands for anything except re-election, he stands for the application of ractionary principles to the Government of this State. That has been conclusively shown by his advocacy of the proposed Constitution, which was submitted to the people a year ago and overwhelmingly repudiated by them. That Constitution was framed by the most distinguished advocates of reaction that could be found in the State of New York. Not only were the foremost reactionaries of the Republican Party selected to sit in that convention, but they had the active co-operation of the leading reactionaries of the Democratic Party. Together they produced a Constitution the provisions of which were so odious and offensive to the people of the State as to meet with overwhelming defeat.

Cheered by Working Men.

Groups of railroad men and mill hands turned out at every stop today, wearing Wilson buttons, and cheered ex-Justice Seabury's praise of the President. His campaign tour today took him fifty miles by automobile for cross-roads speeches and hand-shaking gatherings in the smaller settlements. Three speeches were made to the employes of large paper mills.

The Democratic candidate received friendly greetings throughout the day. There were several hundred railroad employes at the first meeting at Mechanicsville. Mr. Seabury spoke to them on workmen's compensation and the achievements of the national Administration. Others turned out at Fort Edward and Ballston. At Hudson Falls there were 200 mill hands in the gathering.

The noon meeting was held at Glens Falls. There Mr. Seabury elaborated his pledge to take the prison system out of politics.

"Warden Osborne's purpose was good," he said. "He was not trying to build up a political machine. He was not trying to get rich by the plunder of the unfortunate inmates of the prison. He was not trying to sell land for a prison site to the State. He was not trying to get a contract to furnish supplies for the prison. Osborne's motive, at least, whether his theory was sound or not, was good.

"Now, my friends, is it right that your prison system should be used for partisan and political purposes? Governor Whitman says he has not used any office for partisan and political purposes, yet the Warden of Sing Sing prison ought to know. He ought to know whether Governor Whitman made promises to him and broke those promises. He ought to know whether Governor Whitman aided or obstructed him.

"What a shame it is that we should stoop to using the prison and those unfortunates that are incarcerated there for the protection of society and for their own good, for partisan and political purposes!"

After the Glens Falls meeting Mr. Seabury visited the plant of the Imperial Wall Paper Company, where he addressed practically all of the 350 men. He spoke against the Stivers bill, giving the Governor power to conscript men for the National Guard in times of peace and promised if elected to urge the repeal of the law. He later addressed 150 men at the Standard Wall Paper plant. Then he left by automobile for Saratoga, stopping on the way at Corinth to speak to 300 workers of the International Pulp and Paper Company.

Attacks Hughes's Candidacy.

In touching on national issues Mr. Seabury declared at Fort Edward that "there is not the shadow of an excuse for the existence in the political arena of the Republican candidate for President."

Huston Thompson, an Assistant United States Attorney General from Washington, accompanied the candidate in the absence of William F. McCombs, and spoke in behalf of the national administration.

Tomorrow's tour will begin with a speech at Remsen and end with an evening meeting at Watertown.

BETTING SLUMP IN WALL ST.

10 to 8 Offered on Hughes—Wilson Men Stand for 10 to 7.

Election betting seemed to be on the wane in Wall Street yesterday. Hughes followers were offering 10 to 8, with most of the Wilson money holding off for 10 to 7. There was some betting by men who placed wagers at the odds prevailing earlier in the season and who saw a chance for profit in hedging at the better price laid on the Democrats yesterday.

Estimates were made that $15,000 was wagered yesterday at 10 to 8 and 10 to 7. Edward McQuade reported that he had placed $3,000 on Hughes against $2,100 of Wilson money. There were no takers for an offer of 10 to 7 that Hughes would carry his own State. An uptown bookmaker is said to hold $10,000 which he is willing to place on Hughes at 10 to 8. Whitman backers were willing to give 10 to 8, with the Seabury supporters asking the Wilson odds of 10 to 7.

THE RISING TIDE

By MARGARET DELAND

The Chicago Herald says:

"Here is an unusual novel, strong, thoughtful, wise, farseeing, sympathetic. In another decade, when the acuter problems of yesterday and today shall have attained less poignant perspective, it may be even called great."

The San Francisco Bulletin says:

"The heroine of this story is the fearless, independent girl of to-day, who has little reverence for the things once held sacred. . . . The novel is captivating in its humanness, containing many exquisite comedy touches and some character-drawing of exceptional subtlety."

'WE WILL WIN BIG,' M'CORMICK ASSERTS

Western Tour Shows Him Wilson Landslide Is Coming, Democratic Chairman Says.

TELLS OF G. O. P. COLLAPSE

Michigan, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Indiana, Missouri, and Ohio Are No Longer Doubtful, He Declares.

Vance C. McCormick, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, returned from Chicago yesterday, where he had been in consultation with Western leaders, and had received reports on conditions in the Midwestern States. He said he had gone over the situation in the so-called doubtful States carefully, and was now prepared to predict a landslide. In this prediction he was joined by several National Committeemen.

"When I left New York for Chicago," said Mr. McCormick, "it was with a feeling that we were going to win this election, and now, after having interviewed our Western managers and conferred with National Committeemen and State Chairmen in the Middle West, I know we are going to win and win big."

The Chairman said the reports he had received while in Chicago sounded almost too good to be true.

"The Republican campaign has collapsed in many States," he asserted, "and it is on the verge of collapse in others. The Wilson sentiment is growing in volume and strength among all classes and in all districts. Some of the reports seemed almost incredible, but they were accompanied by facts and figures of unquestionable reliability and clothed in circumstances that left no doubt as to their authenticity and accuracy.

"The situation in Michigan is truly wonderful. I talked with Judge Connolly, the National Committeeman, and State Chairman Stevenson. The Michigan Progressive organization en masse has come over to the President and is supporting him vigorously and enthusiastically. In the County of Wayne, wherein Detroit is situated, the tide is running irresistibly toward Wilson. Detroit normally is Republican by 20,000, but today the indications are that Wilson will carry the city by from 15,000 to 20,000 plurality. In the agricultural districts of the State the current is running the same way. Republican farmers of years' standing are coming out daily for Wilson, and the Republican organization is unable to check the stampede.

"The State of Wisconsin is not doubtful. It is not debatable. It is Democratic, and Democratic by a big plurality. National Committeeman Martin, who is informed as to conditions in every voting precinct in the State and is familiar with the sentiment upon which this condition is based, hasn't a doubt as to the result. He believes it is to be a Wilson landslide. The Republican organization in Wisconsin is all 'shot to pieces' and its leaders are discouraged.

"Nebraska is in fine shape, notwithstanding the activity of Mr. Hughes in that State. He spent three days in Nebraska and was cordially greeted, but he didn't make any votes, nor did he check the strength of the tide that is running against him.

"Indiana and Missouri are safely Democratic, but in these States the Republicans are making a heroic fight born of desperation. My reports, however, are encouraging and satisfactory, and our leaders have no fear as to the result.

"It is 'all over but the shouting' in Ohio. It is a question there only of the size of the President's plurality. The estimates as to this run upward from 100,000. The Republican campaign has collapsed, and the old machine is torn by strife and dissension.

"In North Dakota and Kansas the situation is clarifying and the local leaders are absolutely confident that in both these States the President will make a sweep. Colonel William Sapp of Kansas and State Chairman Lardner are entirely confident that the Democrats will hold all the Congressmen they have.

"Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware, who is directing the Democratic Senatorial campaign from Chicago, returned from a Western trip for a conference with me. He says that there is not a certain Hughes State west of the Mississippi River, whereas there are many that are sure to give their electoral vote for the President. In others, he says, it is a 'fifty-fifty' proposition at this time, with the current running our way. He is certain that the Democrats will gain two and possibly four Democratic Senators west of the Mississippi River."

Among the members of the Campaign Committee who conferred with Chairman McCormick yesterday were Robert S. Hudspeth of New Jersey, Francis S. Peabody of Illinois, Hugh C. Wallace of Washington, Simeon M. Johnson of Ohio, Frederick B. Lynch of Minnesota, and W. L. Saunders of New Jersey. All reported that the campaign was progressing favorably in their States.

The National Committee decided definitely yesterday to have President Wilson make two or three speeches in New York State before election day. The President will be the principal speaker at a Democratic rally in Madison Square Garden on the evening of Nov. 2. That will be his only appearance in New York City. On Nov. 1 he will speak in Buffalo, and efforts are being made to have him make another speech in Erie County on the afternoon of Nov. 1. On Nov. 4 there will be an "Old Home Day" at Shadow Lawn.

L. Roy Slater, leader of the Progressive Party in the State of Washington, was added yesterday to the list of former followers of Colonel Roosevelt who are actively supporting President Wilson this year. Word of Mr. Slater's conversion was received at Democratic headquarters from Wilbur A. Yearsley of Spokane, who wrote:

"Slater was the fighting Progressive of this State, and spent both time and money supporting the Progressives. The Republicans here are in a daze, and this State is sure for Wilson. Ole Hanson leaves Saturday for a tour of the Middle West for the President."

DARES HUGHES TO ANSWER.

McAdoo, on Stump in Chicago, Repeats the Lusitania Questions.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Praise for President Wilson's diplomatic and legislative achievements and charges that "Wall Street has always dominated the Republican Party" and that victory for that party next month would endanger the country's prosperity were voiced here today by William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, before a noon political meeting in a downtown theatre, in a speech in which he referred to "the inexperienced Mr. Hughes and the organized band of incompatible elements which are supporting him," and said "the American people are still without a definite answer from Mr. Hughes as to what they will do with the Government if they get possession of it."

Secretary McAdoo referred to Colonel Roosevelt's statement that if he had been President he would have seized the interned German ships after the Lusitania was torpedoed, and quoted Germany's declaration of war on Portugal because of seizures of German ships by that country. Next he quoted Mr. Hughes's reply to heckling on the Lusitania matter at his recent Louisville meeting—"that he would have threatened the Kaiser so effectively that 'the Lusitania would never have been sunk,'" adding:

"This is characteristic evasion, for Mr. Hughes was asked what he would have done after the Lusitania had been sunk. I challenge him to answer that question. Who can doubt that if Mr. Hughes is made President, Mr. Roosevelt will be the dominating influence and direct foreign and domestic policies?

"A President has it in his power to plunge the country into war at any moment. A single misstep, or rash act, or blunder on his part is all that is necessary. It does not require courage or statesmanship to provoke war. Any wild man, or blunderer, in the Presidential chair can precipitate such a calamity."

Mr. McAdoo said that the Democratic Administration had destroyed the system by which "the reserve money of the banks of the country was concentrated principally in New York City." He believed that Mr. Hughes, "if elected, intends to repeal the Federal Reserve Act," adding: "The demand of Wall Street for a central bank will be gratified if the Republicans regain control of the Government."

The Secretary said that "our virile, rich, unmaimed and highly developed people" need fear nothing from "the competition of stricken and broken Europe" after the war, but that even "if we are endangered the nonpartisan tariff board and the anti-dumping and unfair competition laws have provided means to "protect every legitimate interest against hurtful combinations against us."

CALIFORNIA GREETS WOMEN.

Hughes Campaigners Get Hearty Welcome in Los Angeles.

Special to The New York Times.

WITH THE WOMEN'S HUGHES CAMPAIGN TRAIN, LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 18.—Encouraged by Mr. Hughes's telegram of commendation and by the reception they received last night in San Francisco, where more than 8,000 persons attended the meeting in Scottish Rite Hall, the campaigners swept down upon Los Angeles today and won a greeting equally as favorable. An attempt by Wilson women to create a demonstration at the railroad station failed, and the cheers for Wilson along the line of parade were fewer than in any city thus far visited.

In 600 motors the campaigners and a delegation of 1,200 women from Los Angeles, Pasadena, Long Beach, and other adjacent cities paraded through the streets in what the local newspapers referred to as the greatest political demonstration in the history of the city.

After luncheon at the Hotel Alexandria the speakers were taken to the Trinity Auditorium, where for two hours a crowd estimated at 4,000 had waited to hear them. The speakers were introduced by Mrs. Frank Gibson, Chairman of the Los Angeles Women's Hughes Alliance; those who spoke there included Mrs. Raymond Robins, Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, and Mary Antin. The audience, friendly from the start, grew more enthusiastic as the meeting went on, and at the end the campaigners received an ovation.

While the rest of the orators will be in San Diego tomorrow, Mrs. Robins and Dr. Davis will remain here to address two big labor meetings.

TOLEDO LABOR VOTE UNITED FOR WILSON

Eight-Hour Law Turns the Scale to Democrats in Normally Republican County.

HUGHES LEADERS DISMAYED

Believe Drift to the President Is Receding, but Fear Election Is Too Near to Overcome It.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 18.—The gloomy foreboding of Republican leaders in this part of Ohio is at striking variance with the optimism reflected in the message sent last night by Republican State Chairman Charles S. Hatfield to Chairman William R. Willcox of the Republican National Committee, in which he predicted an "old-fashioned" vctory for Hughes and Fairbanks in the Buckeye State.

Under normal conditions Lucas County, of which this city is the political clearing house, should give a majority of 2,000 or better for the Republican candidate in a Presidential year. This year, unless there is a radical change in the situation before election day, President Wilson will carry Toledo and Lucas County by a very substantial majority.

Here, as in some other sections of Ohio, the Republicans are fighting, not only an uphill fight, but with their backs against the wall. There is little or no hope of a local victory, although they are struggling gamely to keep down the local Democratic majority. Both parties are conducting an intensive campaign here. The Republican leaders assert that the Wilson tide is receding, but privately they admit that the time before election is too short to turn it in the direction of the Republican candidates.

Of course, conditions here should not be accepted as an index of the situation throughout the State. From a Republican viewpoint Toledo is probably the sorest spot in the entire State. It is the terminal of nine railroads, while the lines of five divisions on a tenth railroad converge and terminate here. In a close election the railroad men hold the balance of power in Toledo. The railroad vote is variously estimated at from 5,000 to 6,000. About half of this is represented by members of the railroad brotherhoods, whom the enactment of the Adamson eight-hour law, generally speaking, has diverted from previous political allegiance to support of President Wilson.

Broke Up a Hughes Meeting.

Against the pronounced pro-Wilson sentiment among the brotherhood men the Republicans here have been able to make little headway, although for weeks they have been working hard to overcome it. The collapse of the propaganda, so far as this big railroad centre is concerned, came last night, when brotherhood men broke up a meeting at which Wilson H. Flanders, himself a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was making an address denouncing the Adamson law as a shame and its enactment as a blow at the brotherhood and organized labor in general. After forcing Flanders to abandon the platform, the railroad men, accompanied by all except a handful in the audience, adjourned to a nearby hall, where resolutions indorsing President Wilson were adopted by acclamation.

The demonstration against Flanders, of course, was engineered by the leaders of the local Democratic organization, among whom there are several brotherhood men. But the fact that in the entire audience at the meeting, which had been widely advertised and was the culmination of two weeks of zealous missionary work on the part of Flanders and some Republican co-workers drafted from this class of labor there were only about a hundred or so of brotherhood men, and the fact that all except a few of these deserted the Flanders meeting for the Wilson meeting at the close of the demonstration, are accepted by the Democrats as a sure indication that the brotherhood men cannot be budged by Republican blandishments from giving stanch and practically united support to President Wilson.

Just at present the Republican campaign managers here are working desperately to win labor votes. A score of field men are out every day at the noon hour and at night doing missionary work among the men employed in large industrial establishments in this city and its vicinity. The reports these field men are bringing to headquarters have been far from encouraging. They have indicated that to a large degree the disaffection among the railroad workers extends to organized labor in this locality in general.

Extends to All Labor.

The Republicans here have always been able to figure on receiving at least 40 per cent. of the labor vote. This year in the most optimistic forecasts they claim no more than 30 per cent. The labor union vote in this city is estimated at 7,000, not counting the railroad brotherhood, and this represents an element to reckon with in a community where the total vote does not exceed 46,000. In addition, there is a vast number of unorganized workers dominated, the Republicans fear, by pro-Wilson sentiment.

The larger employers of labor, of course, are practically a unit for the Republican ticket. The Republican campaign managers, plucking a leaf from the political book of Mark Hanna, have tried hard to have influence brought to bear on the workers from this source, but have met with little success. What the employers felt they might do with impunity in 1896 they feel that they cannot risk doing in 1916. They have preferred to keep their hands off for fear of irritation the workers at a time when labor in general has shown itself prone to resent interference from employers. Despite high wages and liberal working conditions, the Buckeye State has had more than its share of labor disturbances in the last few months.

The Republican Presidential nominee visited Toledo while campaigning in Ohio during his first Western tour. He made a speech to the employes of the Willys-Overland Automobile plant in the outskirts of the city. There he was presented to the workers by one of the executive chiefs of the establishment as "Our candidate." Before the meeting was over the candidate had been unmercifully heckled by his audience. There are some 17,000 workers at the Willys-Overland plant. Of these about 10,000 are voters. The Republican leaders have no reason to believe that there has been any considerable drift toward Hughes among these workers since he faced the hostile audience there in the early stages of the campaign.

Hardest Fight in Years.

"We are having the hardest fight we ever had in the twenty-five years that I have been active in politics," said Frank Baird, one of the Republican campaign managers here who was in charge of the victorious fight of Myron T. Herrick in the Republican primaries. "We had conditions somewhat similar in 1896. We turned what appeared certain defeat a few weeks before election into victory in that year. We are working just as hard and just as intelligently now and are looking for results. In any event Lucas County is not Ohio, and I have not much doubt regarding the outcome in the State."

Here, as in Cleveland, President Wilson is stronger than his party. The general prediction here is that Myron T. Herrick, former Ambassador to France, and now a candidate for the United States Senate, will defeat Senator Atlee Pomerene, his Democratic rival in Toledo, and that Governor Frank B. Willis, who is a candidate for re-election, will run ahead of Hughes. James M. Cox, his Democratic opponent, when a candidate for the same office two years ago carried Lucas County by a majority of 8,000, but was nevertheless defeated heavily by Governor Willis.

Oddly enough, the Republican organization here is controlled by the element that joined in the Roosevelt exodus in 1912. It is generally understood that in an invisible way Walter F. Brown, who was the Colonel's right-hand man in Ohio four years ago, is directing the strategy of the Republican campaign here, and he is no mean political tactician. He carried this county for the Colonel in 1912. The men who fought for Taft in the Republican ranks in that year have all been shunted out of the limelight, but while they are inactive there is no indication that the old Taft element will not loyally support the Republican candidates at the polls.

Democratic Organization United.

The Democratic organization of Lucas County is a miniature Tammany. Like Tammany, it has its grievances against President Wilson, who has neglected the organization in a patronage way, but it may be stated on the very best authority that President Wilson will receive cordial support. John A. O'Dwyer, who for more than a generation has wielded the sceptre of an autocrat over the Democratic organization, expects to turn out a record vote for the President.

The Democrats have a county ticket in the field which they hope to see carried to victory on a mighty Wilson wave. Four years ago the Presidential electors were voted for on a separate ballot. Governor Willis, some say, with a view of gaining for himself the advantage of having the name of a popular candidate for President appear at the top of the Republican column in a year when he expected to become a candidate, had the law amended so that in the coming election the voters in Ohio will vote on a blanket ballot with party columns and party emblems to encourage the voting of "straight tickets." As things have turned out, however, the new voting system is likely to benefit the Democrats here and in many other localities more than the Republicans. In any event, it has been instrumental in spurring the Democrats to greater activity on account of the interlocking of the national and local tickets through the abolition of separate ballots.

German Vote Divided.

According to all accounts, the German vote in this locality is apt to divide more evenly on party lines than has generally been supposed. Normally, it is 80 per cent. Republican in Toledo. One reason for the lesser disaffection is the fact that W. F. Renz, until today President of the Toledo Branch of the German-American Alliance, is the Democratic candidate for County Clerk.

Mr. Renz withdrew from his affiliation with the alliance today, giving as his reason disapproval of the action taken by the State Alliance at its meeting in Columbus on Oct. 1, when resolutions opposing President Wilson were adopted.

"Inasmuch as the action taken at Columbus ignores all the other important issues of this year's campaign, and is based solely on the foreign policy of President Wilson and on some rather flimsy, vague, and indistinct statements and promises, said to have been made to a few leaders of the German-American Alliance by Candidates Hughes and Herrick, or their representatives, I consider this action hasty and ill-advised, and detrimental and contrary to the best interests of the German-American Alliance and the German citizenship of our State," said Mr. Renz tonight.

"The German Alliance has often been criticized recently and accused of divided loyalty, and of putting the interests of the old Fatherland above the interests of our own country. Therefore, I believe that the action of the Columbus meeting places the German-American population of our State in a false light and puts new weapons in the hands of their enemies. And as I further firmly believe that under existing conditions and difficulties brought about by the European war, every voter should have the freedom to follow the dictates of his own conscience in selecting a President and members of Congress. I could not do anything else but withdraw from affiliation with the German-American Alliance."

WOMEN SPEAK IN WALL ST.

Democratic Van So Popular Another Is to be Sent Out in the City.

Too much popularity and the traffic regulations have forced the Van Committee of the Women's Bureau of the Democratic National Committee to divide its forces. The van will hold its meetings as scheduled, but Miss Lou Rogers, the cartoonist, one of its attractions, will leave it and hold other meetings at different places. There were 500 people in the crowd which listened to the van speakers at noon yesterday in Wall Street.

The Democratic women yesterday called up the women at the Republican National Committee headquarters to ask if they knew of any decision made in regard to the political debate to which the Women's Bureau challenged the Republican women. The response was that the decision rested entirely with Miss Frances Kellor, Chairman of the Women's Committee of the National Hughes Alliance. She is now in the West with the women who are campaigning for Hughes, and although she has been notified of the challenge, it was said, no word has been received from her.

Dr. Winifred S. Foster of 2,232 Larkin Street, San Francisco, has written the Women's Bureau asking it to notify all women that the only woman nominated for office in California was Josephine M. Fernald, Democratic nominee for Representative in Congress.

APPEALS TO BOHEMIANS.

Their National Alliance Urges Them to Vote as Americans.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—The Bohemian National Alliance of America recently addressed to its membership an appeal saying in part:

"In view of the fact that German organizations in this country have assumed a hostile attitude toward one of the candidates for President and have presumed to advise their countrymen how to vote so as to benefit Germany, we deem it proper to caution the Bohemian speaking citizens of the United States not to follow this mischievous example of mixing our natural election for the country which gave us birth with the politics of the country of our adoption.

"Vote for the party which, in your opinion, will carry on the Government to the greatest advantage to the people; vote for those candidates whom you consider best qualified in principles, ability and character. You may vote the Republican, Democratic or Socialist ticket; each of you must decide that for himself. But vote as American citizens, not as Bohemians."

The appeal, which was published widely in Bohemian newspapers, was signed "Bohemian National Alliance of America, Dr. L. J. Fisher, President."

For instance: note this new model, on our Vassar last—"long drawn out," with military heel—a shoe with winged tip effect—perforations around vamp line and up row of eyelets—with vamp and top of Cordo Calf, the new leather with the stunning color of deep rich wine and the most attractive finish seen this year.

Or, if you like, of fine Black Calf, tanned by the French process. The price is $7.

ROOSEVELT DRAWS KENTUCKY CROWDS

Louisville, Richmond, and Winchester Throngs Hear Him Attack Wilson's Diplomacy.

CALLS IT NULLIFIED WORDS

Bombast and a Dish Rag Instead of Soft Voice and Big Stick, the Way He Sums It Up.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 18.—Asserting that for three years there had been "no protection of our citizens abroad," Theodore Roosevelt, in an address here tonight on behalf of Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for President, assailed the course of President Wilson in dealing with Mexico and his conduct of the country's foreign affairs.

"It combined lofty promise and complete failure in performance. It consisted of words which were nullified by deeds," he said in summing up his view of the President's course.

Entering Kentucky in the forenoon, Colonel Roosevelt delivered more than a dozen rear platform addresses before reaching Louisville. Crossing the Ohio River at Cincinnati, his course took him almost to the Tennessee line. At Paris and Cynthiana he told his audiences he was glad to be in Kentucky, where, if it was necessary, "the people were not too proud to fight."

His largest audiences were at Winchester and Richmond, where large crowds greeted him.

On his arrival here this evening he was met at the railroad station by a large crowd, which escorted him to Phoenix Hill Park, about two miles away, where he spoke. Many persons, unable to get in, were turned away.

Colonel Roosevelt began his speech by defending his right to criticise the President. He said:

"At the outset of my speech I wish to point out, as I have elsewhere pointed out, that the doctrine now often advanced as to the impropriety of criticising the President, without any regard as to whether the criticism is or is not just, has no warrant either in history or on grounds of public morality. Andrew Jackson in a message to the Senate on April 15, 1834, put the case exactly as it should be put. He said:

> The President is accountable at the bar of public opinion for every act of his Administration. Subject only to the restraints of truth and justice, the free people of the United States have the undoubted right, as individuals or collectively, orally or in writing, at such times and in such language and form as they may think proper, to discuss his official conduct and express and promulgate their opinions concerning it.

"This lays down the law that should be followed. There must be truth and justice in all that is said of the President, or of any one else; but less than any one other man in the nation has he the right to claim immunity from any criticism that is both just and truthful. I criticize President Wilson because his deeds have belied his words, and his words have belied one another.

"Mr. Wilson's promises before election, both those made in his own speeches and those made in the platform, have been so well-nigh invariably broken that the breaking of them has become a subject for jest even among his own friends.

Questions Wilson's Honor.

"Now, I do not regard such action on the part of Mr. Wilson and his followers and the cynical frankness with which they avow it as a matter for jest. I doubt if it is possible more effectively to undermine public morality in this country than by accustoming the people to regard promises made in politics with cynical amusement as intended only for purposes of deception. A high-minded man regards a promise made on the stump by a candidate for office, a promise intended to secure the support of those to whom it is made, as a pledge which it is as imperatively necessary to redeem as if it were made in private life to a private individual; and its subsequent repudiation in one case can only be justified by conditions substantially like those which would justify it in the other case. An honorable man will scorn an untruth on the stump just as much as off the stump. An honorable man will break a promise made publically in a political campaign just as reluctantly as he will break a promise made to another man in private life. An honorable man keeps faith in public life no less than in private life.

"President Wilson's speeches are models of adroit indirect suggestion and avoidance of downright statement. But the other day at Omaha he seems to have committed himself to the statement that he was 'willing to fight,' but was 'waiting for something worth fighting for,' for something which would 'put all the corpuscles of his blood into shouting shape.' It would be interesting to know exactly what outrage on American citizens, or on the rights of humanity anywhere, which would make him cross the line between being 'willing to fight' and 'too proud to fight.' He certainly did not regard the treacherous murder of Boyd and Adair, and this United States, as 'something worth fighting for.' He did not even write a note about it. The murder of 1,394 men, women and children on the Lusitania did not 'put all the corpuscles of his blood into shouting shape.'

Attacks Dr. Eliot.

"Dr. Charles W. Eliot, former President of Harvard, praises Mr. Wilson for having made a 'great contribution to the peace of the world and to the promotion of humane and just dealings between nations' by having 'gone far to establish as the American policy the policy of non-intervention by force of arms for the protection of miners, commercial adventurers, inventors and workmen in foreign parts,' and by having refused to adopt the 'malign suggestion' to protect the lives of these men 'by punitive expeditions and compelled agreements.' Reduced to concrete terms, this statement of Dr. Eliot is that President Wilson is greatly to be praised because he took no action when some nineteen fine, unoffending, hard-working and totally unarmed American miners and engineers were taken from a railroad train, tortured and murdered by an armed Mexican force. Dr. Eliot has been a severe censor of political morals, strong in his condemnation of bosses, crooked politicians, and demagogic labor leaders; but no corrupt boss, no crooked politician or labor leader, no conscienceless capitalist, has ever preached or practiced a more degrading doctrine, a doctrine more ruinous to the soul and the manhood of this nation, or more destructive to humanity and justice in the world at large, than the doctrine thus set forth by this former college President. There can be no more severe condemnation of Mr. Wilson than to say that he is not unworthy of such praise. American women are raped and American children murdered in Mexico; American men are tortured to death; hundreds of our people are slain; continual forays are made into our own territory; Mexico itself is utterly devastated and its people slaughtered by the hundred thousand; and Dr. Eliot denounces as a 'malign suggestion' any proposal to put a stop to these horrors in the only way by which it is possible to stop them. It would be unfair to China to compare Dr. Eliot with even an old-school Chinese statesman.

The Recent U-Boat Raid.

Colonel Roosevelt then declared in an extended argument that the President's course toward Germany had encouraged a defiant attitude on the part of Mexico. Then, referring to the recent submarine raid, he said:

"The 'guarantee' of the safety of noncombatants aboard the vessels recently torpedoed off our coast was carried out by American destroyers, not by the German submarines; if the Germans had themselves made good and intended to make good their guarantee, there would have been no necessity for American destroyers to be present.

"At the outset of this war Mr. Wilson had one of two courses to follow. He could by deeds stand up for our own rights against every one, and champion the rights of the weak against the strong in all cases; or else he could submit to our being wronged by every one, and acquiesce tamely when wrongs were committed by the strong against the weak, even although we had covenanted that such wrongs should not be committed. The first was the course of honor, of temporary risk, and of permanent safety. He did not follow it. The second was the course of dishonor, of temporary safety, and of permanent danger. He followed it.

"Instead of speaking softly and carrying a big stick, President Wilson spoke bombastically and carried a dish rag. For these offenses against us I blame the Germans, for nothing can excuse their jeopardizing and taking the lives of men, women, and children; and I do not believe that under like circumstances we would have done what they have done. For their less heinous offenses against our property rights I blame the British, but I blame them much less, and I do believe that under like circumstances we would have acted in the same way, if other nations would have let us. But I blame the United States even more than I blame Germany, and far more than I blame England, for in our case there has been no splendid alloy of heroism to offset the wrongdoing."

44 NEW ELECTION DISTRICTS

Total Number in New York City Increased to 2,123.

Forty-four new election districts in New York City were created yesterday by the Board of Elections. The action was made necessary by the growth in population in the existing districts. Seven were added to Manhattan, making a total of 836; sixteen to the Bronx, giving a total of 269; nine to Brooklyn, making a total of 782, and twelve to Queens, a total of 189. No new districts were added to Richmond, the number there remaining forty-seven. The total number of election districts in the city is now 2,123, instead of the 2,079 last year.

The creation of the new districts was made in pursuance of the statute which requires that none shall exceed 530 voters in number. The boundaries of the new districts will be mapped out within the next two weeks, and efforts will be made to have the new divisions of the old districts made as equal in numbers of voters as practicable.

The DUO-ART PIANOLA

ERNEST SCHELLING, pianist of great talent and distinction—a composer of high attainments, pupil and friend of Paderewski—suggests in the following sentences, quoted from a recent interview, the entire confidence in which musicians of highest standing hold the Duo-Art Pianola. Mr. Schelling says:

> "I think the Duo-Art reproduction of an artist's carefully prepared record will present that artist at his best. For example, I consider my interpretation of the 10th Rhapsodie, which we heard a few minutes ago upon the Duo-Art, was played as well as I could play it in one of my best moods. That makes my position clear, doesn't it?"

The Duo-Art Pianola reproduces with wonderful fidelity the playing of great concert pianists. Such men as Schelling, Bauer, Godowsky, Gabrilowitsch, Grainger, who have had recording experience with the instrument, do not hesitate to substantiate this statement. The scores of prominent musicians who have heard the instrument are unanimous in their praise and endorsement.

And you will enjoy the Duo-Art even more keenly than these men who judge it so critically.

We invite you to hear this magnificent modern pianoforte. Duo-Art Recitals are given each afternoon at three o'clock in the Little Recital Salon, fourth floor. Admission free.

Remember that the Duo-Art Pianola is an instrument which you can play. It is the most perfect player-piano yet constructed. And it is a beautiful pianoforte for hand playing—a Steinway, Steck, Stroud or famous Weber.

LEO TOLSTOY'S PLAY MAKES A TRIUMPH

'The Living Corpse,' a Very Human Work, Is Artistically Produced at the Irving Place.

CONCISE, THROBBING STORY

R. Christians, Heinrich Marlow, Annie Rub-Forster, Flora Arndt Excel in Posthumous Drama.

An artistic triumph quite as great as was achieved by the American stage in the production of Galsworthy's "Justice" last spring was registered by the local German stage last night when the first performance in this country of Leo Tolstoy's drama, "Der lebende Leichnam" ("The Living Corpse,") was given at the Irving Place Theatre. It is rarely that New York playgoers are offered the opportunity of witnessing a drama so sincerely human and so artistically produced as this posthumous work of the Russian author, acted by Rudolf Christians and his splendid company.

It is related that this play remained unprinted and unacted until several years after the death of Count Tolstoy at his request, since its characters and the story were taken from life, and he did not wish to offend the principals, many of them prominent in Russian society. Certainly the drama's roots burrow into life itself; even in form it is not of the theatre, but unfolds its story in a series of concise, throbbing slices of life.

As originally written there were twelve of these scenes grouped in six acts. All except one of these episodes were included in the version acted last night, but the division was into three acts. In a drama so episodical a swift succession of scenes is essential, and this was achieved by the use of an inner stage with the alternate episodes acted on it and the fore-stage. By means of this old device the performance occupied but little more time than the average drama consumes. The ingenuity and taste displayed in devising the settings was no negligible part of the worth of the whole.

If Tolstoi intended his drama to convey anything but an absorbing story, it was the irony of laws which bind those united unhappily in wedlock so inflexibly that there is no escape except through a breaking of the moral law or through death. The protagonist of the drama is a weak but by no means vicious man, who is convinced that his wife loves another, and who is willing to stand aside that she may marry him. He shrinks at the distasteful business of furnishing false evidence that would procure a divorce, and he falters when he tries to kill himself. It is a gypsy woman, whose impassioned but pure love has come to fill the void in his life, who counsels a sudden disappearance.

And so he becomes a living dead man and his wife innocently marries the other man when there is convincing evidence that he has been drowned. Months later a blackmailer learns the secret of the live corpse through overhearing him tell the tale in a low restaurant, and the three are brought to trial.

When the first husband learns from his lawyer that exile with his former wife in Siberia or perhaps forgiveness by the Church, but with no release for either, are the only sentences they can get, he shoots himself in the crowded foyer of the court.

With but a few exceptions the play was beautifully acted. Direktor Christians gave a magnificent performance in the title rôle, suggesting the overwhelming moral struggle in which the man was constantly engaged and the gradual physical and spiritual disintegration with fine skill. Annie Rub-Forster as the wife, Heinrich Marlow, Ernst Hanns Unterkircher, Flora Arndt, and Margarete Christians were all excellent.

"Der lebende Leichnam" has been acted in Vienna and in Berlin Max Reinhardt produced it in one of his theatres. It is not strange that American producers have passed it by, because its episodic character and its unhappy ending would militate against its achieving any great popularity. And yet there is more real drama in any of a number of its scenes than in a dozen false and futile Broadway "punch" melodramas. In its succession of episodes there is the cumulative force inherent in the old Greek tragedies. Surely the drama offers a chance for an American manager who wants to do something notable. Without waiting for that hypothetical time lovers of true art in the theatre should journey to the Irving Place. The play is published in English, so a knowledge of German is not necessary.

MRS. GAYNOR WINS ENCORE.

Her Songs at Irish Bazaar Concert Rewarded with Red Roses.

Mrs. William J. Gaynor, wife of the late Mayor of this city, sang at the Irish Bazaar concert to an audience that filled the concert hall of the Madison Square Garden last evening. She received an encore and a bunch of red roses. Mrs. Gaynor, who wore a handsome gown of silver cloth and white fur, was fourth on the program. Her first number was an air from Tschaikowsky's "Jeanne d'Arc." This was warmly applauded, and the roses were presented. There was more applause for "Killarney," her second number. Mrs. Gaynor returned to bow, but was brought back again, and sang as an encore an old Irish folk song, "Widow Machree."

The first encore of the evening was given to Miss Nora Power, who, after singing an "Irish Battle Song" of the tenth century, gave for her second number "Irish Volunteers," several lines ending: "The men that England could not buy." This, according to the program, was "written for the volunteers by Maeve Cavanagh, the Irish poetess, imprisoned by the English." Miss Power sang the "Wearing of the Green" as an encore. The program closed with a recitation, "Liberty and the Lion," a poem on the present war by Eva Bedorff.

There was not a great crowd at the Bazaar last evening, but the attendance is increasing. It was said that the bazaar, which is to close on Sunday night, might be continued into the following week, when it is expected the proceeds would reach a quarter of a million dollars.

HALT 9 O'CLOCK'S OPENING.

Miniature Theatre in West 58th St. Faces License Difficulty.

The Nine o'Clock Theatre will not open tonight for the first time, as originally planned. There has been a hitch in obtaining a theatre license for the playhouse, which is the building at 32 West Fifty-eighth Street.

When the Building Inspectors saw the theatre they refused to pass upon it on the ground that the regulations governing theatres having tenants above them had not been satisfied. Helen Freeman, who was William Gillette's leading woman last season, is promoting the miniature playhouse. It is said $20,000 was expended in remodeling the place.

In the block between Fifth and Sixth Avenues in this street there are many fine residences, and it is said many of the neighbors objected to the establishing of a playhouse there, alleging that it would lower property values. In the block are the homes of Mr. and Mrs. E. Francis Hyde, Horace Chase Stebbins, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Livingston Delafield, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander.

ASKS RECEIVER FOR PLAYS.

Mrs. Wertheimer Says She Didn't Get Chattel Mortgage on Her Works

Mrs. Mary Lee Wertheimer of New York and Milford, Penn., who has been sued by George Blumenthal for $16,885 under an alleged agreement by Mrs. Wertheimer to finance her musical plays, "The Romance of Eta" and "Noto," which played for one night at Stamford and Hartford, Conn., filed an application in the Supreme Court yesterday for the appointment of a receiver of the productions. Mrs. Wertheimer alleges that she has paid Blumenthal all she agreed to give him and $1,350 additional. She says he promised to give her a chattel mortgage on the properties used in the production, but has failed to do so.

Mrs. Wertheimer also asks an injunction restraining Blumenthal from doing anything to prevent the further production of "Noto" on the ground that the play hasn't had a reasonable test and she realizes that its failure would be a reflection on her work.

Mrs. Oscar Lewisohn Operated On.

Mrs. Oscar Lewisohn, who before her marriage was Edna May, the actress, was operated on for appendicitis yesterday afternoon in the Woman's Hospital, 141 West 109th Street. At the hospital late last night it was said the patient was resting comfortably. Since her return from Europe a year ago, Mrs. Lewisohn has been raising funds for English war charities and is said to have collected $100,000 for the fund by acting in moving pictures. As Edna May she may her biggest hit as Salvation Nell in "The Belle of New York."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The first public performance of the new musical play, "Go To It," at the Princess next Tuesday night, will be preceded by an invitation performance Monday night.

Annie Hughes returned to New York yesterday to undergo an operation for an injury to her knee received some time ago. The operation, which will be performed in the Polyclinic Hospital, will prevent her from appearing on the stage for several weeks.

Florence Rockwell sailed Saturday for Australia, where she will appear under the management of J. C. Williamson, Ltd., in American plays for six months. She will first be seen in "Common Clay."

Blanche Duffield has been engaged by John Cort for the title role in the Herbert-Blossom operetta, "The Princess Pat," to succeed Venita Fitzhugh, who is suffering from throat trouble. Ruth Welsh is singing the same role in a second company.

E. H. Sothern began rehearsals yesterday in "If I Were King," in which he will appear on tour for the benefit of the British Red Cross.

The Messrs. Shubert have placed in rehearsal a new Viennese operetta by Willner C. Bodansky and Edmund Eysler that will be called "Lieutenant Gus."

Harold Vermilye, who played last year in "It Pays to Advertise," has been engaged by Ernest Shuter for a role in "Strings."

A new number entitled "Hello, I've Been Looking for You," was introduced in the Hippodrome show yesterday. Joseph Parsons is the soloist of the number.

DEPUTIES ADOPT TWO NEW PRAYERS

Episcopalians Take Action Intended to Meet Changing National Conditions.

FAVOR PUBLICITY WORK

Formation of a Permanent Church Bureau Urged—Bishops Oppose Women as Lay Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—The will to get closer to national life manifested itself throughout the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in session here today.

The House of Deputies adopted two of the fifteen proposed new prayers for the Book of Common Prayer, all intended to bring the American communion in closer touch with the new conditions. It approved one prayer for State Legislatures and another for courts and Magistrates.

The spirit of '76 was revived in a resolution introduced by Roland S. Morris of Philadelphia, substituting for the suggested prayer for the country the prayer offered by Washington when the armies of the Revolution were disbanded, as follows:

"I now make it my earnest prayer that God would keep the United States in His holy protection; that he would incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government; to entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another, for their fellow citizens of the United States at large, and particularly for their brethren who have served in the field. And finally that He would most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy, and to demean ourselves with that charity, humanity, and pacific temper of mind which were the characterization of the Divine Author of our blessed religion and without an humble imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation."

Episcopalians have for months been discussing the qualities of General Washington as a churchman. A few days ago a resolution was introduced in the convention and referred to a committee providing that on the Sunday nearest Washington's Birthday there should be a special service in his memory. The prayer of Washington is to be considered together with the one which now appears in the prayer book.

Another sign of the desire to keep pace with new conditions was the adoption of a report today favoring a permanent church publicity bureau.

"The possibility of having a judiciously managed system of publicity," the report says, "conducted from a central bureau is worthy of careful consideration. It would be possible, if the means could be provided to conduct a work which could keep the public, the various provinces and dioceses in touch with the activities of the Protestant Episcopal church during the triennium. The committee feels that this publicity work conservatively and carefully conducted, and yet with spiritual zeal, could be made a valuable auxiliary to the preaching mission of the church."

The resolution as passed provides for a joint committee to be composed of one Bishop, two presbyters, and three laymen, with power to fill vacancies and to associate with them others, as may be desirable.

The House of Bishops today recommended that the Ten Commandments be printed in the Prayer Book both in the abridged form as provided for in the revision, and in the form in which they appear in the Old Testament, with the Rabbinical comment attached.

The Bishops, following the report of the deputies' committee, today pronounced as inexpedient the proposal of Robert H. Gardiner of Maine to admit women as lay deputies to the General Convention. As, however, the original resolution is on the calendar of the House of Deputies, a lively debate may result. Should the deputies favor the innovation, the Bishops would have the opportunity to change their minds.

The bishops declined to grant the request of Bishop Roots of Hankow that he have women as members of his council. His fellow Bishops did not consider it wise to appoint women to official positions, but suggested, however, that he might have a consulting council of women.

The convention tomorrow will devote itself to the Prayer Book revision.

SALESMANSHIP CLUB SURE.

One Thousand Business Men at Waldorf Hear of Success of Plan.

The Salesmanship Club of New York, which is an outcome of the recent World's Salesmanship Congress held in Detroit, is assured. This was announced at a meeting of more than one thousand business men, salesmen, and representatives of business houses held in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria last night. Similar clubs are being organized in all the leading cities of the country, twenty-seven having been organized within the last few weeks.

The speakers last night were Hugh Chalmers, President of the Chalmers Motor Company; N. A. Hawkins, General Sales Manager of the Ford Motor Company; Edward A. Woods, President of the National Board of Underwriters, and C. Louis Allen, President of the Pyrene Manufacturing Company. They all agreed that the day of the efficient salesman was at hand, and that with the close of the war this country would have to exert itself to the utmost to hold its place as one of the great export nations of the world.

The present office of the club in New York is 303 Fifth Avenue. It is intended to erect a splendid clubhouse within the near future. Already some of the largest corporations as well as prominent business men have signed up for life memberships in the club.

EDISON EMPLOYES STRIKE.

Some 600 Men Go Out When Union Organizer Is Discharged.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 18.—Between 500 and 600 of the employes of Thomas A. Edison's plant here walked out on strike this afternoon because Neal F. White, who had been active in organizing the Edison employes, was discharged. White was secretary of the Edison Protective Association, formed to extend the organized labor movement in the plant, which is run on an open shop basis.

White was discharged for his failure to report for duty on Monday or Tuesday, though he insisted that his absence was due to illness. When this became known union men in various departments began to quit work. A committee representing the management of the plant had a conference in the afternoon with a committee from the strikers, but no settlement was agreed upon. Those who quit are less than 10 per cent. of the employes in the plant.

BILLY SUNDAY INVITED AGAIN

Brooklyn Committee Renews Request for a Campaign.

At a meeting of the Brooklyn Billy Sunday Committee yesterday at the home of the Chairman, the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, it was voted to renew the invitation signed by 400 preachers and laymen of Brooklyn to Sunday asking him to conduct a campaign in Brooklyn after his campaign in Manhattan, or if for any reason the Manhattan campaign should be postponed, to conduct the campaign in Brooklyn first.

At the close of the committee meeting, Dr. Young said:

"We have little doubt that Billy Sunday will come to Brooklyn for a campaign some time in the near future. Our committee will continue active, and already has a number of the features of the campaign fairly well outlined."

Miss Hoffman's Recital.

Miss Llora Hoffman, a young American soprano, made her first appearance in America at a song recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. She sang German Lieder, French songs by Louis Aubert, and the heroine's principal air from Charpentier's "Louise," and American songs in English by Lang, Whelpley, Rummel, Kramer Branscombe, and Frank Bibb, her excellent accompanist. Miss Hoffman's voice has power and range; and when it is heard at its best, its quality is admirable. Her present technical equipment, however, does not always permit it to be heard at its best. Her production of tone is often laborious and strained, and the voice is not always well placed. With all its power she is apt to force it unnecessarily, with an unavoidable loss of quality. It generally sounded best yesterday when she sang with only moderate power, and especially when she let her tones come forth freely and spontaneously. Miss Hoffman sang with sincerity, without affectation; but she has not yet learned to differentiate and express in her interpretations variety of mood and emotional significance. In common with most young singers, she needs to think, to feel, to learn that music is emotional expression, and to find her way toward its expression.

To Resentence Stielow on Oct. 25.

ALBANY, Oct. 18.—The Court of Appeals today ordered that Charles F. Stielow, convicted of the murders of Charles B. Phelps and Miss Margaret Wolcott, be brought from Sing Sing Prison Oct. 25 to be resentenced by the court. Stielow's petition for a new trial was recently denied.

IF NOT BRYAN, WHO?

Mr. Hughes won't tell us what he would have done after the sinking of the Lusitania, because, he says, he would have prevented the Lusitania from being sunk. He won't tell us how he stands on the repeal of the eight-hour law, because if he had been President there would have been no eight-hour law. These are the only attempts he has made to answer the question, "What would you have done?" but perhaps he means to answer other subsections of that question in the same manner; and this emboldens us to ask, with confidence that he will make at least the same sort of answer:

"What would you have done in the "way of placing an embargo on muni"tions, and what would you have done "if Congress had shown a disposition "to pass a resolution warning Ameri"cans to stay off liners?"

These questions are not captious or frivolous. The elements which want an embargo placed on munitions, which wanted Americans kept off armed liners and will want it again if submarine warfare is renewed, are all supporting Mr. Hughes. It is because of Mr. Wilson's attitude on those two chief questions, as much as anything else, that they are supporting Mr. Hughes; and they expect him to reverse Mr. Wilson's policy in those matters. We know what Mr. Wilson's attitude was, and the hyphen votes it cost him; it is only fair that Mr. Hughes should tell us his attitude. The attitude of his party, so far as it has spoken officially, is shown by the vote on the Gore and McLemore resolutions: in the Senate nineteen Republicans voted to table the Gore resolution, twelve against; in the House ninety-three Republicans voted to table the McLemore resolution, 102 against.

If Mr. Hughes answers these questions in his present manner, he will refuse to tell what he would have done about these proposals to surrender American rights, because if he had been President there would have been no majority of the Republicans in the House agitating and voting for a surrender of American rights. That is an answer he will not dare to make.

One of the ways in which Mr. Hughes would have prevented the sinking of the Lusitania, he tells us, would be by not appointing Bryan Secretary of State. Then would he have prevented the sinking by appointing James R. Mann Secretary of State? Mann is the official leader of Mr. Hughes's party in the House, and voted, with the majority of his followers, to back down before Germany and abandon to her mercy Americans who insisted on traveling on armed liners. Or would he have appointed Jacob H. Gallinger? He is the official floor leader of the party in the Senate, and he voted the same way. Would he have appointed Albert B. Cummins, Lawrence Y. Sherman, or Robert M. La Follette? They are Republican leaders of such eminence that they were rivals with Mr. Hughes for the Presidential nomination; and they all voted against the tabling of the Gore resolution. Would he have appointed Theodore E. Burton, another eminent rival of his, who went to Milwaukee to solicit the support of the German vote? By the appointment of what eminent Republican would Mr. Hughes have so terrified Germany that she would have been afraid to sink the Lusitania? In the whole House, in the whole Senate, he could not have found more than one Republican of prominence enough to be considered for the Secretaryship of State who did not truckle and abase himself and his party to Germany with an abjectness that was never, in his worst moments, shown by Mr. Bryan. That one Republican was Senator Lodge; and if Mr. Hughes would have offended and repulsed his hyphenate supporters by the appointment of Senator Lodge, he will not dare to say so.

THE PIVOTAL ISSUE.

Ever since Mr. Hughes went on the stump the country has been trying to find out what the chief Republican issue is. It has been one thing one day, another the next. For some weeks now the eight-hour law seemed to be selected finally, after the elimination of so many others that wouldn't work, as the "great exigency" which Mr. Hughes must have foreseen when it forced him from the bench. Returns from the eight-hour law are not encouraging. The Hon. William R. Willcox, the alert Chairman of the Republican National Committee, sees the need of another quick turn:

> I do not think the eight-hour law is the pivotal issue. To me, and I believe Mr. Hughes has made it plain, industrial preparedness, for which the Democrats in Washington have made no preparation whatever, is the big thing for us to think about.

Alas! Is the pivotal issue always to be off its pivot? Surely Mr. Willcox and Mr. Hughes are aware that the accursed Democrats, not content with providing with unparalleled scope for military and naval national defense, have by the organization of the Council of National Defense provided for that co-ordination and co-operation of the national resources, that selfsame "industrial preparedness."

So another pivotal issue falls. And there is mighty little time before the Tuesday after the first Monday in November to conjure up its successor.

REACHING THE LIMIT.

The German Government, in the course of a correspondence on the subject of the sinking of the Lusitania, submitted to this Government on Feb. 16 a proposal which, as officials at Washington informed the press, embodied the basis of an agreement. It was found to be unacceptable to the United States. The exact nature of it was not made public; but yesterday The Times and other newspapers published the general intent of it, which was that Germany offered regret and indemnity, maintaining that the sinking was justifiable, although the destruction of American lives was not.

The Sun, however, went further, and printed the amazing statement that this unacceptable proposal had been accepted by the United States. If this assertion was believed, it could only have been by persons who had forgotten the course of events after Feb. 16. For on April 18 President Wilson sent to the German Government a note threatening to break off relations with it, and giving the Lusitania sinking as one of the reasons. If he had accepted the expression of regret and offer of indemnity suggested by Germany on Feb. 16, how could he be threatening on April 18 to break off relations with her, as if no such offer had been made and accepted? If on Feb. 16 he had accepted the view of Germany that the sinking was justifiable, how could he, on April 18, be informing her that the sinking was "wanton and without the slightest color of justification"? His language on this point was:

> Great liners like the Lusitania and Arabic and mere passenger boats like the Sussex have been attacked without a moment's warning * * * and the lives of noncombatants, passengers, and crew have been destroyed wholesale and in a manner which the Government of the United States cannot but regard as wanton and without the slightest color of justification.

And the conclusion was that unless the German Government should "im"mediately declare and effect an aban"donment" of this warfare, "the Gov"ernment of the United States can "have no choice but to sever diplo"matic relations with the German Em"pire altogether."

Acting Secretary of State Polk yesterday denied The Sun's assertions flatly. "The note," he said, "has not "been accepted, and is not to be given "out." But Mr. Polk's denial was not necessary to any newspaper reader whose memory goes back six months. The whole Republican campaign has been one of misrepresentation, misinterpretation and misstatement, but this is quite the most remarkable incident in all its devious progress.

TABOO IN OHIO.

The most salient figure in the imperfectly "united" Republican Party, its most energetic and popular orator, the man without whose supporters Mr. Hughes has no ghost of a chance of election, spoke in Louisville last night. He had been whisked through Ohio, through Cincinnati. The Republican managers don't dare to let Theodore Roosevelt speak in Ohio. They are afraid that Mr. Wilson will carry it. They need all the help they can get. Mr. Roosevelt, it seems, would be a danger, not a help. Mr. Hughes's "Americanism," the "Americanism" of the Republican Party in Ohio, is amply illustrated by the taboo put on Mr. Roosevelt. Deal tenderly with the hyphen.

MR. HUGHES'S FIGURES.

From cart-tail and soap-box orators in a political campaign the indulgent American public is accustomed to hear many weird and surprising utterances. They serve at times to entertain, if they do not instruct or disgust, those attracted by the brazen outcries at the street corners. But the electorate has been educated to demanding a higher standard on the part of men of some pretensions, and they rarely fail to measure up to it. This being the case, it must have pained many of his friends and supporters to read the published accounts of some of the speeches now being made by the Republican candidate for the Presidency.

At Mitchell, S. D., for instance, Mr. Hughes assailed the Democrats because of the Underwood Tariff act, which he denounced as not providing sufficient revenue. He said:

> In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, under the Payne-Aldrich tariff, our imports were $1,800,000,000 and our tariff revenue was $319,000,000. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1916, under the Underwood tariff, our imports had increased to $2,197,000,000, but our tariff revenue had fallen to $212,000,000. Think of that—a vast increase in imports and a vast decrease in revenue.

This kind of talk does no credit to Mr. Hughes's intellectual honesty. It is mere pettifogging and of a kind that he would not have permitted of an advocate in the days when he sat as a Judge.

It is perfectly well known that the increase in imports in the fiscal year 1916 was of raw materials which found their outlet in the tremendous exports of manufactured goods. The difference in the total of imports in the two years mentioned was, in round numbers, about $300,000,000. This is accounted for by the added $309,000,000 of "crude materials for use in manufacturing" imported in 1916. Of manufactures ready for consumption, the year 1916 showed imports $93,000,000 less than did 1913. In other words, under the Payne-Aldrich tariff, millions more of manufactured goods were imported and less raw materials than under the Underwood tariff. Under the latter, more raw materials were brought in and vastly more manufactured goods sent out. Exports of manufactured goods ready for consumption in the fiscal year 1916 amounted to $1,996,367,492 as against $672,268,163 in 1913.

But, aside from this matter of statistics, the plain inference to be drawn from Mr. Hughes's remarks is that the Underwood act was designed to take the place of the Payne-Aldrich act as a revenue getter. As this was expressly disclaimed at the time the former was passed, and as the income tax adjunct was enacted for the specific purpose of making good the deficit, the unfairness of this statement is apparent. And, by the way, has Mr. Hughes yet suggested that, in the event of his election, he will urge the repeal of the income tax provisions?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

It is now almost a daily experience for Mr. Hughes to have to answer questions put to him by some one in the audience. His answers are characterized by a colorable imitation of cleverness. We do not know what effect they have upon his audiences. Manner counts for much, gesture and the appearance of earnestness and sincerity for something, and we suppose an audience in sympathy with Mr. Hughes and desiring his election would be perfectly satisfied.

It must be different with his questioners. For instance, how much information did Mr. Hughes give to the "heckler" who at Sioux City interrupted his discourse with the question whether if elected President he would favor the repeal of the Adamson law by giving him this answer: "My "dear sir, you cannot repeal a surren"der." We imagine the audience was delighted, but it is plain that Mr. Hughes did not answer the question. He pointed out that the act takes effect Jan. 1, that it would have been three months in operation before he would become President if elected, and that its operation is to be studied for six or nine months, and that "the "act will have completed its purpose "before Congress will have its ses"sion in the following December." That explanation does not answer the question whether Mr. Hughes believes that the act is harmful and wicked and should be repealed. In other words, Mr. Hughes dodged the issue. Why did he not have the courage to say that he would recommend the repeal of the act? That ought to be his position, if there is any sincerity in his criticism of the course adopted by Mr. Wilson to avert a railroad strike.

There was another question, "What "would you have done in that elev"enth hour to avert and forestall "the railroad strike?" Mr. Hughes replied that if arbitration had been refused he would have gone right to the American people, would have stated the facts "and put the responsibility where it belonged." Furthermore, he would have set an impartial commission of inquiry at work. To unthinking minds that might seem to be a good answer. But every man of ordinary intelligence knows that the strike would not have been averted by going to the people and putting the responsibility where it belonged. The brotherhoods were entirely willing to assume all responsibility. Their minds were made up. The difference between Mr. Hughes and President Wilson is that Mr. Hughes would have had a strike and then set a commission of inquiry to look into its justification, while Mr. Wilson averted the strike and got Congress to authorize a commission of inquiry to observe the operation of the Adamson law. So far as this argument goes, Mr. Hughes asks to be elected President on the principle that an inquiry following a strike is more desirable than an inquiry without a strike.

"BLUE SKY" LAWS.

On the day that the call was issued for a convention of State railway commissioners to oppose Federal regulation of interstate commerce, the Supreme Court listened to arguments against the State control of interstate commerce in securities. It is not exactly known how many States have enacted "blue sky" laws. Thirty-six States had them before their legislatures. Some failed, some were vetoed, some were declared unconstitutional in State courts, some in Federal courts. The question is almost as broad as that presented between the State and Federal control of railways, and there is a similarity of argument. It is as undesirable that there should be a score or two of different laws regulating the market for securities as that there should be inconsistent regulation of railway rates.

Although the fashion was set in Kansas and was most followed in the West, New York was not exempt from the contagion. One House passed the Goldberg bill over the protest of the Chamber of Commerce, and the nature of the arguments before the Supreme Court shows vitality in the idea that there can be a pure food law passed for investments. It is amusing that the West should think it necessary to defend itself against the sale of Eastern securities, for the East is a sufferer from many Western investment misadventures. There is a particular reason why New York is interested more than the West in the "blue sky" argument. Western States have only local financial markets. There is semblance of reason why such markets should be under local control. But the Eastern States, and particularly New York, finance the continent.

Laws which, like these annulled in the lower courts and appealed to Washington, forbid a mail business in securities disturb interstate finance unendurably, from the point of both borrowers and lenders. Missouri, South Carolina, Kentucky, and Texas are among States which have badgered foreign insurance companies into legal resistance to unwise statutes. The Federal regulation of such matters could hardly be worse, and might not be better, but there would be a single set of rules to be obeyed. The appeal from the States to the United States, therefore, is reasonable. The defense of the States against the Federal invasion of what they have considered their prerogatives is to pass better laws. It would be better if State conventions of Attorneys General and Commissioners should concern themselves with the perfection of State legislation rather than with attacks upon Federal regulation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

It Probably Was Time for a Change.

Something, and even much, of the disappointment and discouragement into which the believers in prison reform along the lines of the "new penology" were thrown by Mr. Osborne's petulant abandonment of the task he had so well begun in Sing Sing, will be removed by statements of opinions and purposes made by Calvin Derrick, the present Acting Warden, in an interview printed by The Evening Post.

Mr. Derrick clearly manifested, by what he said, that he has both the inclination and the ability to make the best of conditions as they exist. He does not find it impossible to conduct the prison in a humane and scientific manner while Mr. Whitman is Governor and Mr. Carter is Superintendent. Probably his views as to what should and what should not be done with and for the convicts do not agree entirely with theirs, but he credits these officials with his own aspirations for the removal of the old abuses, and evidently he is prepared to make the best of a situation which he is far from considering intolerable or hopeless.

The order to restrict the liberties of long-term prisoners and "lifers," for instance, Mr. Derrick has interpreted as one that can be obeyed without abolishing the Mutual Welfare League, or even injuring its efficiency. This he does by classifying his charges, not according to the length of the sentences imposed on them in court at the time of their conviction, but in accord with the number of months or years they still have to serve. In other words, he considers a man whose sentence is about to expire a short-term prisoner, and that he certainly is so far as regards his likelihood not to defer release by violation of confidences reposed in him.

That Superintendent Carter will accept this interpretation of his order as sensible is to be expected from his known character. And it is no reflection upon the motives of Mr. Osborne—it is not even to deny that he, rather than Mr. Derrick, was required for beginning the much-needed reformation of Sing Sing—to express the belief that Mr. Derrick is better fitted than he to carry on the work. What at one time are high qualifications at others not infrequently are disqualifications. If Mr. Osborne had been less inclined to go too far, probably he could not have conquered as well as he did the obstacles that confront the innovator. There is present need, however, for the greater practicality and adaptability displayed by Mr. Derrick, his sincere friend and sympathizer.

An Officer Who Can Be Trusted.

Ready as are the severely harassed taxpayers of New York City to commend efforts to cut down municipal expenditures, there is more than improbability that anything like a majority of them will thrill with sympathetic approval when they note that Tilden Adamson, Director of the Board of Estimate's Bureau of Contract Supervision, wants to cut down the fund used by the Commissioner of Police in the endless fight with vice and indecency.

Economy is a fine thing, but New York has become firmly convinced that Commissioner Woods is not at all likely to waste money intrusted to him. It has had many evidences, since he assumed the position now held by him, that he has both competence and discretion—that his management of the police force is well calculated to bring out and into play all of the good qualities of its members and to restrain the manifestations of some qualities that are not so good. We have seen the efficiency with which he has handled the strike of urban railway employés, the success with which he has given a form of military training to the patrolmen, and the skill with which he has interested great numbers of ununiformed citizens in the preservation of order in times of emergency.

All this has been done so quietly, with such careful avoidance of the sensational, that the Commissioner's achievements have not attracted all the attention they deserved. They have not passed unnoticed, however, and, if there exists here any inclination to restrict the Commissioner's activities or to distrust his judgment, it must be for the most part in the class—to which Mr. Adamson, by the way, does not belong—with whose activities the Commissioner has interfered in a very vigorous manner.

Making Useless Trouble.

A special unwisdom seems to shadow the efforts of the British Government to prevent American tobacco from getting into Germany. Not only do these efforts irritate the American growers and the neutral shopowners who are not unreasonably suspected of desiring to transport from our shores more of the consoling weed than their own countrymen can want to buy. They also prevent the Germans from spending a lot of money for something that can hardly be said to increase their military efficiency against the Allies—for something which, according to not a few authorities, will decrease it.

A vindictive Briton might, indeed, enjoy depriving the Germans of a highly valued luxury, but all practical considerations seem to be against interference with this particular traffic. The Germans presumably have to pay big prices for all of the American tobacco they get by way of Holland or Scandinavia, and, if they want to spend large quantities of their not too abundant money for something that neither satisfies hunger nor can be fired out of a gun, why don't the Britishers let them do it as much as they please?

But no, they take the opposite course, and give our tobacco planters an excuse, or better, for loud and emphatic orations on the subject of interference with lawful trade! Cotton, now, is different, for cotton has potentialities of a violently explosive sort. Tobacco has none of them—except for the tyro experimenter with it, and few Germans of military age are susceptible to its pains and dangers.

LENGTH OF BORDER DUTY.

Right of Guardsmen to Know What the Government Intends to Do.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with great satisfaction and pleasure the excellent letter that Governor Whitman wrote to President Wilson on Sept. 21 in regard to the retention of the National Guard on the border of Texas. Mr. Whitman, in this admirable letter, voices the opinion of the people of New York City and State, whether directly or indirectly interested in the militia from this State.

"It is furthest from my thoughts or intentions," he says, "to raise any questions which may embarrass you in any way or affect any negotiations under way, &c. But, on the other hand, the great majority of these men have been and are now so seriously affected by their personal service that some announcement at this time as to the probable duration of their future stay at the border would seem fitting, in order that they may be able to adjust themselves and their affairs accordingly. They have responded and performed so well every duty which so far has fallen to their lot under your call that, if they cannot be returned at an early date, they should at least be informed, if possible, how much longer their service may be required."

This is a fair and just request on Governor Whitman's part. He is not speaking of a set date; he is speaking of weeks, and possibly months. It is information that the men and their families have a right to know.

When Mr. Wilson called out the citizen military organization on June 18, he then and there should have called for volunteers, or, failing in this, a draft for the regular army, who by this time would have been so trained and organized that they could now relieve the National Guard from a duty they would not have been compelled to perform had this country in the last years increased the army to its proper strength. This at least, would have been the just and fair thing to do.

Mr. Wilson says in part: "From the beginning of the difficulty which necessitated the call for the militia I have been amply sensitive of the inconvenience caused to the members of these citizen military organizations by the separation from their families and from their ordinary business engagements and pursuits."

Had Mr. Wilson called for volunteers last June, his reply to Governor Whitman, published in The Times, would read with more sincerity.

False War Reports.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of THE TIMES Mrs. Atherton asks: "What will the German people, particularly the non-Prussian German people, do when the war is over and they learn how systematically they have been lied to?"

I am a foreigner and not able to express myself as ably as Mrs. Atherton in the English language, but I will make an attempt to answer her question. I have lived years in France, Germany, and England, and I absolutely disbelieve her statement about the deception in war news as stated by her and her friends.

But let us suppose there were some truth in it. What did the Belgian people, who had been told of their own victories and the subsequent retreat of the German armies say after the fall of Liege, the taking of Bruxelles, Ostend, and Antwerp? While England and France jubilantly recorded the fall of several forts at the Dardanelles, of wonderful victories over the Turks, the destruction of the bridge in Constantinople, and the commanders of the allied armies in Gallipoli boasted that the strait would be theirs at Easter, they fled, leaving their dead and wounded behind. What did the English people do when they learned how systematically they had been lied to? Today England is busy with the inquiries into several colossal blunders. In Russia the papers were full of "Our victorious armies on their way to Berlin," while Hindenburg was indulging in the victory at Tannenberg, and the swamps surrounding the battlefield were alive with the death struggle of the victims of the "great Russian offensive." Does Mrs. Atherton know what the Russian people will be saying when they learn how systematically they have been lied to? And the American people? What about the system of lies which has surrounded them since the beginning of the most terrible of wars? I fully agree with the editor of a New York paper, when he claims that the father of lies could learn a lot of tricks if he loafed around certain war news bureaus these days.

A TOKEN.

We may not give to France much aid in men
To fill her trenches, strengthen her steel line,
But from our coffers, by a stroke of pen,
Across the sea to her we send a sign.

The interest of a debt? Not that, indeed!
Wealth cannot pay for blood that valor shed!
'Tis but remembrance of our time of need,
When Frenchmen followed where the Marquis led.

So, from her store, America will give
This token from a land that, strong and hale,
Thinks back on days when scarcely could she live—
When help was brought her by Rochambeau's sail.

And they who shall receive this gift of gold
Were shed by men who kissed the blade
Of death, as proof that France has still the mold
To make her legions of the unafraid.

READY FOR A LONG WAR.

British Determination to Defeat German Domination.

New York, Oct. 18, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In my last mail from Great Britain I received two private letters—one from the head master of a large "preparatory school," situated very close to Aldershot, and one from the editor of the Encyclopædia Britannica. The one from the head master is as follows:

* * * Naturally we are very much pleased with the so far results of our Somme offensive. It is good for us Englishmen to feel that the fighting spirit and its qualities of cheerfulness, endurance, and audacity survive and burn just as brightly as they did in Picardy 500 years ago. Our clerks, our shopmen, our yokels, to say nothing of our gentlemen, are doing as heroically as their forbears did at Agincourt. I think the Germans are shaken, and I believe their leaders are really afraid. But if they lived in England and were capable of understanding the psychology of another people they would be in despair. You must be living here today to understand the spirit of the nation. If ever we deserved to be called bulldogs it is today. Undeterred by losses, unelated by victories, the whole nation is definitely resolved to win this war completely. There is absolutely no grumbling about taxes or the cost of living. Those who have lost relations or friends are proud rather than sorry, and this is true of all classes. We have made up our minds that nothing is to count so long as Wilhelm is put under. I wish I were a better writer, for I do want to make you feel the really terrible determination which animates us today.

The letter from the editor of the Encyclopædia Britannica reads as follows:

* * * If the free and great German people showed any signs of taking the initiative in repudiating those who made the war and have made such a hell of its conduct, and in giving guarantees for the future, things might be made easier for them. But we don't mean to take any chances if we go on till doomsday. Best make no errors about that. Things have gone too far. If the war had been honorably fought by Germany and we had been able at any early stage of it to make her see that she was beaten, the settlement could have been made accommodating. But not now, and it is no good to cherish any illusions. The business will be finished.

I believe these two letters to be nothing but an illustration of what practically every well educated and thoughtful Englishman thinks and feels today. And it seems to me that these two letters, which are only samples of many that I have received, show that the English people are not desirous of crushing the German people, but they are determined, as they were in Napoleon's day, that no one man, nor caste, shall dictate and rule the world; that the world must be free to develop along natural lines and not through great armies. Thus, the German people have it in their own power to stop this war when and as they want to.

In Honor of Enlisted Men.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some days ago considerable space on your editorial page was devoted to a laudation of the authorities for condescending to name a military camp at El Paso in honor of a non-commissioned officer who was recently killed in line of duty. It has since been noted that several other papers found enough of "story" interest in this incident to give it several inches of space, as though such honor had never before been given an enlisted man. Even The Washington Star refers to this matter as "an unexampled compliment to the memory of an enlisted man."

Please allow attention to be called to the fact that the service is not so slow substantially to recognize the bravery and heroism of the enlisted personnel as this recent enthusiasm might lead one to suppose. In Nogales, Ariz., the camp occupied by the Twelfth Infantry is known as Camp Stephen Little. Stephen Little, a private of Company L, Twelfth Infantry, was killed in action in a fight with the Mexicans on the morning of Nov. 26, 1915. Just why that "unpleasantness" between the Mexicans and the United States soldiery of Nov. 26 last year should have been passed up as good "copy" and so much space given the recent affair in which Sergeant Bierne lost his life is not apparent.

The Church and Divorce.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read your editorial article, "Reactionary Churchmen," with mingled feelings of interest and disapproval. You clearly state the position of the world in the matter, which, as usual, is in conflict with the law of Christ. It is not a question of what is expedient, or even what is popular, that the Church has to decide—but what is right. That our country, among the so-called Christian countries, has the most shameful record in divorce and remarriage is not an enviable position for us to hold in the world; and every effort on the part of right-thinking men to check this terrible evil should be supported by patriotic citizens. Granted that by a stringent prohibition to ever remarry a divorced person the Church causes the innocent to suffer with the guilty, the principle of vicarious suffering is too much a part of human life and of Christian theology to be denied by the Christian Church. It is the business of the Church to proclaim the law of Christ, and to hold up fearlessly in the face of unpopularity and contempt the divine law which she has received.

Advantages of a Terminal Market.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The rising prices of foodstuffs are forcing a lower standard of living on the people. Unusual demand, short supply, and insufficient means of getting the supply to the market are likely to make prices higher in the future. The necessity for wholesale terminal markets will force itself on our consideration, because they are the only mechanism by which increased supplies may be brought into our cities and distributed cheaply to the people. A wholesale terminal market capable of handling trainloads and shiploads of products would reduce prices in two ways—first, by lessening the cost of handling, and, second, by increasing the supply. Thousands of our people have returned recently from the country, and I venture to say that hardly one is without some knowledge of farm products wasted in the country for lack of facilities to bring them into the city. The demand for space in cars and boats for general freight prevents foodstuffs from coming to market. A terminal market would add to our transportation facilities because it would release quickly boats and cars now delayed in getting in and out of market.

Ground Rent and Preparedness.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your report of my Bronx Forum speech yesterday is substantially correct, but the point which I stressed particularly is omitted. I urged that most of the ground rent of the country should be taken for the cost of government in order to open up opportunity for the people and as the most fundamental measure of real preparedness. I also suggested that no American citizen should be permitted to take concessions in any foreign country without the approval of our Government and of the Government of that country and without signing a waiver not to ask that our army and navy be sent to help him enforce his concession.

MILITIA MUST SERVE UNDER DEFENSE ACT

Circuit Court Upholds Federal Power—Ruling Affects 40,000 Men in National Guard.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today that members of the State militia were still in service for Federal military purposes, notwithstanding their failure to take the oath under the National Defense act of last June. This decision reverses a recent order of the Federal District Court. The case was considered a test of the application of the new law, on which disposition of similar cases in other States will depend.

The Court's opinion, from which Judge Putnam dissented, vacated a decree under which Alexander M. Emerson and Alfred P. Lowell, cavalrymen, were released from military custody. Directions were given in each instance that the trooper be returned to the military authorities from whom he was taken. The cases of Emerson, who refused to take the new oath, and of Lowell, who asserted that he had subscribed to it under duress and threat, were considered by the court as one, the same finding being returned in each.

The general question involved, according to the opinion, is whether the National Defense act repeals provisions of the Dick law, authorizing the President to use the organized State militia to repel invasion and suppress insurrections, whether it is left altogether at the option of members of the State militia to sign a new enlistment contract, and whether, in the event of a refusal to sign, the militiamen is mustered out.

"The act of 1916, being one for national defense," the opinion said, "and one for more effectual provisions to that end, and Congress, upon its passage, being under the weight of well-known existing conditions of foreign menace, and in the presence of a recent invasion by an organized military body of armed men from a foreign country, the view is an impossible one that Congress intended to make it optional with the whole or any substantial part of the organized military force of the States to march or not, at will, in furtherance of the duty which they had previously assumed."

The court's interpretation of the statute was "that it keeps out of the National Guard, as distinctively standardized, such members of the militia as do not voluntarily engage for the higher obligations."

Emerson and Lowell, with three other militiamen—Rockwell C. Tenney of Springfield, J. B. Angevene of Brookline, and C. W. Jackson of Boston—obtained their release from the mobilization camp at Framingham, Mass., last August through habeas corpus proceedings in the District Court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Approximately 40,000 National Guardsmen on the border, or nearly one-half of the total force of State troops now in the Federal service, are concerned in the ruling of the United States Court of Appeals in the Massachusetts case. Had the lower court been sustained, army legal officers said today, it would have been necessary to discharge that number of guardsmen from the service immediately.

PLANS HARD TRY-OUT OF TIMES BIPLANE

Carlstrom Will Put Chicago-New York Machine Through a Searching Test Today.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Oct. 18.—The final touches in the experimental alterations in the aeroplane in which Victor Carlstrom is to fly from Chicago to New York for THE NEW YORK TIMES were completed late this afternoon, but the experimental flight itself was postponed until tomorrow morning, as the Curtiss aviation field, north of Buffalo, was by that time busied with the preparations for a race between one of the biplanes used in the aviation school and a racing automobile.

The race itself developed a surprise for the crowd of spectators. As had been predicted by the experts, Lieutenant Phil Rader, flying with a newspaper man as passenger, was beaten by the automobile, which was driven by Paul Nestor, with Augustin Parla accompanying him. The strong wind blowing almost straight down the course was too much for Rader, but before the racers had covered a quarter of the three-mile course they were joined by Carlstrom, flying the Curtiss triplane scout, and for the rest of the course he made circles and figure eights around and above both racers, beating them to the finish line by a full quarter of a mile.

Carlstrom expects to begin his second experimental flight in THE TIMES machine at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and to spend most of the day in trying its behavior under stress.

Howard Huntington, a Director of the American Society of Aeronautic Engineers, and an aeroplane builder, said yesterday he considered the projected Chicago-New York flight practically certain of success. He has had long experience in aeronautics, and built several machines for the Mexican Government, one of which Leonard Bonney flew with success for some months while he was an aviation officer in the Carranza Army. Mr. Huntington considered THE TIMES flight from a technical standpoint, and gave scientific reasons for its successful completion.

"THE TIMES flight," Mr. Huntington said, "will do more than anything yet attempted to convince the public of the practicability and safety of human flight.

"People have asked me if the flight was possible. From my knowledge of aviation, I had become so accustomed to think in terms of great distances, heavy loads, and great speed, that I was surprised to find that any one still doubted the feasibility of THE TIMES flight. It is evident that it is much needed to convince the people of this country that a new era in transportation has arrived, and THE TIMES deserves great credit for making the demonstration."

COLLEGE HONORS McANENY.

City Institution Makes Him Head of Its Board of Trustees.

At a meeting of the Trustees of the College of the City of New York, George McAneny, ex-President of the Aldermen, was elected Chairman of the Trustees to succeed Major Charles E. Lydecker. Mr. McAneny was appointed by Mayor Mitchell a member of the Board of Trustees last June, and he has been elected to the place held formerly by Edward M. Shepard, an alumnus of the City College, in whose office Mr. McAneny studied law.

Although the registration for the night session and the division of vocational subjects and civil administration of the college is not complete, Professor Robinson, the Director, reports that about 2,500 night students have enrolled and that the final figure will probably be much larger. The students of the night session are mainly business men and municipal employes. The demand for the accountancy courses and allied subjects leading to the diploma of graduate in accountancy has so far exceeded expectations that for the present the college has stopped enrolling new students until additional instructors can be obtained.

There has also been a big demand for engineering courses. The enrollment in the foundational courses is so great as to lead the Director to believe that next year the City College will have one of the largest groups of engineering students in the United States.

COUNT SHOWS CARS ARE NEARLY NORMAL

Times' Figures Taken at Broadway and 34th Street and at Times Square.

PASSENGERS HAVE TO WAIT

At Both Street Intersections Cars Pass in Bunches, with Considerable Blank Periods Between.

In order to ascertain to what extent the surface car service had been impaired by the strike, a NEW YORK TIMES reporter counted yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock the Green line cars that passed the junction at Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street.

In that hour, forty-six Sixth Avenue cars passed going north and thirty-four going south. On Broadway, thirty-four cars passed going north and thirty-eight going south. The Thirty-fourth Street Crosstown line ran thirty-six east-bound and thirty-two west-bound.

At Times Square, between 4 and 5 o'clock, sixteen east-bound cars and twenty west-bound passed on the Forty-second Street Crosstown line; six Forty-second Street cars directed for Long Island City went by; twenty-six south and east bound cars of the Broadway division passed and eighteen west and north bound; forty-four Broadway cars of the Columbus and Amsterdam divisions passed going north and fifty-seven going south; twenty-one north-bound Seventh Avenue cars went by and twenty-three south-bound.

At the offices of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company it was said that the normal car service on particular lines for special hours could not be obtained, but that the service throughout the city was about 85 per cent. of normal. THE TIMES' count would indicate that, in actual number of cars running, except on the Broadway division, Seventh Avenue and Forty-second Street Crosstown lines, the service was nearly normal, but passengers were inconvenienced with the irregularity with which all of the cars ran.

They passed the two street intersections in bunches, frequently from two to four and even six of the same line going in the same direction with only a comparatively few feet between them. After each such bunch had passed there would be periods of minutes with no cars of the same line and direction passing. How much of this irregularity was due to strike conditions and how much to traffic blocks could not be determined.

The Citizens' Committee, of which the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise is the chairman, will meet at the Union Square Hotel this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock to hear the report of its investigators who have been counting cars all over the city to determine whether the strike is over, as the traction companies claim, or whether the strikers, as the latter maintain, are seriously disturbing the service.

Outbreaks of disorder in connection with the strike continued yesterday, the most serious being the alleged attack of Hugh MacCourt, 30 years old, a striking motorman, of 514 West 126th Street, upon Sebastian Haas, a baker, of 323 East 125th Street, and Policeman Fitzgerald of the East 126th Street Police Station. According to Haas, he was on his way to work early yesterday morning when MacCourt, mistaking him for a strikebreaker, assaulted him with a knife, inflicting a slight wound in the back.

Other strikers were with MacCourt, Haas said, but fled when Policeman Fitzgerald, hearing cries for help, came up running. Fitzgerald said that when he reached the scene of the assault, MacCourt attempted to cut him with the knife. The prisoner was arraigned before Magistrate Krotel and held in $3,000 bail for examination tomorrow on a charge of felonious assault.

Three former Union Railway employes and a sympathizer, all charged with throwing stones at cars in the Bronx yesterday, were held in $1,000 bail each for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Brough in the Morrisania Court.

SAY MEN ARE INTIMIDATED.

Half of the Westchester Strikers Want to Work, Officials Say.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 18.—According to the police estimate more than 50 per cent. of the striking employes of the Westchester division of the Third Avenue Railways Company want to return to their work, but have refrained from doing so from fear of the officials of the Street Railways' Union. It was said today that the visit William B. Fitzgerald, organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, made to this city yesterday was for the purpose of appealing to dissatisfied strikers.

"Hold out until Oct. 21," Mr. Fitzgerald is reported to have said. "Whitridge will give in on that date."

Eight cars were in operation in this city to-day, while in normal times forty-two cars are run. At dark the service ceases because, while no open violence has been reported since Oct. 9, the police fear there may be trouble at any time.

"The tie-up has been built upon intimidation," Superintendent Wheeler, who has filled every job in the division from motorman to his present one, said tonight. "Bill Smith, for instance, who has been in the employ of the company for twenty-seven years, refused to go out on strike. Now he has to be taken home under a police guard, for certain persons have threatened that they would get him. He also has had to get a permit to carry a revolver. On one occasion his home was stoned by strikers, men who were once his friends.

"Four of the union men came to see me; later one of them informed me that he had been told upon his return to the local headquarters that he and his friends ought to get what Roger Casement got for daring to speak to the Superintendent. J. W. Sarani, one of our employes, got out of town at the instance of his parents, because they had been informed that something very serious would happen to their son if he did not quit. Sarani called me up from New York to tell me where he was."

Louis Fridiger, metropolitan counsel of the Amalgamated, denied that the union was resorting to intimidation. He asserted that there were no men to his knowledge who wanted to return to work until their demands were met.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The Duke of Orleans is about to apply to the Pope for the annulment of his marriage to the Archduchess Marie Dorothea of Austria, according to the Figaro. The Duke contends that the marriage was not concluded on the Austrian side in accordance with all the requirements of ecclesiastical law.

The Duchess of Orleans won a suit for separation in January, 1914. It was reported that she charged the Duke with neglect. She is childless.

At the outbreak of the war the Duke, in sending back the insignia of the Golden Fleece to the Emperor of Austria, wrote that his marriage had been the curse of his life.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Norman Duncan, author of travel stories, died suddenly this afternoon of heart disease at the clubhouse of the Willowbrook Country Club at Fredonia, where he had been playing a golf match with several friends. He stopped playing, complaining of severe pains in his throat, which he believed to be due to neuritis from which he had been suffering. He seemed to grow better as he walked toward the clubhouse, but when he reached the steps he suddenly collapsed. He was carried inside and attended by two physicians, but died thirty minutes later. Mr. Duncan had been for several weeks staying with his brother, Dr. Ernest Duncan, at Fredonia.

Mr. Duncan was born at Brantford, Ontario, in 1871, and was educated at the University of Toronto. Later he was a correspondent of Harper's Magazine in Syria, Palestine, Arabia, Egypt, Australia, New Guinea, Dutch East Indies, and the Malay States. He had previously made many journeys to Newfoundland and Labrador, which had furnished him with the background for much of his fiction.

He was author of "The Soul of the Street," "The Way of the Sea," "Dr. Luke of Labrador," "Dr. Grenfell's Parish," "The Mother," "The Adventures of Billy Topsail," "The Cruise of the Shining Light," "Every Man for Himself," "Going Down from Jerusalem," "The Suitable Child," "The Measure of a Man," "The Best of a Bad Job," "A God in Israel," and "Australian Byways."

Mr. Duncan was a member of the City Club of New York, and his home was in Willoughby, Ohio.

TWO AMERICAN RACQUET WIELDERS TO INVADE FAR EAST IN QUEST OF TITLE

JERSEY NET STARS IN ORIENT TOURNEY

Church and Throckmorton First Easterners to Enter Distant Tennis Series.

KUMAGAE NOW CHAMPION

Recent Japanese Visitor Expected to Defend Title—Californians May Be Absent.

When the tennis championship of the Orient is played at the Manila Tennis Club in January a team of two players from the Atlantic seaboard will be entered against the formidable rivals from the Far East and perhaps against some from California. George M. Church of Tenafly, N. J., one of the most successful players during the past season, and Harold A. Throckmorton of Elizabeth, holder of the national junior championship as well as the New Jersey State title, are the two who will try conclusions in the tournament in the Philippines. The men will leave the East about Nov. 23 and will sail from Vancouver on the Empress of Russia Nov. 30. They will go to the Philippines by way of Japan, but will do no playing in the land of Nippon on the way out. On the return trip, however, they will probably compete in the first tournament for the championship of Japan and may also play in the tournament at Honolulu.

No one from the Atlantic seaboard has ever made the long trip to the Philippines for the sake of playing in the Far East championship. The representatives in the past have been drawn from California. In 1913 William M. Johnston, the national singles champion of a year ago, was the winner of the championship of the Orient, and last year two of the Californians competed, Clarence J. Griffin and Ward Dawson. Both fell before the superior play of Ichiya Kumagae. Kumagae is therefore the present title holder and it is practically certain that he will defend his title against the pilgrims from the East.

Californians May Not Play.

Edwin S. Gee, the veteran American player, who has been in the Philippines for a number of years, has been interested keenly in making the tournament for the championship of the Orient a success, and this year he set about early in the endeavor to obtain the entry of men from the Atlantic coast. He consulted with the veteran internationalist, Frederick B. Alaxander, who was of the opinion that one or two of the Eastern men might accept the invitation to play. Griffin and Dawson are the doubles champions, but it is not at all certain that they will defend; in fact, the probabilities are against it. Kumagae and Mikami were the runners up to Griffin and Dawson for the doubles title last year, and Church and Throckmorton may be called upon to face them in the coming tournament.

Kumagae, the present champion of the Orient, made his debut in this country during the last season, and his play was rewarded with a number of successes. In the national championships at Forest Hills, however, he was put out of the running in the second round by Church, who won in straight sets at 6—3, 6—3, 6—1. Only two weeks before Kumagae had defeated the then national champion, William M. Johnston, at Newport. But should Church and Kumagae meet in the final round of the Manila tournament, it is by no means certain that Church would be able to repeat his victory. Climatic conditions and the long trip will raise a handicap which the Eastern men will find it hard to overcome, and Kumagae, on the other hand, seems to thrive best when the thermometer is near the 100 mark.

TENNIS STOPPED BY RAIN.

Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Leroy Halted in Close Match at Hot Springs.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 18.—Rain again interfered with the Hot Springs tennis tournament today and prevented the playing of matches scheduled for this afternoon. The semi-final round in men's and women's singles were begun this morning, but were not played to the finish because of the downpour.

Mrs. Rawson L. Wood and Mrs. Robert Leroy of New York played in their semi-final match in women's singles in a hard shower, and were on the courts from 10:30 to 1:30. Mrs. Wood won the first set, 10—8, Mrs. Leroy won the second set, 6—4, and it was 6—all in the deciding set when rain drove them from the courts. Mrs. Barger Wallach of Newport played a convincing game in her match with Mrs. H. H. Smith, whom she beat 6—2, 6—2.

Robert Leroy of New York won in the semi-final round in men's singles, defeating Alfred S. Dabney, 3—6, 6—3, 6—1. Count Otto Salm of New York won his first set at 6—2 from H. R. Burroughs and Fred Inman of New York won the first set at 6—2 from Francis Roche. The second set stood at 11—all when stopped by the rain.

In the men's doubles Craig Biddle and Edgar Scott of Philadelphia won from Boris Kuechein, New York, and H. R. Buroughs, 6—2, 6—1, and Alfred S. Dabney and Francis Roche won from G. Jarvis Geer and W. Weeks, New York, by default.

The first round was started in mixed doubles, Mr. and Mrs. J. Maguire beating Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Toucey, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. D. G. Vanderbilt and W. Earle Dodge beat Miss Anne Williams, Baltimore, and Francis Roche, 6—8, 8—6, 6—3. Miss Hilda Holmes and A. W. Pearce, New York, beat Miss Helen Hinman and B. P. Elebash, New York, 6—2, 6—2.

BLAGDEN HELPS HARVARD.

Assists Haughton by Coaching Line in Brisk Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct 18.—Crawford Blagden, '02, who, since he played tackle on David Campbell's great Harvard team fifteen years ago, has helped coach the Harvard rush line every year, made his first appearance of the season on Soldiers Field this afternoon. Percy Haughton also jumped into the thick of things, following up yesterday's rapidfire coaching in brisk fashion and working his team mighty hard, although for not so long a scrimmage as it went through yesterday.

The freshman team was reserved until tomorrow, today's drill again being against the scrubs. Three touchdowns were scored and the 'Varsity again showed many signs of improvement in the very little defensive work they had to do. Haughton kept back of the 'Varsity all through the play, and the team got together in good shape. Blagden did a lot of coaching, and the line plays went better than for some time. Westmore Willcox, Harvard's quarter miler, made several really brilliant end runs for good gains, but the team held to straight football and there was no forward passing. The first string men lined up as they did yesterday and the day before. Wheeler at left tackle and Day at right guard were really the only line substitutes. Wheeler, in Taylor's place, is putting up a very aggressive game and is coming along very fast. Day has had two years' work with the scrubs, and knows a lot of football, besides handling his great weight in very satisfactory fashion.

Caner was again on the right wing, but it will not be long before he will have to contend against Sweetser, who should be back after the Massachusetts State game. Clark, with Sweetser, was on the field today, the former in playing clothes, although he did not take part in the play. Thacher, who was in the regular backfield when hurt ten day ago, is almost ready for work, but the rest of the cripples have not as yet put on their football togs.

In the scrimmage all of the substitutes were used. Billy Murray got a lot of speed into the play after substituting for Robinson. Burnham, Horween and Horne each scored a touchdown at the end of a short but steady series of line gains down near the scrub team's goal.

COLUMBIA IN TIE GAME.

Arkansas Sailors Provide Good Practice for Morningside Team.

Instead of the customary midweek practice game between the 'Varsity and the scrubs at Columbia yesterday, the regular eleven had for a scrimmaging opponent the team from the battleship Arkansas, coached by Ensign Armstrong, the Annapolis end of two seasons ago. A forty-minute game, with many of the features of a regular contest lacking, ended in a tie score at 6 to 6 after coaches of both combinations had directed most of the manoeuvres to offensive work.

Captain Healy kicked off to the tars, who were forced to relinquish the leather after unsuccessful attempts to gain the distance. On the fourth play a trick delayed pass enabled I. Rosen to scamper across the sailors' line for the first touchdown. Later the ball was put in play near the Columbia line, without the formality of a kick-off, and, spurred on to greater offensive by the coaches, the battleship crewmen forced the pigskin across the chalk mark to tie the score. Stell, right half back, carried the ball across the line. The line-up:

Columbia, (6.)	Position.	Arkansas, (6.)
Donnell	L. E.	Duff
Healy	L. T.	Welch
Raegener	L. G.	Hurd
Goldberg	C.	Stednitz
Cleveland	R. G.	Kaltoff
Donaldson	R. T.	Kemp
Dunn	R. E.	Renzy
J. Rosen	Q. B.	Davidson
I. Rosen	L. H. B.	Matulatis
Brown	R. H. B.	Stell
Zychlinski	F. B.	Armstrong

Touchdowns—I. Rosen, Stell. Referee—Tom Thorp, Columbia.

Yesterday's rehearsal brought back into the Columbia fold Monroe, half back, and Kennedy, left end, both of whom were injured against Vermont last Saturday. Light work was the order for these men, and neither got into the scrimmage. Hal Vollmer, Captain of the Columbia swimming team and holder of the world's and intercollegiate records, has found football to his liking after several days of drills with the Junior class eleven, and yesterday reported for earnest practice with the 'Varsity squad.

TEXAS SAILORS WIN GAME.

Defeat Eleven of U. S. New York in First Gridiron Battle.

The first football game of a series to decide the gridiron supremacy of the First Division of the Atlantic Fleet of the United States Navy was played yesterday afternoon on the Prospect Park Parade Grounds, Brooklyn, with representatives of the battleships New York and Texas as the contestants. After a stiff battle, which was marked by incessant scrimmaging, the Texas contingent emerged victorious by the score of 19 to 0. The game was witnessed by many sailors and marines from the New York Navy Yard, where the ships of the contending teams are stationed. The line-up follows:

U. S. Texas (19.)	Position.	U. S. N. Y. (0.)
Foley	L. E.	Bergstron
Williams	L. T.	Tazler
Heilman	L. G.	Kingerberg
Tholifinx	C.	Miller
Barscheck	R. G.	L. Brown
Hanson	R. T.	Goodman
Hunt	R. E.	Manzarola
Brown	Q. B.	Ralston
Joys	L. H. B.	Kellog
Aiken	R. H. B.	Taylor
Billings	F. B.	Music

Touchdowns—Joys (2,) Williams. Goal from touchdown—Joys. Referee—Anthon Riche of the Arkansas. Linesman—Lieutenant Sanborn of the Arkansas. Time of periods—Two of ten minutes and two of nine minutes.

BLACK CANNOT PLAY IN GAME TOMORROW

Yale Captain Out of Virginia Polytechnic Contest—Sheldon and Taft Shifted.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 18.—Captain Black of the Yale eleven will be unable to play against Virginia Polytechnic Institute on Friday, and may be out of the game the following Saturday against Washington and Jefferson. An injury received to his leg in the Lehigh game last Saturday has developed an abscess, and he will be benched for several days. Sheldon has been given his position at left guard and Charley Taft today succeeded Sheldon at left tackle, where he will be retained probably during the season. Sheldon plays about equally well at guard and tackle and upon Black's return to the eleven is likely to be assigned to right guard.

Callahan, leading candidate for centre rush, who returned to practice Monday after a month's absence, again injured his ankle today slightly, but he expects to be able to start in Friday's game.

Head Coach Tad Jones notified the members of the backfield today that fumbling would be followed by their prompt dismissal to the scrub squad. He made good his threat in the case of Bingham and Braden, but was unable to carry it out when Quarter Back Van Nostrand later muffed the ball. Van Nostrand was the only quarter back available, and Jones relented in order that the 'Varsity might not be crippled.

The policy was adopted of putting the ball in play on the 'Varsity's five-yard line and compelling that team to march the full ninety-five yards down the field. Three times the 'Varsity covered the entire distance, Harry Le Gore carrying the ball across for two touchdowns and Joe Neville for one. During the last fifteen minutes of scrimmaging the 'Varsity team assumed the ball on the scrubs' fifteen-yard line and was compelled to take it across in four downs. Neville scored two touchdowns in this manner.

DARTMOUTH PLAYERS HURT.

Long-Drawn-Out Scrimmage Results in Three Casualties.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 18.—Apparently the Dartmouth coaches are somewhat worried over the game with Georgetown on Saturday, for today they put the entire squad through a hard workout. Tackling the dummy was followed by a long period of falling on the ball. Scrimmage was then ordered, and two teams selected from the squad battled up and down the field until darkness prevented further play. Poole, who was picked to fill Duhamel's position at full back, has a severe thigh bruise, and he has been replaced by R. Holbrook, who showed that he is capable of filling the position.

Several injuries marred today's work. Merrill, 'Varsity guard for two years, strained a tendon during the scrimmage. Lehman, a half back, sustained a painful back injury that will keep him off the field for the rest of the week, and R. Holbrook received a kick on the knee which bruised the cap.

CHANGES IN ARMY LINE-UP.

Ford Develops Bad Ankle and Is Kept Out of Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 18.—There were some changes in the Army 'Varsity's make-up during the scrimmage work this afternoon. Ford developed a bad ankle in last evening's drill, and was absent today, his place at left end going to House. Parks took Meacham's place at guard. Captain McEwan gave way after a short signal drill to Chapman at centre, while behind the line, Murrill again drove the big team at quarter with Harmon, Green and Cole making up the rest on the back filed. One touchdown came the 'Varsity's way on line-plunging plays, Green going over for the score.

All the 'Varsity men were in togs today except Ford. Vidal, Place, and Oliphant made up the backfield in the signal drill. Vidal did some drop kicking with more or less success, and Oliphant was called in to make a try at placement goal from the fifty-two-yard line. The ball had plenty of carry, but was a trifle wide of the posts. The drill was held on the North field, as the regular gridiron was given over to the cadets' Cullum Hall Squad and the U. S. M. A. detachment of field artillery, who played a game which the artillery men won, 8 to 0.

ADELPHI DISBANDS TEAM.

Football Games Canceled, as Boys Are Too Light to Meet Other Elevens

All football games scheduled for this season by Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, were ordered canceled yesterday by the Faculty Committee of the school. The action, which came as a distinct surprise, inasmuch as the school won the championship of Brooklyn for the past two years, was taken because of the overwhelming defeat of the light eleven by Brooklyn Prep last Saturday. In that game Brooklyn Prep rolled up a total of 113 points.

In explaining the cancelling of the remaining games of this season Dr. Henry D. Pettit, physical director of the school, asserted that the team is the lightest that has ever carried the Adelphi colors, averaging only 136 pounds. "We will not drop football permanently," Dr. Pettit added, "but we feel we should drop it now for fear some of our boys will be injured. For about six years we have had heavy teams, and this is the reaction—the slump. Football will be resumed as soon as we feel we can successfully cope with the heavier teams of other Brooklyn schools, which average from 152 to 163 pounds."

In temporarily dropping football Adelphi is following the example of Bushwick High three years ago. The schools affected by the decision of the Adelphi faculty authorities are Boys' High, Manual Training, Poly Prep, Flushing, and Erasmus. Steve McClave, who has coached the Adelphi team for many years, agreed with the Faculty that it would be dangerous to keep such a light team in the field for the remainder of the season.

FORDHAM CRIPPLES RETURN.

Caddell, May, and Golden Recover in Time for Susquehanna Game.

The Fordham football situation, which has been gloomy recently with five men on the crippled list, was relieved somewhat yesterday, when three of the quintet reported in uniform and participated in one of the hardest scrimmages of the year in preparation for the tussle with Susquehanna on Saturday. The three men who returned were Caddell, May, and Golden. All had been absent as a result of blood poisoning. It is expected that Kendricks, the only other regular on the list of cripples, will return before the next game.

Gargan drove the scrubs at the 'Varsity line for more than two hours yesterday. The second team, with the regular backfield to aid them most of the time, put up a stubborn attack and discovered many deficiencies in the regulars' line.

Taking a lesson from the recent accidents which have robbed him of his most depnedable men just before a game, Gargan tried out several players yesterday in new places to get them used to sudden changes if any are necessary in the tussles with Georgetown and the other rivals later in the year. Most of the experiments were made behind the line. Several of the backs had a chance at running the eleven from quarter. McNamara, the regular pilot, was succeeded by Callan and Golden. A change may be tried on Saturday.

TIGERS ON THE OFFENSIVE.

Rush Disappointed, but Tibbott Puts Over Three Drop Kicks.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—Head Coach Rush gave his 'Varsity a long drill on offensive play this afternoon in an effort to improve the scoring power of the Tigers. For nearly an hour the first-string men threw their attacks at the scrubs, who, strengthened by the addition of a number of 'Varsity substitutes, put up a stubborn resistance and made it very difficult for the Tigers to register any scores. Rush generally placed the ball on the 20 or 30-yard line, and then told the 'Varsity to carry it over in the least possible number of downs.

The attack of the Tigers was on the whole rather discouraging. At times brilliant flashes were visible, but Rush was evidently disappointed. That the defensive play of the Tigers is well up to standard was displayed in the game against Tufts, and it is probable that during the next few days there will be a great deal of time expended in drilling the 'Varsity on offensive play.

Dave Tibbott was a member of the backfield to-day, and he put over three pretty drop kicks from scrimmage when his teammates were not able to carry the ball over the scrubs' goal line.

Moore and Haas, who have both been kept out of practice by injuries, were able to report to-day. Keene Fitzpatrick, the Tiger trainer, was not willing that they should go into the scrimmage, however, and they confined their activities to a brief signal drill. Moore will probably not be able to take part in the Lafayette game this week, but he should have rounded into shape by the time of the Dartmouth contest.

A change in the wing positions on the 'Varsity would not cause much surprise here, as Funk is playing the kind of game that will hardly keep him off the first team. He weighs about 180 pounds, and with it he is fast.

GAME SET FOR PRINCETON.

Lafayette Gives Way and Will Send Team to Tigers' Lair.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Penn., Oct. 18.—The place where the Lafayette-Princeton football game will be played on Saturday is finally settled. It will be played at Princeton. The Lafayette Faculty met this afternoon and discussed at length the problem raised by the death of a Princeton student from infantile paralysis and then passed a resolution permitting the players necessary to play the game to go to Princeton, if Princeton still insisted on playing the game on its own grounds, but prohibiting the other students at the college from attending the game.

It was the desire of the Faculty that the game be played in Easton, and for that reason Dean Albert K. Heckle was sent with Coach Crowell to interview the Princeton authorities with a view to transferring the game to March Field. The result of the mission was unsuccessful.

Under the direction of Harold G. Brown, Lafayette's line coach, the 'Varsity and scrub battled to a tie score on March Field this afternoon, each side scoring a single touchdown. Scott and Lake, the Lafayette stars now ineligible to play with the 'Varsity, were put in the scrub backfield, and greatly strengthened the team. The 'Varsity line was strengthened by the addition of Bell, the middleweight wrestling champion at Lafayette.

THORPE HELPS AT PITT.

Coach Warner's Former Pupil Teaches Punters for a Day.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 18.—The University of Pittsburgh football squad were gladdened today by the appearance of Coach Glen Warner's old pupil, Jim Thorpe, the noted Indian athlete, who recently finished the baseball season with the Milwaukee club of the American Association. Although he announced that he was only paying a friendly visit to his old tutor, he put on a uniform and went out to the secret practice of the 'Varsity and paid particular attention to the punters.

Andy Hastings and Jimmy DeHart were the main objects of his attention, and he kept the two lads at this kind of work all afternoon. After the strenuous session was over he was high in his praise of Hastings, and said that any player that could go along regularly with an average of forty-five yards at punting need not be worried about.

Coach Warner drilled his men in formation and signal work, as well as in catching the long punts of Hastings and DeHart, in which particular they were deficient in the Navy game last Saturday. The coach said today he was satisfied that the weakness had been eradicated and prophesied a return to form in the game at Syracuse on Saturday.

VIM IN BROWN'S PRACTICE.

Delegation of Students Watches Lively Afternoon's Work.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 18.—Real football weather and a big squad of players all in good condition added zest to the scrimmage both yesterday and this afternoon at Andrews Field, and a feeling of optimism exists just now in football circles here at Brown. For an hour this afternoon in the presence of a big crowd of students, including many of the Brown boys who have just returned from the Texas border, two teams of almost equal strength battled with all the animation of a real game.

For a while a third team, using Williams' formation, lined up against the 'Varsity. Three touchdowns for the 'Varsity was the scoring result of the afternoon, Pollard figuring in each of them on long runs. Murphy and Purdy alternated at quarter for the 'Varsity, and three sets of backs were used during the afternoon.

TIFFANY'S SCORES LOWEST IN SERIES

Yale Man Wins Two Honors in University Club Golf Tourney, but Gets One Prize.

More than a hundred members of the University Club Golf Association journeyed down into Long Island yesterday to compete in the annual Fall tournament of the association, held over the links of the Nassau Country Club and the Piping Rock Club. Although a nipping frost numbed the fingers and blighted some of the scores, no serious casualties were reported, and all the players turned up safe and sound at nightfall after their circuits of the two courses. Those who played at Piping Rock in the morning made the afternoon round at Nassau, and vice versa.

C. L. Tiffany of Yale won the thirty-six-hole low gross prize with a card of 90 in the morning at Piping Rock and with a round of 78 at the more difficult Nassau course in the afternoon, giving him a total thirty-six-hole card of 168. His handicap of 12 for the thirty-six-hole journey also entitled him to the low net prize, but as each golfer was limited to one award, with the great majority getting none at all, Tiffany was automatically ruled out of the net prize contest by winning the gross.

J. D. Voorees of Princeton, with a card of 205—44, 161, and R. M. Fowler of Columbia, with 191—30, 161, tied for first and second low net prizes. H. H. Bottome of Yale was in undisturbed possession of third net prize with a card of 178—16, 162.

George T. Brokaw of Princeton, who was rewarded for winning the Spring tournament by being placed at scratch, won the best afternoon gross prize with an 87 at Piping Rock. The best Piping Rock afternoon net score was turned in by Dr. Imlay Benet, the President of the Mahopac Golf Club, whose 91 gross, with a 10 handicap, gave him an 81. The Nassau afternoon net contest was a triple tie between Seney Plummer, Harvard, 89—6, 83; F. A. Burlingame, Harvard, 103—20, 83, and R. M. Tarleton, Johns Hopkins, 91—8, 83. At this point the supply of prizes gave out and the remaining golfers received the congratulations of the committee for their fine work through the long, cold day.

The summaries:

S. L. Tiffany, Yale, 168, 12—156; J. D. Voories, Princeton, 205, 44—161; R. W. Fowler, Columbia, 191, 30—161; H. H. Bottome, Yale, 178, 16—162; J. T. ROBINS MADE MOST HITS

Led National League, While Red Sox Had Few in American.

It was the mighty battery of the Robins and their fine defense which brought them through the season with more hits to their credit and fewer errors charged against them than any other club in the National League that made Brooklyn the pennant winner in the Tener circuit, according to figures compiled from official box scores throughout the season. Though making fewer runs than the Giants, Brooklyn made more hits, and evidently made them count more than any other club, as the result of the pennant race indicates.

In the American League the Red Sox earned the title of hitless and runless wonders, for they captured the flag in spite of the fact that they made less hits than all their rivals except Philadelphia, and collected fewer runs than all of their opponents but Philadelphia and Washington.

The season which recently came to a conclusion with the trouncing of Brooklyn by the Red Sox in the world's series, had more unusual and interesting features than any season in recent years. Not only were the pennant races in both leagues closer and more evenly sustained than for many years, but in the American League every team with the exception of St. Louis and Philadelphia had the honor of leading all their rivals at week-ends. Only three clubs in the National League were ever out in front, these being Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston, and it was in the order named that they finished the season.

Though finishing fourth, the Giants, as shown by official box scores for the season, scored more runs than any other club in the circuit. Brooklyn, the pennant winner, ranked behind the Giants, with Philadelphia third. There were more Brooklyn players left on bases than any other team in the National League, but that was because the Robins got on the paths more frequently than any of their rivals.

The Brooklyn defense, led by a fine pitching staff, held off their opponents in great fashion, and there were fewer runs recorded against the Robins than against any other rival organization.

In the American League Bill Carrigan's champions had less errors charged against them than any other combination, while the Philadelphia aggregation had the most. St. Louis had the least number left on bases, while Detroit holds the record for stranded players. Boston also held its opponents in check better than the remainder of the teams, for the total number of runs scored against the Red Sox was less than that against any one of the other seven clubs, while that of the Athletics was the greatest.

The complete record of the sixteen clubs of the major leagues, showing runs, hits, errors, left on bases and runs by opponents, is as follows:

LEONARD SCORES KNOCKOUT

Hammer's Manager Stops Bout in the Twelfth Round.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 18.—Benny Leonard, New York lightweight, scored a technical knockout in the twelfth round of his fight with Ever Hammer of Chicago, here tonight. Hammer's manager stopped the bout to prevent his man being punished further after Hammer had been knocked down for the count of three. The fight was to have gone fifteen rounds.

In another ten-round bout Eddie Nugent and Walter Laurett will be opponents.

A special show will be staged at the Olympic Athletic Club in Harlem this evening, featuring two ten-round bouts. In the main bout Willie Jackson of the Bronx will oppose Jimmy Mahoney of Wilmington, Del., and in the other ten-round bout Benny Valgar, former amateur champion, and Willie Mack of Newark will be the principals.

HATCH SETS MARK FOR DISTANCE RUN

Beats Record by 3:16:30 for 95.7 Miles Between Milwaukee and Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—A heaping dish of ice cream and some lemonade was all that Sidney Hatch of Chicago, a veteran amateur marathon runner, wanted after he finished his record-breaking run of nearly ninety-six miles from Milwaukee to Chicago to-day. Then, after a brisk rub-down he went to bed for a twenty-four-hour sleep.

Officials of the Amateur Athletic Union declared that Hatch's performance probably was the most remarkable in history. He covered the distance—95.7 miles—in 14 hours 50 minutes 30 second, beating the former record by 3 hours 16 minutes 30 seconds.

Hatch finished the run at a dog-trot, just as he started in Milwaukee at 8 o'clock last night. He ran every step of the way, making only three stops for a total loss of 18 minutes, and finished strong, although ten pounds lighter. He averaged a mile every 8½ minutes.

Alex Monteverde of Johnstown, N. Y., who started as Hatch's pacemaker, was forced to drop out before three-fourths of the distance had been covered.

Hatch is 33 years old and has competed as an amateur for seventeen years. He has raced in more than forty-five marathon events, and a hundred or more shorter distance races.

The former record for the course was held by Al Corey of Chicago, who ran from Milwaukee to Chicago in 18 hours and 7 minutes in 1907. Besides beating the local record Hatch ran the distance nearly two hours faster than any established American mark. The best authenticated time for ninety-six miles was made in 1882, when J. Saunders of New York covered that distance in 16 hours 41 minutes 40 seconds in the course of a twenty-four-hour race.

GERRY'S JUMPER WINS

ADDED ENTRY WINS WILLOW KING PLATE

R. L. Gerry's Cresthill Triumphs Easily Over Favorite at Rose Tree Hunt Meet.

Special to The New York Times.

MEDIA, Penn., Oct. 18.—Cresthill, an added starter not listed on the program, won the famous Willow King Plate and carried off a purse of $1,000 at the first day's session of the Rose Tree Hunt Club's annual Fall race meet, held on the club's own track near here this afternoon. The second session will be held Saturday afternoon.

The winner of the Willow King Steeplechase is a rangy sorrel gelding owned by Robert L. Gerry of New York. Samuel D Riddle's J. C. Ewalt was the popular favorite, with George D. Widener's Elespian also having a strong following.

No one figured on Cresthill, but the gelding swung into line with Ewalt early in the race, held on until 220 yards from the finish, and then staged a sprint that carried him home an easy winner.

The first race was the Agricultural Stakes Handicap, for a purse of $50, over a course of six furlongs. The event was closely contested by six horses, owned by farmers in Delaware and Montgomery Counties. The race was won by Brandy A., owned by M. Haburn, but a protest was entered immediately after the finish that the victor was not a bonda fide farm horse.

The summaries of the other races follow:

SECOND RACE.—The Edgemont Plate, lightweight handicap, for two-year-olds and upward; purse $250, of which $50 to the second horse and $25 to the third. Won by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Torero; John Tucker's Mr. Specs, second. Time—1:30.

THIRD RACE.—The Willow King Plate, steeplechase, for three-year-olds and upward. Won by Cresthill, (Robert Gerry;) J. C. Ewalt, (Glen Riddle Farms,) second. Time—4:44½.

FOURTH RACE.—Sycamore Mills Plate, for three-year-olds and upward, handicap; purse $250. Won by Archdale, (M. L. Schwartz;) Ahara, (Charles R. Fleischmann,) second. Time—2:10½.

FIFTH RACE.—The Middletown Barrens Plate, steeplechase, handicap for hunters. Won by Sam Ball, (R. H. H. Toland;) Giganto I., (Charles Leedom,) second. Time—7:39½.

SIXTH RACE.—The Rose Valley Plate, steeplechase. Won by Marguery Jaque, (G. Bernard Fenwick;) M. J. Shannon, (M. L. Schwartz,) second. Time—4:55.

SEVENTH RACE.—The Members' Dinner Plate, for five-year-olds and upward. Won by Mariner, (Charles Leedom;) Skirr, (Joseph Hill Brinton,) second. Time—2:40½.

JOCK SCOT WINS HANDICAP.

Cochran's Youngster Beats Deer Trap and Lively at Laurel.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 18.—Nine two-year-olds started in the handicap which was the feature of the card at the Maryland State Fair Association track this afternoon. The winner of the race was Gifford A. Cochran's Jock Scot, a youngster which has shown a lot of speed and has improved greatly since he has been racing down in Maryland. The Ogden colt defeated Deer Trap, belonging to August Belmont, Chairman of The Jockey Club, and James Butler's Lively, the two coming along in the order named. Deer Trap carried top weight at 126 pounds, and, while the youngster ran well enough, the impost was a little too much for him.

The all-age selling event, at six furlongs, went to Gloaming, the four-year-old Star Shoot colt, belonging to William Shannon. The winner has been running very consistently since this meeting opened, and before this has only once been outside the money in his last seven starts.

HARD DAY FOR CORNELL.

'Varsity and Scrubs Scrimmage Until Darkness Falls.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The Cornell football team continued its hard drive this afternoon, battling the second eleven for more than one hour until darkness put an end to the fray. The 'Varsity made three touchdowns, two of them on long runs. For the most part, however, they had to fight for all of their gains. One touchdown resulted from a blocked punt, Brown spoiling Speed's kick and Hoff picking up the ball and running sixty yards for a score.

This was Hoff's first appearance in the 'Varsity line-up and his work indicates that he may become one of the regular 'Varsity ends. He played last year on the Freshman team and recently he has developed rapidly as a member of the 'Varsity squad. He is fairly heavy and promises to attain speed.

BOY LEADS CUE CHAMPION.

Ralph Greenleaf Shows Nerve on First Night of Title Play.

For once at least a "boy wonder" has equaled, even surpassed, expectations. In the first night's play for the pocket billiard championship of America Ralph Greenleaf, the sixteen-year-old boy from Monmouth, Ill., defeated the title holder, Frank Taberski of Schenectady, at Doyle's Academy by a score of 150 to 88, and his play merited all of the success which was attained. Confident and skillful, he overshadowed his rival even in the face of happenings that would have shaken the nerve of an older contestant, and won his way to the hearts of a big gathering of enthusiasts by the clean-cut manner of his play. Taberski, on the other hand, was lacking in the element of personal magnetism, the deliberation of his style of game detracting from the interest of the contest. Greenleaf was a rapid calculator and certain of his judgment, while Taberski was vacilating and at times woefully weak in execution.

The two occurrences which should have played havoc with Greenleaf's game and which were noteworthy because they failed in this particular came in the sixth and seventh innings. In the former the youthful exponent of the game made three scratches in succession and under the rules forfeited the remaining balls on the table to his opponent, the number in this instance being fourteen. The seventh inning produced another discouraging moment. With good position before him, Greenleaf called the fifteen ball but the referee, Albert G. Cutler, did not hear him, although the pronouncement was audible to many in the room, and the possibilities of a good position were forfeited when Cutler insisted upon the letter of the law and spotted the object ball.

All through the match the Western player was surcharged with a remarkable degree of billiard finesse. He was almost perfect in position play, and when it came to safety endeavor he furnished many an unhappy moment for the champion. It became evident shortly after the start of the match that Greenleaf was in fine fettle and that Taberski would be sorely pressed to obtain the advantage in the opening session of the three nights' play

The Schenectady contender, or rather defender, was truly brilliant at times, but there was not the steadiness which was necessary against a player such as Greenleaf. Stroke for stroke every advantage lay with the 16-year-old boy. Takerski showed no trace of nervousness, whereas his younger opponent was plainly at fever heat. The excitement of the moment when victory was in sight did not upset the merit of Greenleaf's play, and he not only held, but steadily increased his advantage. The scores:

Greenleaf—8 10 13 14 10 1 5 0 1 14 10 14 10 14 4 5 13 10 6. Total—150.
Scatches—12. High runs—28, 24, 16.
Taberski—6 4 1 0 4 14 9 14 13 0 4 0 4 0 10 9 1 4 3. Total—88.
Scratches—12. High run—21. Referee—Albert G. Cutler.

ABRAMS OUTCUES ELSOFFER

Wins 100 to 38 in Novice Billiard Tournament—Other Matches.

All of the half dozen matches contested last night in the straight rail novice billiard tournament developed into close contests. The most interesting was the match in which R. L. Abrams defeated Curtis Elsoffer, 100 to 88, at the Morningside Academy. Matches were played at six billiard rooms. At Doyle's the novice tournament was postponed until next Monday in order not to conflict with the professional pocket billiard championship play which opened there last night.

WASHINGTON TO GIVE NO VERDICT ON U-53

United States Does Not Feel Called Upon to Make Statement Awaited by British.

STUDYING NAVAL REPORTS

Officials Trying to Ascertain if Captain Rose Got Any Information at Newport.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The United States will not feel called upon to make public any statement on the raid of the U-53 or the submarine situation in general, it was learned authoritatively today, as a consequence of the statement in Parliament by Viscount Grey, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, that his Government would not make any official representations to this country until such announcement was made here.

This Government, it was said, would not feel itself more called upon to make a statement to the Allies about German belligerent operations off the American coast than it would to report to Germany the recent visit of the French cruiser Amiral Aube to an American port or other Allied operations on this side of the Atlantic. Information probably would be supplied, however, if requested, it was said.

At present the State Department is making a study of the whole submarine situation, but is not now contemplating the issuance of general regulations such as have been adopted by small European countries which have the question before them.

Complete information is now in the hands of the department as to the sinking of the five ships off the New England coast by the U-53, but no announcement is expected before it has had an opportunity to study the details carefully. Rear Admiral Knight at Newport has sent statements of the ship Captains and of American naval officers on the scene, with their opinions as to the precautions taken for the safety of passengers.

The only phase of the situation where complete detail is lacking is as to what information the submarine Captain may have obtained when in Newport harbor. This is still being investigated, especially in view of Viscount Grey's intimation that it might be made a base of claims against this country. In a similar case, Spain has been pressed for damages by France for information gained by a U-boat at Cartagena which resulted in the loss of French ships immediately after the vessel left port.

It was announced officially that the complete information now at hand contained no evidence that American destroyers had been requested to move so that the U-boat could destroy a ship without accident. The attention given to that report in the debate yesterday in the British House of Lords caused surprise here because officials attached little importance to it one way or the other. It is pointed out, that the destroyers were on hand purely for humanitarian purposes, and that so long as international law was being observed it was only an act of courtesy for the German commander to give notice that he intended to sink the vessel.

RESENTS PATROL PROTEST.

London Standard Contrasts It with Out Attitude on U-53 Raid.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Under the heading "A Contract," The Evening Standard commenting on the American protests against British cruisers hovering off American ports and America's treatment of the German submarine U-53, says that no protest was made by the United States against the activities of the submersible.

"Our only indication of the Washington attitude," the newspaper says, "is that she repudiates the Allies' view that a submarine is not entitled to the privilege of an ordinary warship. It will be interesting to see whether President Wilson finds the German submarine activity in Atlantic waters as annoying as the British 'hovering.'"

A fuller report of the proceedings in the House of Lords last night quotes Earl Grey, former Governor General of Canada, as supplementing his question with the remark that "any such action on the part of American war vessels would involve a new and startling departure from the old traditions of the naval service."

Earl Grey had asked for an assurance that the report that American commanders of torpedo boat destroyers had acceded to the request of the German submarine commander to clear out of the way and give him room to blow up ships was untrue.

The statement by Viscount Grey, the Foreign Secretary, to the House of Lords yesterday regarding the operations of belligerent warships off the coast of the United States created a considerable stir, says the London correspondent of The Liverpool Post.

"It has thrown a most disagreeable light upon the attitude of the American Government in the early stages of the war," the correspondent comments. "Washington is shown in a querulous, captious mood, making demands which it admitted were not legally tenable. The incident referred to is now ancient history and might well be forgotten, but in view of the extraordinary proceedings in connection with the U-53 members are speaking very bitterly of the behavior of the American Government. The stories mentioned by Baron Charles Beresford and Earl Grey seem to have some foundation, and if they are authentic the Foreign Secretary should be pressed to demand an explanation.

"We are awaiting some announcement from the Administration in the United States after they have completed the inquiries which Viscount Grey assumes they are making, but there is no evidence that any such inquiries are in progress, and the general feeling is that the matter will have to be pressed a little further."

EDINBURGH, Oct. 18.—The Daily Scotsman, in an editorial today on Viscount Grey's statement in the House of Lords regarding the operations of a German submarine off the American coast, contends that Germany will not be able to repeat the U-53 adventure without challenging the Washington Government to do its worst. The United States, says the newspaper, is bound to notify Berlin that another U-boat in American waters will mean a rupture.

U-BOAT VICTIMS FREEZE.

Five Norwegians Die as Result of Exposure at Sea.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Crews of certain Norwegian vessels, torpedoed by German submarines, were placed in small boats and endured great suffering before reaching land, says a Bergen dispatch to the Copenhagen Politiken transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph Company. Four men were frozen to death, the report adds, and a Norwegian mate died on his arrival at Alexandrovsk, near Archangel.

THOUGHT THEY SAW U-BOAT

But It Was Newly Painted U. S. Destroyer Sighted Off Rockaway Park.

Promenaders at Rockaway Park enjoying the sunshine yesterday afternoon sighted what they believed to be a German submarine emerging from the ocean ten miles off shore. Aged mariners got out telescopes and other persons ascended to the roofs of buildings to gaze at the stranger with field glasses.

Observers were convinced that they saw a U-boat, as the craft was painted white, and because, a few minutes in a few minutes she had disappeared, the watchers declared that a United States torpedo boat destroyer was cruising over the same place.

The Navy Yard was called by telephone, and others called THE NEW YORK TIMES to tell of the visit of the suspicious craft.

The naval authorities elucidated the mystery quickly. The supposed German submarine proved to have been the destroyer Burrows, coming round to New York fresh from the dockyard at Newport News with a coat of brilliant white paint, which, as she is low in the water, caused the mistake.

W. J. Calhoun's Widow to be War Nurse.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Lucy Calhoun, widow of William J. Calhoun, former Minister to China, applied today for a passport and will leave here for France to do volunteer Red Cross work. Mr. Calhoun died a few weeks ago.

OUR ARMORED CAR MEETS ALL TESTS

Moving Blockhouse Completed and Delivered to Government 27 Days After Ordered.

DESIGNED FOR PATROL WORK

Equipment Consists of One Three-inch Field Gun and Twenty Machine Guns.

The first armored railway car ever built for the United States Army was tested at the Sandy Hook Proving Grounds yesterday. The car, which is of forty tons, mounts on its top one 3-inch field gun, and has ports in its armored sides from which twenty machine guns can be operated, was designed by the Corps of Engineers and was built by the Standard Steel Car Company of Hammond, Ind. The car was completed and delivered in just twenty-seven days after the order was placed, and $1,000,000, it is said, will purchase and equip about twenty trains of ten cars each.

The Board of Engineers, before whom the car underwent its tests at Sandy Hook yesterday, consisted of Colonel Frederic V. Abbot, Colonel Harry Taylor and Colonel Charles H. McKinstry, all of the Corps of Engineers. Captain Thomas M. Robins, who had a leading part in the designing of the car, and Brig. Gen. William M. Black, the Chief of the Corps of Engineers, who came on from Washington to witness the tests, were also present.

The car has been described as a moving block house, built of heavy steel, and intended for patrol work and for action against mobile troop organizations. It is not intended to resist artillery fire, although cars of that type are also said to be a matter of study in the army at present. As a matter of fact, one gondola car which mounts a single 4.7-inch howitzer is now at Sandy Hook waiting to be tested. This car was built by the Ordnance Department.

The car is officially known as a light armored car, and the single 3-inch gun which will be operated from it is mounted in a well on the top and in the centre of the car. The gun-well may also be used as a fighting top for troops using either machine guns or rifles. The twenty machine gun ports in the car are arranged eight to a side and two at each end. In addition, there are six observation ports. The car may be entered through steel doors from either side and from both ends.

The interior of the car is divided into three compartments, the two end ones being those from which the machine guns will be operated, while the centre space will be used as the ammunition room. About twenty men are required to man the car, but in an emergency twelve could keep all of its guns in action. The car weighs about 80,000 pounds, is about 48 feet long, 10 feet wide and is operated on two sets of heavy trucks.

The result of yesterday's tests, which involved the fighting of the car both underway and still, will not be made public at this time. Unofficially, however, officers said last night that there was no doubt that the car stood the tests to the satisfaction of every officer who witnessed them.

DANISH SHIP IS SUNK.

The Rosenvold Destroyed in War Zone—Her Crew Landed.

LONDON, Oct. 18. — The steamer Rosenvold has been sunk, according to a Lloyd's dispatch. The crew was landed.

The only steamer Rosenvold mentioned in the maritime lists is a Danish vessel. She registers 750 tons gross.

CITY'S ANTITOXIN TO ALLIES.

Willing to Sell to All, but Central Powers Can't Get It Through.

Since the beginning of the war, antitoxin, costing thousands of dollars, has gone to the Allies, according to Dr. Haven Emerson, Health Commissioner, who appeared yesterday before the Budget Sub-Committee of the Board of Estimate at the hearing of the Health Department's estimate of its 1917 needs.

"What's the matter with the Central Powers, didn't they get any?" asked Albert E. Hull, assistant to President Dowling of the Board of Aldermen.

"Not very much," replied Commissioner Emerson, "but that was not my fault. The Central Powers simply had no means of getting the anti-toxin to Europe. As a matter of fact, the first order received for anti-toxin came direct to me as Health Commissioner from the Serum Institute in Vienna, and the anti-toxin was forwarded through the local Austrian Consul. Since that time no anti-toxin has been bought by Austria or any of her allies. The largest amount has been sent to the French Government. Great Britain and Italy have also received considerable quantities."

Commissioner Emerson explained that the law allows the city to sell its surplus anti-toxin, but the money must be used to make more anti-toxin, or to prevent or treat infectious diseases.

Dr. Emerson said that during the war the sales by the department amounted to $205,000.

Another interesting revelation by the Commissioner was that the Pasteur Institute in Paris had asked him to send expert bacteriologists to explain to French bacteriologists the method of producing anti-toxin. Dr. Emerson said he had sent one expert who remained in the French capital a month.

The Commissioner's statement was brought out by his request for increases in the salaries of Drs. E. J. Banzhof, Mary C. Schroeder, and A. Zingher, assistant directors of the bacteriological bureau, from $2,100 to 2,280 a year. The sub-committee will recommend the increases.

For 1917 the Commissioner asked $2,844,402 for salaries. The sub-committee will recommend $2,615,528. For 1916 the department received $2,597,001 for salaries.

OFFICIAL SALARY CUT $8,000

Craven Made Service Board Consulting Engineer at $12,000.

The Public Service Commission announced yesterday that it had made a change in its engineering staff by which Alfred Craven, at present Chief Engineer, was appointed Consulting Engineer of the Commission at $12,000 a year, effective Nov. 1.

The commission reduced the salary of the position of Chief Engineer, now $2,000, to $15,000 a year, and designated Daniel L. Turner as Acting Chief Engineer at a salary of $12,000. Mr. Turner has been Deputy Engineer of Subway Construction, and has at times acted as Chief Engineer. His present salary is $8,000.

Mr. Craven was appointed Chief Engineer of the Public Service Commission on Oct. 1, 1911, at a salary of $15,000. On Jan. 1, 1914, when the work on the Dual System had increased to large proportions, the salary was increased to $20,000.

Mr. Turner is a graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, was instructor of mathematics in that institution and later in Harvard. He joined the old Rapid Transit Commission in New York in 1900, and has been continuously in the public service since.

THE PULLMAN COMPANY

Convenience. Through the service of the Pullman Company it is not only possible to secure in advance accommodations in a car never crowded beyond its normal capacity, but it is possible to enjoy, while traveling, comforts and conveniences usually associated only with the most modern hotels in larger cities.

By building its own cars the Pullman Company has been able to test every innovation which might add to the convenience of its passengers. Constant ventilation, comfortable temperature, electric lights, electric fans, modern plumbing and other distinctive features of the Pullman car have been provided in spite of the difficulties arising from the natural limitations of car construction, and the fact that these conveniences must at all times be available while the car is moving from place to place.

A brief comparison of the early Pullman car, with its oil lamps, coal stove and almost entire lack of conveniences, with the modern steel-armored sleeping or parlor car, sanitary, electrically lighted, automatically ventilated, steam-heated and supplied with every comfort and convenience that ingenuity can devise, testifies to the progress which has been made by the Pullman Company in fifty years of continuous service to the traveling public.

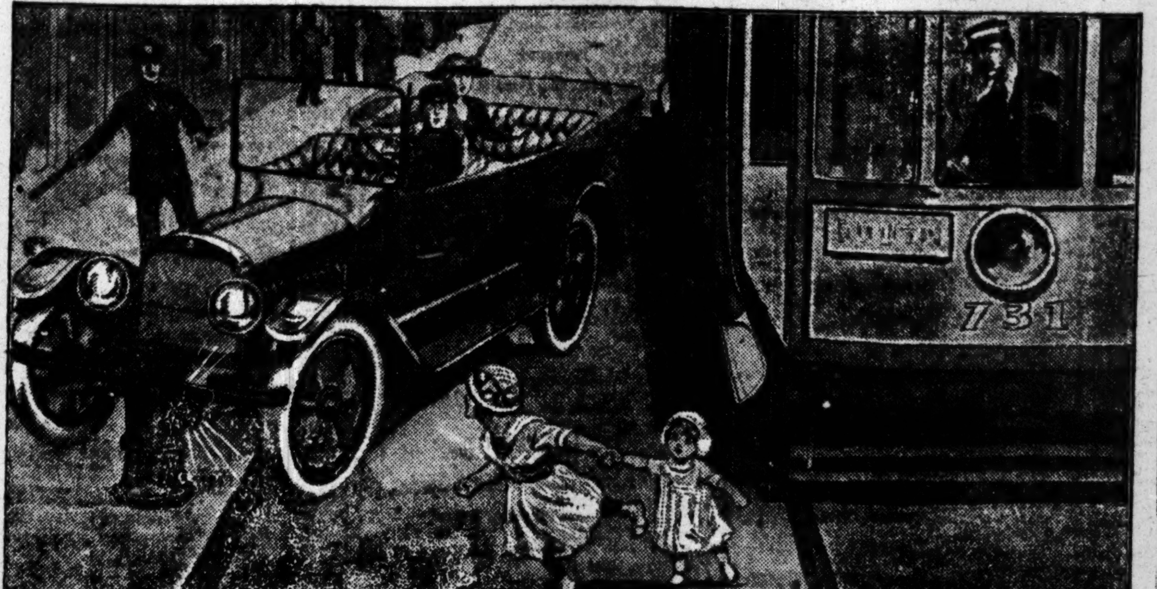
Children On One Side Hydrant On Other—Motorist Chooses Hydrant



"He was coming down the street," said the traffic policeman, "about 15 miles an hour. The kids ran in front of a trolley car, right across his path. It was hit the kids or hit the hydrant and he took the hydrant. I expected to see some wreck—but, what do you think? The car just came to an easy stop against the hydrant with hardly a jar. The children were safe and so was the car. It was a mystery to me until I found that the car was fitted with one of those Hartford Bump Absorbers."

The Hartford Bump Absorber is furnishing agreeable surprises every day. In its efficient double-loop, double-leaf spring construction it not only neutralizes the effects of serious collisions like the one described, but it so effectually absorbs those every-day bumps that the traffic of busy streets are making almost unavoidable, that you scarcely feel them. All that a "bumper" was supposed to do the Hartford Bump Absorber does with hundred per cent efficiency—protects your lamps, mudguards and radiator from damage—and then it does more. For the Hartford Bump Absorber really smothers the shock and bump of the front-end collision.

Just examine one at your dealers today and see why this new protection is completely supplanting the old-style "bumper."

The double-leaf, double-loop principle makes the Hartford Bump Absorber a permanent protection. After a severe jolt it springs back into shape as good as new, where a "mere bumper" would be disfigured and distorted. Its lines of strength add beauty and grace to any car.

Ask your dealer to show you the genuine Hartford Bump Absorber and don't be satisfied with a mere "bumper." The Hartford is quickly attached to any car. Standard finish black enamel with nickel center-clamp, regular size, $10; for heavier cars, $12; for Ford cars, $8. Nickel finish $1 additional. Send for descriptive literature to Edward V. REPUBLICANS START THEIR CITY DRIVE

Longworth, Oscar S. Straus, and Prendergast Flay Democrats at Local Rallies.

'CAMP HUGHES' IS OPENED

Campaign Will Be Pressed Until Saturday Before Election, When Hughes Will Speak Here.

The Republican campaign in this city began in earnest last night. Meetings were held simultaneously in three districts, the speakers at two of them concentrating on the national ticket and those at the third devoting themselves largely to the State campaign. The number of meetings in the city is to be increased to ten tonight, when former Secretary of State Philander C. Knox and other speakers of national prominence will address mass meetings throughout the city.

Congressman Nicholas Longworth, Colonel Roosevelt's son-in-law, and Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, were the heavy guns brought into play last night. Both spoke on the national issues at the McKinley Square Theatre in the Bronx. At the same time Controller William A. Prendergast, at a meeting at 180th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, was lauding Whitman and attacking Seabury, the Democratic candidate for Governor, on the ground that he "has always been a supporter of the most violent movements in our politics, and has expressed opinions on public matters that have been of the most extreme and intemperate character." Other speakers asked for votes for the national and State Republican ticket at "Camp Hughes," 182 East 125th Street, which was opened last night for the rest of the campaign.

Mr. Straus, the Chairman of the Public Service Commission, aroused the enthusiasm of the audience, which threatened to throw out a man who tried to heckle him while he was speaking. Mr. Straus said that the present campaign was the most important that has been held in this country since the civil war, and that after the European war there would be a period of reconstruction during which it would be necessary for this country to be guided wisely and firmly.

"The issues," Mr. Straus said, "are far greater than the personalities in the present campaign. We must have a policy of nationalization, and must not be split into units of varying sympathies after the war."

Congressman Longworth, who remained a Republican when Colonel Roosevelt led the Progressive revolt in 1912, made his audience laugh with a reference to his father-in-law at the night meeting in McKinley Theatre.

"Well, we're all together on the same platform this time," he said when he began his speech. "My family is getting together, it seems. There is no more earnest supporter of Hughes than former President Roosevelt."

Four more years of a Democratic Congress would mean disaster to the republic, Mr. Longworth asserted. The Democratic Administration had blurred the mind of the American citizen until the great question of "Shall America be First?" had been lost sight of, he said.

"The only one thing that stands out in Wilson's Administration as being a good thing for the country at large was the elimination forever of William Jennings Bryan from American politics," Mr. Longworth declared.

The Republican leaders plan to press their New York City campaign with increasing vim every night until the Saturday before election, when Mr. Hughes will end his campaign with a speech at Madison Square Garden. On that night the Republicans expect to have fifty old-fashioned torchlight processions, accompanied by brass bands, to parade over different routes through the city, their routes converging at Madison Square. In the meantime they expect to bring their strongest speakers from all parts of the country to New York City and then to send them throughout the State to try to clinch New York for the Republican candidates.

In advocating the re-election of Governor Whitman at the meeting on Washington Heights, Mr. Prendergast confined the greater part of his speech to his attack on Seabury. He quoted a letter written by Mr. Seabury to The New York Evening Post during the campaign of 1913, in which Mr. Seabury denounced Charles F. Murphy, the Democratic boss, and said:

> I challenge you, or any other person, to point to a single act or utterance of mine during my whole life which shows, or tends to show, that I have been in political agreement with Murphy, or that I have approved his leadership. Before going on the Supreme Court bench I actually opposed that leadership in every way in my power. My present opinion of that leadership is the same as it has always been. Under the State leadership of Murphy the Democratic Party has been degraded and disgraced, and I should like to see that leadership brought to an end.

"Mr. Seabury has not been without relations with Mr. Murphy in the past," Controller Prendergast declared after reading the letter. "The World, on Jan. 7, 1904, in announcing a big welcome to William Jennings Bryan on his return from Europe, says that 'Charles F. Murphy, who was consulted about the plans for the reception, gave his sanction and several prominent Tammany men will take part. Judge Samuel Seabury, who is the Chairman of the Committee, consulted with Mr. Murphy before consenting to serve.' In 1906 Mr. Seabury accepted a nomination from Mr. Murphy for the Supreme Court, forced, it is true, by Mr. Hearst. A genuinely righteous soul, however, who did not approve of Mr. Murphy's policies, would have refused to be the beneficiary of a political favor jimmied from a boss of whom he did not approve."

The Controller recalled that Mr. Seabury was President of the Manhattan Single Tax Club as far back as 1899 and active in the movement, which the speaker called one of the candidate's radical activities, and recalled that in announcing his candidacy for Governor Mr. Seabury said that he would recommend measures for the simplification and amendment of the present tax laws.

"Will he, as Governor, favor the single tax theory in complete, or tabloid form?" the Controller asked.

Frank Moss, James P. Sheffield, and Martin Ansorge were the speakers at the opening of "Camp Huges" in East 125th Street. Charles O. Maas presided. The speakers for the most part declared that President Wilson had not done anything important in the proper way.

At tonight's Republican meetings it is planned that each speaker shall address several meetings. Besides Former Secretary Knox and Mr. Longworth, Oscar S. Straus, Lieut. Gov. Edward Schoeneck, Congressman William S. Bennet, Judge William J. Cunningham of the Court of Claims, and Borough President Marks will be among the speakers. The meetings and speakers follow:

Star Casino, Lexington Avenue and 107th Street—Philander C. Knox, Oscar S. Straus, Nicholas Longworth, Isaac Siegel, Joseph Levinson.

Camp Hughes, 182-184 East 125th Street—William S. Bennet, Jacob Kemple, Alexander Holtzoff.

Union Settlement, 104th Street, near Second Avenue—Edward Schoeneck, Nicholas Longworth, Isaac Siegel, Morris A. Epstein, Jacob Kemple.

Lexington Hall, 116th Street, near Lexington Avenue—Oscar S. Straus, Henry H. Curran, Edward Schoeneck, Nicholas Longworth, Isaac Siegel.

Commonwealth Hall, 2,005 Amsterdam Avenue, near 159th Street—Nicholas Longworth, William S. Bennet, Oscar S. Straus, J. A. Jesse, Rufus P. Johnston, Gilbert G. Brockway.

SETTLE BLACK TOM INSURANCE CLAIMS

Companies to Pay 82½ to 90 Per Cent. of the Policy Values on Lost Merchandise.

Insurance brokers said yesterday that indications were that a proposed settlement of fire insurance claims resulting from the Black Tom Island explosion on a basis of from 82½ to 90 per cent. of the amount of the policies involved would be accepted by the policy holders, although a few might sue for the full insurance.

The question raised by the eighty-eight companies which had issued policies on about $7,000,000 worth of merchandise in the warehouses on Black Tom Island was one of liability. The policies did not cover damage by explosion. Also, this clause in the policies presented difficulties:

"If a building or any part thereof falls, except as the result of fire, all insurance by this policy on such building or its contents shall immediately cease."

As all of the warehouses on Black Tom Island fell entirely or in part from the force of explosions before fire damaged their contents, under a strict construction of this clause the companies would not be liable for the fire damage.

Immediately after the Black Tom casualty, the companies appointed a committee, with Wallace Reid as Chairman and Charles L. Chase as Vice Chairman. The committee on Oct. 7 reported that while liability under the fallen building clause was an open question, the companies should not take technical advantage of it. The committee divided the insured property into three classes, recommending that on Class A the companies pay 90 per cent. of sound cash values existing before the casualty, less any salvage; on Class B 87½ per cent., and on Class C 82½ per cent. In classifying the merchandise the committee took into consideration its location and susceptibility to explosion damage.

The proposed settlement also provided that policy holders accepting the offer should share in any recovery from those responsible for the explosion.

Objections were made to the offer on the ground that a great deal of the insured merchandise, such as paper, steel, sugar, wool, books, and tea, was not susceptible to great explosion damage, and that destruction of it must, therefore, have been due to fire. On such merchandise, the policy holders maintain, the companies should have deducted only a sufficient percentage to provide for the removal of débris.

There is some discontent among the insurance companies because the Continental Insurance Company and its allied companies, the Fidelity-Phenix and the American Eagle, are settling with their policy holders on a basis of 100 per cent. In disregard of the committee's report. Other companies accused the Continental of bolting the agreement. The Continental replied that it had never gone into the agreement.

Road to Fight Ordinance.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 18.—The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey will apply for an injunction in the Federal Court on Monday to prevent Jersey City from enforcing an ordinance prohibiting the storage of high explosives in Jersey City. The railroad says its storage plant is outside of the city limits and the ordinance is violative of the interstate commerce law. The ordinance is the second adopted after the explosion at Black Tom Island on July 30.

RISE IN PLUMBING PRICES.

A Further One Is Now Predicted by Leading Manufacturers.

Prices of plumbing and heating supplies, already at the highest levels in the history of the trade, are scheduled to go still higher, members of the Eastern Supply Association were told yesterday at the annual meeting of the organization held at the Hotel Astor. President L. O. Koven, in his annual address, devoted attention to the unsettled condition of the market at this time, and said it was difficult for manufacturers to know where they stood with the constantly increasing cost of labor and materials. The trend of his address was that prices were likely to reflect an upward tendency. This was the view taken also by J. F. Conran of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, who made the prediction that pig iron would be selling at $25 a ton next year, as against the normal price of between $12 and $15.

Other members of the association, called on for an expression of the outlook pricewise, agreed with the President's prediction. It was the general consensus that prices both for labor and raw materials were bound to go up, making it necessary to hand on the increased cost of manufacture to the ultimate consumers of products. A. M. Maddock of the Thomas Maddock & Sons Company, pottery makers, of Trenton, N. J., said there was no question that higher prices would have to prevail in the pottery manufacturing business.

The association, at the suggestion of the Board of Directors, adopted a resolution requesting manufacturers who make different weights of pipes and fittings to revise their processes in such a way as to make the pipes and fittings of a standard size regardless of weights. Credit matters were discussed and reports of the Secretary and of the Treasurer showed the association to be in excellent condition.

J. J. Cosgrove, Director of the Public Comfort Station Bureau, maintained by the Eastern and Central Supply Associations, made a report. He advocated a wide distribution of such public conveniences in both cities and large towns, but frowned on extravagant outlays on individual stations. The Eastern Supply Association pledged anew its support, both moral and financial, to the bureau's propaganda.

Henry R. Towne of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company explained a plan for preventing and settling railroad disputes. The association, while not giving its approval directly to Mr. Towne's plan, went on record as approving any effective method looking to a peaceful settlement of controversies between labor and capital.

The election of officers resulted in the selection of the following: President, Guilford R. Adams of the Samuel Sloan Company, Rochester; Vice President, Joseph F. Evans of the Wyoming Valley Supply Company, Wilkes-Barre, Penn.; Treasurer, Martin Behrer of Behrer & Co., New York, and Secretary, Frank S. Manley, New York. About 100 manufacturers and dealers attended the meeting.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday..3¼@3¾ per cent. for the best names

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Hard to Stop Buyers.

One of the downtown commission houses recently placed some of its cotton goods at value, having sold all that was desired for this year's delivery, hoping thereby to discourage buyers from operating without actually alienating them. Buyers wanted stuff so badly, though, that the plan did not work, so the concern is now seriously thinking of putting a price on the goods again. If this is done, it is said, the new figure will be guaranteed to give buyers qualms.

Predict Prices for Cotton.

With cotton, for certain positions, only a cent away from the twenty-cent limit set by the "wise ones" several weeks ago, predictions are now being made in the local cotton goods market that the staple will be held at 25 cents a pound before a great while. In some quarters this belief is tempered by the suggestion that such a price really would not be warranted, and that if it were reached the pressure needed to put it there would react and break the market. One of the most extreme views heard was that of a man who predicts fifty-cent cotton within the next six months, with mills forced to shut down in many cases for want of it.

Mackinaws Have Good Sale.

The lines of mackinaws that have been offered to buyers are meeting with an active call. Sellers attribute much of the success attained by these fabrics to the vogue for sport clothes. The orders taken cover practically the entire range of cloths offered, although there is said to be more business being placed on the lower grades than ordinarily. In some quarters the active demand on mackinaws is taken as an indication that the heavyweight business generally will yield good results.

Cotton Going Up Too Fast.

A selling agent for a Southern cotton yarn mill yesterday withdrew prices on his product until the cotton market becomes more settled. "What else can a man do," he asked, "when cotton jumps $3 a bale in a single hour, as it did yesterday? It is easy enough to advance prices on yarns when cotton becomes stable, because the price of the latter plays such a very large part in the cost of the former. But to sell anything now, with cotton imitating a sky rocket, is to invite a tidy loss. So we will play safe for a while."

Trade in Embroidered Dresses.

Shortly after the war began a start was made to get for domestic manufacturers the trade in hand-embroidered children's dresses that was formerly enjoyed by the French. During the last year the home industry has attained a wonderful growth. According to the executive of one concern engaged in this line, the making of such goods now covers five States. Prices have been kept down to the smallest margins so that even in event of the war ending the gain made by domestic trade may be conserved. The French goods must pay a duty of 60 per cent.

In Drugs and Chemicals.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that a large production of phenol in this country has resulted in the conversion of a considerable part of it into salicylic and benzoic acids, and that price declines in several derivatives have been a natural consequence. Benzoic acid is also lower than it has been in the recent past, but prices of botanical drugs, essential and other oils, and seeds are higher generally. Mercury in flasks is stronger under the influence of better buying and only moderate spot stocks. Opium is not in active demand, but prices are steady. Advances ranging from $2 to $5 a barrel, according to brand, have been made on Newfoundland codliver oil as a result of recent losses of this commodity at sea. Castile soap is firmer here as a result of higher prices in Italy.

Dutiable Silk Imports Increase.

According to figures compiled by the Silk Association of America, dutiable silk imports at this port in the five weeks ended Sept. 29 totaled $3,473,655, against $2,849,399 in the corresponding period of a year ago. The respective values of fabrics woven in the piece are given as $1,274,266 and $1,019,748. The principal losses are shown by receipts of velvet or plush ribbons, silk ribbons, and artificial silk yarns. Large increases are recorded in imports of spun silk yarns, laces, embroideries, and trimmings of silk, and ready made clothing. Smaller gains are shown by silk handkerchiefs and mufflers of various kinds and by velvets, chenilles, or other pile fabrics. In the free raw materials there was a sharp increase in imports of waste silk, while raw silk imports fell off by about $485,000.

Predict Stocks and Jabots.

With the coming of snappier weather and with the general use of furs by women not very far away, manufacturers of neckwear here are touting stock and jabot combinations as "the" merchandise of the near future. Already there are said to be numerous signs that predictions along this line are coming true. Other merchandise of this nature that is expected in some quarters to develop strongly in the next few weeks are vestees and guimpes of silk crêpe and net. Low, rolling collars continue in favor. White broadcloth, both in separate collars and in sets, is very good, not only used by itself, but in combination with satin. Some of the most popular broadcloth collars are embroidered with gaily-colored wool yarns. Georgette crêpe remains a favored material, both in separate collars and in collar and cuff sets.

Active Call for Children's Suits.

The salesmen now on the road after Spring business on children's wash suits are turning in very satisfactory bills to the manufacturers. One feature of the trade is that a heavy business is being placed on goods for immediate needs along with future orders. The trend of the demand is in the direction of better grades of merchandise. The advance that has been made on lines for next Spring does not amount to much. It is reported to be not in excess of 10 per cent., and this increase does not cover all grades. There has not been much change in the styles, buyers appearing to be more anxious over getting goods than over the designs they are offered. Two-piece suits constitute the bulk of the business in the boys' end. Straight-lined high-waisted effects have been put out for girls.

Gray Goods Inquiry Large.

There was little sign of a let-up in the demand for gray goods in this market yesterday, in spite of the continued rise in cotton and the added firmness of several constructions of cloth. Sales of 39-inch 56-44s were made at 6¼ cents for deliveries during the first quarter of 1917, while later some of the mills were asking 6⅜ cents. Business was also done on 39-inch 68-72s at 8½ cents, with some sellers demanding an eighth more. In at least one case 7¾ cents was asked for 38½-inch 64-60s, with business done on 64-56s in that width at 7⅜ cents. Heavy goods continued in demand, especially bag sheetings, at the highest prices in many years. Closing printcloth figures were very irregular, but these were average of the market:

39-inch,	80-80s	10c	38½-inch,	64-60s	7½c
39-inch,	72-76s	9¼c	38½-inch,	64-56s	7⅜c
39-inch,	68-72s	*8⅝c	38½-inch,	60-52s	6⅝c
39-inch,	56-44s	6¼c	38½-inch,	60-48s	6⅜c
38½-inch,	64-64s	7⅝c	27-inch,	64-60s	5c

WOOL DEMAND STILL STRONG

Sales in Boston During the Week Totaled 7,000,000 Pounds.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"The last week did not show as much activity as the previous one, but the demand is still strong on fine wools. More interest is being shown on the medium grades. Sales amounted to 7,000,000 pounds. Mill men are becoming more confident and some of the leading interests of the trade bought during the week.

"An enormous distribution on heavy weight fabrics is predicted by some sellers in the woolen and worsted goods market. The sale of Mackinaws during the week has aroused some sellers who did not expect the heavy weight season to be a particularly good one. Orders have been placed on certain styles of mixtures, serges, and cheviots. During the week a number of lines of light weight fancy worsted suitings have been advanced 5 cents a yard and similar advances are predicted.

"Increasing strength is shown in the cotton goods market. There has been a great demand for some of the heavy sheeting fabrics and the sellers who are in a position to accept orders have been able to obtain attractive prices. Export buyers are more willing to pay the prices than domestic purchasers. The demand for colored goods for export has been particularly large. The situation in the fine and fancy goods market is stronger. The market is stronger than for years."

BUSINESS NOTES.

The ready-to-wear departments of the Siegel-Cooper Company of Chicago are now being represented in this city by Oscar Abel, resident buyer, 364 Fifth Avenue. Other lines are still being bought at the local office of the Siegel-Cooper Company, 13 East Twenty-second Street, which is in charge of T. J. McCoffrey.

Theodore Lussier, one of the Directors and stockholders of W. A. Bacon & Co., Boston, has severed his connection with that firm. He will make new business connections around Jan. 1.

The firm of Berg, Garsson & Co., dealers in woolens, dress goods, and silks, 36 Union Square, has been dissolved. It has been succeeded by Joseph Berg & Co., who will continue the business at the same address. The new firm, which is made up of Joseph Berg and S. L. Lipkin, will collect the accounts and assume the liabilities of the old concern.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

A Number of Decisions in Reappraisement Proceedings.

Importations of silk hair nets were before Judge Waite of the Board of General Appraisers yesterday, sitting as a reappraisement official. Some of the goods were invoiced in Mexican currency, and entered at the New York Custom House either in gold or United States currency values. The appraising officers made returns relative to the dutiable values unsatisfactory to the importers who appealed for a review. Judge Waite's action had the effect of advancing the values above the invoiced prices. The hair nets were shipped to this country by the Shantung Silk and Lace Company, Chefoo; A. Boerter, Tsinanfoo, and the Chefoo Lace and Hair Company, Chefoo.

Boston importers appealed for a reappraisement in a case involving filter paper shipped by W. & R. Balston, London. The reappraisement made by Judge Fischer, while accepting the entered values as correct, added 20 per cent. to the dutiable values for a reason not disclosed in the decision. The goods were entered at 24, 38, and 56 shillings 6 pence, respectively, per 1,000 circles, according to the size of the circles.

A question of discounts was involved in a reappraisement made by Judge McClelland relating to decorated earthenware shipped to Baltimore by H. Aynsley & Co. of Longton, England. The merchandise was described as dark blue willow, invoiced at discounts of 52½, 5 and 5, and 1¼ per cent. The General Appraiser advanced the values of the paper for dutiable purposes by making the discounts 47½ and 5 and 5 per cent.

Another reappraisement made by Judge McClelland developed the fact that manufacturing costs in the artificial flower industry in France were rising. It appeared that Doflippe Frères of Ollioules shipped red and purple immortelles to New York importers which the latter entered as having a market value of 55 francs per 100 bunches. The local officials raised this rate, the General Appraiser agreeing that duty should be paid on the basis of 60 francs for the quantity named above.

Bleached white linens and bleached suitings also of linen figured in a decision made by Judge Cooper. The General Appraiser approved advances ranging from one-half to a full penny per yard on most of the merchandise which was entered at Springfield, Mass. The foreign shippers were Blow & McKeag, Broadway Damask Company, and Robert Stocks & Co., Belfast.

Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Brockton, regular quarterly, $2, payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 20.

Railroad Bonds

Present Investment Influences

Recently published statistics concerning the liquidation of railroad securities held abroad indicate the following factors which tend to l ssen further liquidation:

1—The rapidly decreasing volume of American railroad securities remaining in the hands of European investors.

2—Mobilization by European Governments of American securities as collateral for credits in this country.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Early Prices Prove the Best of the Session—Another Large Total Done.

There was a noticeable lack of buoyancy in yesterday's stock market, and yet prices of most issues advanced and the total dealings again passed the million mark. The situation that was predicted some days ago by experienced traders seems to have come about. That is to say, the market has grown uncertain with the approach of the election, and fluctuations are made very easily as the tide of sentiment swings now one way, now the other. It was the impression in brokerage circles that a number of pools had come into the market again and that dealings during the day were very largely professional.

The opening was made at higher levels, and the absence of any seriously unfavorable news supplied all the impetus needed for an early morning burst of activity. It was noticed, however, that the marked advances were again limited to those relatively inactive stocks which are peculiarly sensitive to an increase in trading. Inspiration and Kennecott Copper, usually supplying a considerable portion of the transactions, were remarkably quiet, and the rails alternately gained and lost. No such hesitation was shown by the new group of industrials which has recently come into public notice. The paper issues continued on the upward movement started some days ago and, with the two cracker companies and Industrial Alcohol, furnished the big gains of the day.

The scarcity of paper, particularly newsprint, has been so well advertised that it is easy to understand the market's interest in paper companies, but it is apparent that the outside public is following, rather than leading, the upward spurt in these stocks. Yesterday American Writing Paper preferred scored an advance of 2⅛ points; International Paper common moved up 4⅜ and the preferred 4⅞; Union Bag & Paper common gained 3⅛ and the preferred 4⅜. Loose-Wiles enjoyed advances of 3½ in the junior issue and 3⅛ in the preferred, while National Biscuit moved up 2 points. Outside of these specialties the most striking gain was made by United States Industrial Alcohol, always an erratic performer, which jumped 13⅛ points to 140⅛.

Developments on other exchanges were more significant yesterday than the fluctuations on the Stock Exchange. A sudden realization of the world's plight with a short cotton crop and a small carry-over from last year started a public speculation in the staple, which added to the difficulties of the buyers for manufacturers and foreign consumers. July cotton crossed 19 cents, selling at one time at 19.17 with an advance of more than 100 points over Tuesday's lowest quotation. The ginning report, showing an unusually large proportion of cotton ginned, for the season and an unfavorable weather report added to the confusion. Cotton has not sold as high as it did yesterday since the civil war.

Wheat emulated cotton, selling higher than it has in any unfettered market since 1888. It is true that the Leiter corner in 1898 artificially induced a higher price, but yesterday's figure was the result of a comprehension of the relation between supply and demand, and the promise of relief present in the Leiter market is lacking. Call money was firmer, loans being made generally at 3 per cent. The decrease in reserves is reported to have induced some of the smaller banks to call loans to strengthen their cash position.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

There were reactions toward the close on the Consolidated Exchange which gave an appearance of irregularity, although the majority of the net changes for the day represented gains. Many further advances were recorded early in the session. Profit-taking was on a large scale, but it appeared to be generally well absorbed. The railroad issues were early taken up and moved higher, and there was also a special bulge in the "war stocks."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Call Money Firm.

Call money was firm yesterday at 3 per cent., and while several of the big local banks were heavy lenders on the Stock Exchange, it was learned that a considerable amount of loans was called. The calls for the most part, according to reports in banking circles, were made in response to the request of country banks which had lately put out demand loans through correspondents here. The Street was not able to define the movement, which, in view of renewed gold imports and the absence of strain on the credit situation, was contrary to what might be expected at this time. The activity of trading in stocks, with prices moving upward, indicated that speculative operations were not affected by evidence of a firmer credit market.

Coppers Exceptionally Quiet.

The turnover in Inspiration, Kennecott, and Utah stocks was substantially less than 10,000 shares in case of each, showing an exceptional lack of trading interest for a large day's dealings in the remainder of the stock list. Anaconda and American Smelting and Refining were in fair demand, but altogether the Street paid small attention to the copper group. In quarters where the coppers are watched closely the day's developments were taken to indicate a slackening of public buying. Commission house traders participated to a greater extent in the paper shares than in any other group.

The Bearish Professionals.

The floor traders have been bearish ever since they acted as a brake on the speculative machine when it plunged down hill on the Monday morning after the U-53 sunk the merchant ships off Nantucket. On Monday last many of them hurried under cover after going short of the market the week before, but the experiences of that session, according to other brokers, did not cure them of working on the destructive side of values. A number of leading professionals express the opinion that a pre-election reaction is bound to occur. When stocks go up they lose none of their confidence, and this in spite of the fact that few really encouraging signs for them have appeared as yet.

Living to Cost Still More.

The great war is having its inevitable effect in making higher prices for practically everything that is mined, grown, or manufactured. The scarcity of labor, aggravated by the return of thousands of foreigners at a time when they were needed more than ever before to take care of the increased industrial capacity necessitated by the receipt of big European orders, is back of a large part of the increase, for the workers have been enabled to demand and get higher wages in nearly all lines, and the opportunities held out by the shops have drawn laborers away from the farms. The sensational advance in cotton and wheat yesterday must be reflected soon in still higher prices for flour and clothing. People with fixed incomes have good cause to pray for an early termination of the war and a return to saner living.

A Western View.

The present labor scarcity will become more marked, and high labor costs will continue to maintain prices of commodities on a high level, according to S. W. Straus, who returned yesterday from a two weeks' trip through the Middle West. "The greatest difficulty is being experienced by farmers in the West in obtaining sufficient help to gather the crops," he said. "Many manufacturers are finding that with the increased wages some laborers are content to work only five days a week, getting their previous scale with less work. If business activity continues to increase it is hard to see whence the necessary men are coming from. With the end of the war I look for emigration restrictions which will keep foreign labor away for years to come. With wages and commodities high, the purchasing power of the dollar reduced, and the abundance of money in circulation people seem to be conducting themselves into false standards of living. If there comes a check to our prosperity millions of Americans are going to have a rude awakening."

Argentine Borrowing.

Cables from Buenos Aires yesterday reported that the Argentine Republic had begun negotiations with the Guaranty Trust Company for a loan to meet its several short term issues at maturity, and perhaps to supply additional funds. It was learned that no discussions had as yet taken place between the bankers and the Government representatives, but the matter had been receiving consideration by several banks and banking houses which had been identified with Argentine financing, so that it should be easy to reach an understanding when the South American authorities were ready to talk terms. Argentina has borrowed approximately $60,000,000 in this market through short term loans, which begin to mature next January. Whether it will be decided to refund these with a single big long-term bond issue, or through a series of new short-term loans has not been decided, but if the investment demand continues good, it is more than likely that efforts will be made to consolidate the foreign debt into a single large bond issue.

Other Loans.

The Russian loan is still in abeyance. The project has not been dropped, but it lost its impetus some weeks ago and negotiations will have to be taken up from the beginning again. A better sustained strength in rubles would go far toward making Russian financing here more popular. The next British loan is in embryo. With a great quantity of American and other neutral collateral mobilized and the success of the recent two-year bond offering to point the way no difficulty is expected in floating a new issue of $300,000,000 of British bonds whenever the London authorities authorize J. P. Morgan & Co. to proceed with the arrangements.

LONDON MARKET IS DULL.

Rumors of Another Allied Loan Being Arranged Here.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The stock market was dull and irregular today. Gilt-edged shares drooped from lack of support, and Greek bonds and Roumanian oil stock were weak, while Brazilian tractions and rubber and mining shares were firmer. American securities were uninteresting and closed dull.

The sales of Exchequer bonds and Treasury bills last week amounted to $160,000,000. Reports that another allied loan is being arranged in America caused a little surprise here in view of the large purchases of bonds and bills being made.

Money was in decreased supply, and discount rates were steady.

Trading Inactive on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Oct. 8.—Trading was inactive on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 61 francs 40 centimes for cash; exchange on London, 27 francs 81½ centimes; 5 per cent. loan, 90 francs.

TIDE WATER OIL COMPANY

Capital Stock, all one class (par $100)—$29,000,000

No Mortgage or funded debt

NATURE OF BUSINESS — The Tide Water Oil Co. is one of the oldest and largest oil companies in this country. The company carries on every branch of the oil business, having separate, well-organized departments for producing, transporting, refining and marketing oil. The company's output, consisting of over 350 different products, includes practically every product manufactured by any oil refinery. It is one of the largest producers of gasolene in the country.

PROPERTY — The company owns and controls large producing properties in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, Ohio and Oklahoma. Its refinery, which has a capacity of about 11,000 barrels of crude oil a day, is located on New York Harbor, placing it in a position to refine oils produced in all other countries and shipped by water routes. Its pipe lines, consisting of 828 miles of trunk lines, extend from the refinery at Bayonne, N. J., through the oil regions of Pennsylvania, to Stoy, Ill., where connection is made with common carrier pipe lines which tap the rich Cushing and other Oklahoma fields. In addition, the company owns 1,929 miles of branch pipe lines and pumping stations, which tap the West Virginia and Ohio fields.

The Tide Water Oil Co. is not a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. The latter company, however, a good many years ago, purchased a minority stock interest in the Tide Water Oil Co. which it still holds.

EARNINGS — The Tide Water Oil Co.'s record of earnings during the thirty-eight years of its existence is very impressive and compares favorably with that of any of the Standard Oil Companies. The earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, 1915, were the largest in the history of the Company. During the first six months of the current year, earnings were larger than for the entire twelve months of 1915. Extensions and improvements recently made, and the present unusual condition of the oil industry, indicate a continuance of these large earnings.

DIVIDENDS — The company has an uninterrupted record of 33 years, with payments ranging from 8% to as high as 140% on the outstanding capitalizations during these years. For the past 17 years dividends equivalent to at least 8% on the capital stock have been paid annually. There is scarcely an industrial or railroad corporation in this country that has a dividend record comparable to that of the Tide Water Oil Co.

RE-INVESTED EARNINGS — In addition to the dividends paid out and the maintenance of the property at the highest point of efficiency, the company has put back from earnings into the property since organization about $22,300,000, of which $12,811,500 was re-invested in the last ten years.

FIRST PUBLIC OFFERING — Our purchase and offering of this stock afford the investing public its first opportunity to subscribe to any substantial amount of it. The company has a large list of stockholders, which has remained practically unchanged for the last fifteen years. For this reason, the company's affairs have not been given very much publicity, and therefore there has been practically no open market for this stock up to this time.

PRICE — The undersigned own and offer approximately 22,000 shares of this stock at $185 a share, subject to prior sale and change in price.

COMPANIES ACQUIRED

In exchange for $8,650,000 of its own capital stock the Corporation has acquired and owns outright the entire outstanding capital stocks (except directors' qualifying shares, and interests as noted) of the following companies:

Scottish-Mexican Oil Company, Ltd.
owning oil rights on approximately 46 square miles of petroliferous territory in the oil fields tributary to Tampico, Mexico, with contracts on hand for the delivery of 7,200,000 barrels of oil.

Tampico Navigation Company owning land terminals and operating a substantial fleet of vessels, carrying on a business of transporting oil from the wells to the seaboard.

Fuel Oil Distribution Corporation operating one tank vessel from Tampico to Gulf Ports.

Tank-Ship Building Corporation
with shipyards situated at Newburgh, N. Y., on the Hudson River, with yards planned for the purpose of building cargo oil-carrying steamers of 65,000 barrels capacity each, and oil tank barges of standardized design, of which a number have already been built, and with contracts on hand for building tank steamers of above-mentioned capacity.

Tal-Vez Oil Company
A 60% interest through ownership of all the shares except Directors' of the Scottish-Mexican Oil Company. The Tal-Vez Company has a production of about 10,000 barrels of oil a day.

Producers' Terminal Corporation
(a 50% interest) owning valuable loading terminals at the Port of Tampico on which there is at present in course of construction storage capacity of 220,000 barrels with a loading capacity calculated at 4,000 barrels an hour.

The conversion has been carried out in its entirety in the case of the Scottish-Mexican Oil Company, the Producers' Terminal Corporation and the Fuel Oil Distribution Corporation, and in the case of the Tampico Navigation Company and the Tank-Ship Building Corporation to the extent of considerably over 50%. Sufficient stock has been placed in the hands of trustees to acquire the balance.

PRESENT SITUATION OF THE COMPANY

The Southern Oil & Transport Corporation is now in control of

1. A large present production of oil—10,000 bbls. a day—which can readily be increased.
2. An enormous reserve territory—46 square miles—all in the petroliferous zone, for future supplies.
3. River transport from the wells to the sea.
4. Port and river terminals, tank farms and wharfage facilities.
5. Ocean transport.
6. Shipyards planned for building tank ships of 65,000 bbls. capacity and barges of standardized design.

The present issue of $3,000,000 has been underwritten and this provides ample funds to enable the Company to push its plans into effect rapidly.

EARNINGS

The Southern Oil & Transport Corporation plans to increase its production to 25,000 bbls. of oil a day and market it. The estimated cost of oil delivered at Atlantic ports by its own ships is 49.07 cents per bbl. Estimated annual profits, basing sales of the fuel oil at $1 per bbl. at Atlantic ports and relatively low prices for refined products, are:

3,650,000 bbls. fuel oil 50.95 cents per bbl. profit....	$1,858,945
3,650,000 bbls. refined products 1.10 per bbl. profit...	4,015,000
Local sales	180,000
	$6,053,945

This would equal 51.90 per cent. on the $11,650,000 of issued capital. To allow for contingencies, however, the management estimates profits when the present plans are fully completed equal to 40 per cent.

These profits are not based on the present highly favorable prices for fuel oil—$2.10 per bbl.—but at $1 per bbl., a price that may be termed basic, as at that level it will displace coal at $3 a ton—and this means a stable market practically without limit. Messrs. Johnson & Huntly state that they believe this company will have no difficulty in maintaining a production of 25,000 bbls. of oil a day.

Books to receive applications for shares at $8 per share will be opened MONDAY, OCTOBER 16th, 1916, at the offices of the undersigned and will be closed without notice.

The right is reserved to reject any or all applications or to allot less than the amount applied for.

UNITED ALLOY STEEL CORPORATION

BANKERS TRUST COMPANY
Registrar

After an examination of the properties and business of the United Steel Company of Canton, Ohio, and report thereon by Julian Kennedy, appraisal by the American Appraisal Company and audit by Messrs. Arthur Young & Company and extended negotiation, an agreement was made to purchase said property and business as a going concern at a cash price of $16,000,000. It is proposed to vest this purchase in a New York corporation to be named United Alloy Steel Corporation to have an authorized capital of 525,000 shares without par value and to issue 500,000 of these shares for said property and business plus $4,000,000 cash to be paid into the new company, the remaining 25,000 shares of authorized capital to remain in the Treasury for the present.

We summarize, as follows, from a letter dated October 5, 1916, from Mr. Harry R. Jones, Vice-President, Treasurer and General Manager of the old company, and who is to be President of the new company:

(1) The new company will have a total ingot capacity of over 600,000 tons a year and a rolling capacity of 780,000 tons a year of finished and semi-finished steel products. The company's plants are modern and well equipped. Enlargements now almost completed were undertaken in order that the company might be able to satisfy the increasing demand for its products.

(2) Gross and net earnings have shown a steady and persistent growth. Gross earnings increased 500 per cent. from 1911 to 1916, and net earnings increased 542 per cent. Estimated net earnings for the year 1916 based on production equal to 40 per cent. of the capacity of the enlarged plants which will be in operation in 1917, are equal to about $7 per share on 500,000 shares.

(3) The business of the United Steel Company has not been subject to the wide fluctuations which have marked the general steel industry; its product having consisted largely of high grade and special alloy steels for which there is an increasing demand. Copies of said letter may be obtained from the undersigned.

Based upon said cash purchase price actually to be paid for the entire property and assets of the old company as a going concern and including said additional cash working capital to be provided, the assets of the new company will be equivalent to approximately $40 per share of which $14 per share or approximately $7,000,000 will be represented by net working capital.

All statements are believed to be accurate, having been obtained from official sources, but they are not guaranteed.

All legal matters pertaining to this issue are being passed upon by Messrs. Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, and Messrs. Wing & Russell of New York City, Counsel for the bankers, and by Messrs. Lynch, Day & Fimple, of Canton, Ohio, Counsel for the old company.

ACTING AS SYNDICATE MANAGERS WE HAVE AGREED TO PURCHASE 200,000 SHARES OF THE ABOVE STOCK WHEN, AS AND IF ISSUED AND HAVING SOLD AT $47 PER SHARE ALL OF THE STOCK SO ACQUIRED BY US THIS ADVERTISEMENT APPEARS AS A MATTER OF RECORD ONLY.

STOCKHOLDERS ASK RECOUNT OF VOTE

Candidate for American Locomotive Director Charges Unfair Treatment.

INSPECTORS CALLED RUDE

E. E. Baldwin Says Proxies Were Rejected Without a Satisfactory Explanation.

Stockholders of the American Locomotive Company will have to appear at the offices in 30 Church Street a third time if they want to learn first-hand the result of the annual meeting, which was adjourned on Tuesday until yesterday. The session yesterday was put over to 4 o'clock this afternoon as a result of a squabble between the different factions with proxies over the manner in which the votes were canvassed after the recess was taken on Tuesday.

Ernest E. Baldwin, a candidate for Director on the opposition ticket, notified the stockholders when the meeting was called to order that he and his supporters were not at all satisfied with the way the votes had been counted. He said that if the management were permitted to vote its proxies without a fresh tabulation he would be inclined to appeal to the courts to have the decision passed upon.

"The three inspectors of the votes," he asserted, "are employes of the company, and I am informed by W. F. Middleton, who was appointed as a 'watcher' at the polls in our behalf, that he was refused information about the number of shares voted for our Directors, and that a number of proxies credited to us were rejected without a satisfactory explanation."

Mr. Baldwin said there were other elements in the treatment of Mr. Middleton by the inspectors which moved him to insist that the management's proxies be again canvassed, and on the suggestion of a stockholder Mr. Middleton told his story. He is the son of Merle Middleton, former President of the Lima Locomotive Company, who is a candidate for Director on the opposition ticket.

Mr. Middleton affirmed what Mr. Baldwin had said, and added that the inspectors had been "very rude," using abusive language when he attempted to learn how the vote stood.

"There was one proxy from Hornblower & Weeks for several thousand shares to be voted for our ticket," he stated, "which the inspectors threw out, saying that the management had a prior proxy from the same source. Another proxy, from F. B. Keech & Co., for 11,500 shares was also withheld from our count, together with a number representing smaller lots of stock."

The assembled shareholders were more amused than disgruntled at the recounting of Mr. Middleton's experiences, but they decided that the proxies had better be tabulated again. The inspectors, with the watcher in better favor than before, started about 8 o'clock last night to count for the second time proxies for about 330,000 shares of stock. It was expected that fourteen hours would be consumed in the task.

RUMANIA NOW BUYING STEEL

Shipments Not Likely to be Heavy as Ordnance Is Sought.

A new factor in the steel market is Rumania, whose representatives are in this country for the purpose of buying war supplies. According to reports from steel circles, this nation's needs are largely in the ordnance line, so that the expected tonnage to be contracted for is not expected to be so heavy as if shellmaking material was the object of the quest.

Commenting on the sales of steel for munions the Iron Age says:

> The appearance of the Allies in this market inquiring for shell steel for the third quarter of 1917 is the latest development in the pre-emption of next year's output. Deliveries on existing contracts extend only to July 1. These latest inquiries confirm steel manufacturers in the opinion that as long as the war lasts export demand for war and other needs will take practically all the steel the United States can supply. Shell makers who have contracts with the United States Government are also sounding the market. Three such inquiries are for 3,750, 6,000, and 3,500 tons. All told, the Government munitions program represents 300,000 tons.
> With all the buying for 1917 of which market reports have said so much, there is no condition of steel famine, present or prospective; nor is there the excited buying which was seen late in 1915 and early this year. Mills have taken the measure of the home demand and are supplying it without making inordinate advances in price.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> Shipments of steel are again on a tremendous scale this month as operating conditions are more favorable. New demand from all quarters keeps the market full of large inquiries, but certain classes of trade are conspicuously active as to fresh buying. These include the continuation of heavy car orders by the railroads, and the awards of the week with the inquiries still open, show that October will be the largest month of the present year in this line of trade.

UNION BAG & PAPER COMPANY

LISTED ON NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

A COMPANY WHICH IS BENEFITING

Read below the opinions of the press referring to the famine in paper:

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

On account of the limited supply of white paper—the demand in the United States seriously exceeding the supply—The Globe will be forced, at least temporarily, to limit the amount of advertising which it can print.

CUT SUNDAY PAPERS, U. S. BOARD ADVISES

Federal Trade Commission Would Avert Suspension of Small Dailies.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Reduction in the size of Sunday newspapers as a means of conserving the news print paper supply of the country and possibly preventing the suspension of smaller newspapers was recommended in a letter sent to-day by the Federal Trade Commission to all the publishers of large Sunday newspapers in the United States. The letter says:

"In connection with its investigation of news print prices the commission has given serious consideration to possible means of preventing the suspension of papers because of the increasing scarcity and advancing prices.

DISCUSS NEWS PRINT PRICE.

Canadian Conferees Fail to Agree—Government May Act.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Oct. 17.—The meeting between representatives of the newspaper publishers and paper manufacturers today over the contract price of news print for next year did not result in a definite understanding.

The manufacturers have intimated that they cannot supply paper at less than 3 cents a pound. * * *

UNION BAG & PAPER

Boston—Union Bag & Paper is sharing in the prosperity which now surrounds the entire paper industry. It is understood that for the past two months the company has been earning net of something better than $300,000 per month. There is every prospect that these profits will continue during the balance of this year and may work to $400,000 per month with the turn of the year.

This company is in process of reorganization. Some $27,000,000 of stock is being converted into $10,000,000 stock of a new company. The old company had $11,000,000 preferred and $16,000,000 common, the latter practically valueless and the most diluted kind of water.

Under the reorganization the present $11,000,000 preferred gets $8,000,000 new stock and the old common but $2,000,000.

On the basis of $300,000 per month the company is earning at the rate of over $30 per share on its present $11,000,000 preferred, or about 35% on the $10,000,000 stock of the new company. This is after allowing for 5% interest on the $3,300,000 first mortgage bonds, due in 1930. Dividends at the rate of 5% to 7% are said to be in sight when reorganization is completed.

THREATEN RACE WAR IN BAYONNE STRIKE

English-Speaking Workers Declare Readiness to Face Thousands of Foreigners.

POLICE PLEDGED TO GIVE AID

Oil Works May Open Today—Conciliators Express Hope Company Refuses Negotiations.

Three hundred employes of the Standard Oil Company in Bayonne, N. J., roused by the assurance of Commissioner of Public Safety Henry Wilson that the police would provide protection and that the plant would be opened to them if they could muster enough men to operate it, planned last night to array the English-speaking workmen, who almost to a man want to return to work, against the foreign-born laborers who started the strike that has tied up practically every plant on Constable Hook for more than a week, and, marching like an army, to force their way this morning through the strike zone and into the idle plant.

Though they realized that they would be hundreds against thousands, though they knew that earlier in the day 2,000 foreign-born strikers had met in Mydosh's Hall, had heard the Committee of Ten report that the Standard Oil Company would not consider raising wages, and had voted unanimously to continue the strike, the English-speaking workmen weer enthusiastic last night. They predicted that the strike would end today just as the strike of last year ended when ranks of English-speaking workers marched to the plant between rows of policemen and when foreign laborers, seeing their strike lost, fell into line behind.

Commissioner Wilson urged them to canvass the city and gather to their ranks every man who had been forced unwillingly from work when the strike caused the closing of many plants, and the men who had assembled in front of Police Headquarters, leaderless and without a plan of action, scattered to obey Mr. Wilson's suggestion, asserting that they would gather such a throng as no group of strikers would dare molest. There were many who did not believe that so few men could prevail against so many, but they were not among the 300 who had received Mr. Wilson's words with cheers, and who had yelled enthusiastically, "Let's go down to the plant tonight."

Another hope of a settlement was held out by the Federal mediators, John A. Moffitt and James A. Smyth, who arrived just as the strikers' meeting was breaking up. They conferred with George B. Hennessey, General Superintendent of the Standard Oil plant, for three hours, and spent two hours more with Commissioner Wilson. Then Mr. Moffitt announced that he felt "optimistic." He said Mr. Hennessey had shown himself in a conciliatory mood, and the mediators had arranged a meeting in Police Headquarters at 10 o'clock today among themselves, Commissioner Wilson, and the Committee of Ten. Last night, however, word was received from the committee that only two members would appear at this conference, and that they would bring word that the committee regarded Police Headquarters as unneutral ground, where it could not meet in conference, though it would confer with Mr. Wilson and the mediators in any part of Bayonne other than Police Headquarters or the Standard Oil offices. It was said that the meeting would be held somewhere, and the mediators had great hope that they could bring about a settlement.

It was rumored yesterday that the Committee of Ten meant to call on John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in this city, but this was denied by the strikers; and, in the Standard Oil Building here, it was said that Mr. Rockefeller was not connected with the Standard Oil Company and it was not known what his attitude might be toward receiving the committee. F. W. Weller, a Vice President, made it clear that the company desired no more negotiations, replying to a telegram from the strikers asking a conference with this message:

"In reply to your telegram would state that our officials met committee of men in question and discussed matter with them fully. We feel that nothing can be gained by a further conference and refer the committee to Supt. Hennessey, who has full authority."

There was no disorder yesterday and only one arrest was made. Constant Jarowsewicz, who said he was a Polish priest from New York, was found haranguing a crowd at Broadway and Twenty-second Street, begging that the strikers think better of a plot to destroy the Standard Oil plant and Police Headquarters and to kill the police, which he said he had discovered. Jarowsewicz had many notes in Polish which he said explained the details of this plot, but when a Polish interpreter said the notes read like the ravings of one demented Jarowsewicz was released and advised to return to New York.

STOP REPORTING PARALYSIS

Daily Figures So Small They Will Not Be Published Hereafter.

So small has become the daily toll of infantile paralysis in New York, Dr. Haven Emerson, Health Commissioner, announced yesterday, that daily case reports to the press would be discontinued. Yesterday's report showed seven new cases and only two deaths, as compared with seven new cases and eleven deaths in the previous twenty-four hours.

THE NEW YORK TIMES received $12.50 yesterday from the Clara de Hirsch Home, 225 East Sixty-third Street, contributed by the little girls there toward a fund for purchasing automobiles to convey after-cure patients to orthopedic hospitals. THE NEW YORK TIMES also received the following contributions to the fund for buying braces: Arthur Edwin Gutman, $8; Betty Crosby and Francis Allison, $2.50; Marjorie L. Calhoun, $10; Lion, Esther, and Bernard, $1.

Nine new cases of paralysis were reported to the New Jersey State Health Department yesterday, one in each of the following places: Hasbrouck Heights, Helmetta, Middletown Township, Chatham, Hillsborough Township, Oldmans Township, Montclair Township, Piscataway Township, and Upper Penns Neck Township.

Mary Ann Lewis, eight-year daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence of Greenwich, Conn., died of paralysis at the isolation hospital last night. She had attended school and became ill on Saturday, but not until Monday did the bacteriologist of the Health Department diagnose the case.

FIND 2 MORE FIRE VICTIMS.

Bodies in Oakes Manufacturing Co. Wreckage Unrecognizable.

Two more bodies were found yesterday in the ruins of the office building of the Oakes Manufacturing Company, Blackwell Street and the East River, Long Island City, from which seven bodies had been taken Tuesday after the big plant had burned. They were those of Harry C. Cook, Treasurer of the company, who lived at 772 Quincy Street, Brooklyn, and of Frederick Christman, the head bookkeeper, whose home was at 1,212 Nebraska Avenue, Brooklyn Manor.

All the victims had been burned so badly that identification was only possible through bits of jewelry and clothing. Two bodies could not be identified. Coroner's Physician F. B. Hart tried to establish the identity of these by measuring the charred members, and comparing this data with descriptions of the only two girl members of the office staff not accounted for among the seven bodies identified. Finally, however, he had to notify the families of Emily Klenzil of 646 Seventh Avenue, and Cameille Benes of 524 Ninth Avenue, both of Astoria, that he could not distinguish one from the other.

Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, District Attorney Denis O'Leary of Queens, and Coroner Vogel announced that investigations would be made, but apparently no individual was to blame for the tragedy.

ONLY MONEY CAN AID POLES.

Food for War Sufferers Not Admitted for Distribution.

The Polish Victims' Relief Fund yesterday sent out a letter concerning the effort of President Wilson to aid their relief work and their manner at present of getting money to Poles suffering from the war. The letter read in part:

> To the Polish Victims' Relief Fund the failure of President Wilson's magnanimous undertaking was not news. We have known for sometime that no agreement on the subject of Polish relief had been reached between the belligerents—that the Allies insisted that food and other supplies should be distributed under American supervision among the Polish population only—and that the Central Powers, on the other hand, insisted upon the right to requisition food supplies in sufficient amount to provide for the armies of occupation.
> Embargo, as it exists now and has existed since the beginning of hostilities, concerns only food and raw materials. It does not concern money, which is allowed to reach Poland without hinderance on the part of the nations at war.
> Food can still be obtained in all parts of Poland under Austrian, German and Russian occupation—although in small quantities and at extremely high prices. The Poles are given the choice between starving to death or paying the prices established by the military authorities. In order to enable them to acquire the bare necessities of life the Polish Victims' Relief Fund will continue to send money to Poland.
> All monies collected by us are deposited in the National City Bank and cabled in larger amounts to the headquarters of our organization in Vevey, Switzerland, of which Sienkiewicz and I. J. Paderewski are the Presidents. From Switzerland the money is sent into Poland in cash by special messengers who, on account of the geographical and political situation of Switzerland, can easily gain access to Russian as well as to German and Austrian Polish territories. By these special messengers relief money is handed to local representatives, mostly ecclesiastical members of the Catholic and Protestant churches, who, in their turn, distribute it between the most needy among the Polish sufferers without distinction of race, creed or political opinion.

The New York headquarters of the Fund are in the Aeolian Building at 33 West Forty-second Street.

GIVES THE RECORDS OF ASSEMBLYMEN

Citizens Union Issues Its Report on Candidates Thought Worthy of Election.

27 DISTRICTS PASSED ON

Voter's Directory to be Issued Soon Will Give Information Concerning 250 City Candidates.

The Citizens Union made public yesterday its recommendations concerning city candidates for the Assembly, which are based upon the reports of a campaign committee composed of representatives from all the boroughs. Candidates selected are those, regardless of party, who are deemed best qualified to represent their districts and the city.

Candidates have been indorsed in twenty-seven of the sixty-three Assembly districts of the city. The committee asserted that it found a dearth of qualified candidates in many communities, particularly in lower Manhattan, while on the other hand two well-qualified candidates were found in a single Harlem district. In a few instances where a candidate of experience is unqualifiedly indorsed, the qualifications of an opposing candidate are also recognized. In districts where the result seems doubtful the Union will make personal appeals to voters for the election of the candidates it has indorsed. The list of Assembly indorsements follows:

NEW YORK COUNTY.

District.

6—Nathan D. Perlman, (Rep.-Prog.-Ind. L.) Has served creditably for two years. He is the best qualified candidate in this district.

10—Abner Greenberg, (Dem.) A young attorney of integrity and ability. He has independent tendencies and should represent his district well.

15—Abram Ellenbogen, (Rep.-Prog.) Has represented his district in an able and effective manner, having successfully handled many important measures. He should be returned.

16—John P. Gallagher, (Rep.-Prog.) This district has been inadequately represented for the past ten years. Mr. Gallagher is a young mechanic of integrity and sound views of legislative subjects.

17—No candidate is endorsed in this district. Vincent Gilroy, (Dem.-Ind. L.) served at the last session. He displayed some ability, introduced important Constitutional amendments and legislation of merit, but made an unsatisfactory record of votes. His opponent, Martin Bourke, (Rep.,) was in the Assembly in 1915, but made only a fair record.

19—No candidate is indorsed in this district. Perry M. Armstrong, (Dem.-Prog.) served at the last session. He displayed some ability and introduced legislation of merit, but his record of votes was not satisfactory. His opponent, Henri Schwob, (Rep.-Ind. L.,) is a young attorney of ability and training who possesses a commendable grasp of legislative subjects. He has had no legislative experience.

21—Harold C. Mitchell, (Rep.-Prog.-Ind. L.) Mr. Mitchell's independent and intelligent work in the 1915 Assembly makes him the preferable candidate this year.

22—F. George Gerdes, (Rep.) Mr. Gerdes is a printer; he is intelligent and holds sound views on legislative subjects.

23—Gilbert B. Brockway, (Rep.) An attorney and instructor in the public schools. He possesses a broad knowledge of governmental affairs and is the best qualified candidate in his district.

25—Robert McC. Marsh, (Rep.-Prog.-Ind. L.) While the qualification of John G. Milburn, Jr., (Dem.) for legislative office are recognized, the very unusual service rendered by Assemblyman Marsh in his first year in the Legislature clearly entitles him to re-election.

27—Schuyler M. Meyer, (Rep.-Prog.) Was a conspicuous member of the 1914 Assembly and made an excellent record. He has a thorough understanding of legislative subjects.

29—Alfred D. Bell, (Rep.-Prog.-Ind. L.) While the qualifications of Silas Blake Axtell (Dem.) for legislative office are recognized, the good record made by Assemblyman Bell in his first year in the Legislature entitles him to re-election.

30—Nicholas Meyer, (Rep.-Prog.) Foreman in a mercantile establishment. He is a man of integrity, holds sound views on legislative subjects, and is the best qualified candidate in his district.

31—Jacob Goldstein, (Dem.-Ind. L.;) Max Shlivek, (Rep.) Mr. Goldstein is the present Assemblyman. Both candidates have creditable legislative records. The election of either will assure good representation for the district.

BRONX COUNTY.

32—William S. Evans, (Dem.-Ind. L.) Has served at two sessions and is entitled to re-election on the creditable record he has made.

34—M. Maldwin Fertig, (Dem.-Prog.-Ind. L.) Has represented his district at two sessions of the Legislature. He has displayed ability and effectiveness, and his accomplishments should commend him to the voters for re-election.

KINGS COUNTY.

2—Patrick H. Larney, (Dem.-Prog.-Ind. L.) Has been a lifelong resident of his district. He is a man of high integrity and standing in his community and should represent it creditably.

4—Peter A. McArdle, (Dem.) Has served during the last two years with credit to himself and the district and deserves reelection.

5—Fred G. Milligan, Jr., (Prog.) Has represented his district at two sessions in a conscientious and intelligent manner. On his record he deserves re-election.

9—Elbridge F. Hills, (Rep.-Prog.) Mr. Hills's candidacy gives this district an opportunity to send to the Assembly a man possessing ability and a sound comprehension of legislative subjects.

10—Fred M. Ahern, (Rep.-Prog.-Ind. L.) In his fifth year in the Legislature, Assemblyman Ahern's voting record on city bills was among the best. His record makes him the preferable candidate.

11—George R. Brennan, (Rep.-Prog.) Is now in his third term. His ability and effectiveness make him rank high among the New York City members and should assure his re-election.

12—William T. Simpson, (Rep.-Prog.) During his three years' work at Albany has become a valuable and effective member. He has no opponent approaching him in qualifications.

16—Charles Joseph, (Dem.-Ind. L.) His ability and valuable experience he gained during the last session make him the preferable candidate.

17—Frederick A. Wells, (Rep.-Prog.) In his second term, Assemblyman Wells has rendered service of increased value and is entitled to re-election.

18—Wilfred E. Youker, (Rep.) His ability and the training he has had in legislative work should make him a very valuable member of the Legislature.

20—August C. Flamman, (Rep.-Prog.) For three years Assemblyman Flamman has been an attentive and capable legislator. He is clearly the best qualified candidate in his district this year.

23—Marshall Snyder, (Rep.-Prog.-Ind. L.) Well qualified by training and experience to adequately represent his district.

QUEENS COUNTY.

4—George E. Polhemus, (Dem.-Ind. L.) In his two years of service Assemblyman Polhemus has made a good record and is entitled to re-election. At the same time the qualifications of Frank E. Hopkins, (Rep.-Prog.) are recognized in the belief that, if elected, he would make a creditable representative.

The Union announced that there has also been gathered a large amount of general information concerning approximately 250 candidates for the various local judicial, city, county and other legislative offices to be filled at the coming election, and that this information is being assembled in a voters' directory for the use of the public.

$8,500 TO GIRL SKATER.

Girl Jostled Off the Sidewalk Gets Big Damages.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Platzek yesterday awarded to Mildred Muller, 11 years old, who was jostled off the sidewalk while roller skating by Boris Friedman, janitor of an apartment house at 192 Bradhurst Avenue, and who suffered permanent injuries to her spine, a verdict for $7,500. The jury also gave $1,000 to the girl's mother for the loss of her services.

The suits were brought against Francis Hillenbrand, owner of the property, who contended that the child fell while roller coasting and was injured in that way. She was unable to walk for a year after the accident.

COTTON RISE SHARP ON GILES REPORT

Market Opens Strong at Advance of 17 to 56 Points, with Active Trading.

JULY TOUCHES 19 CENTS

Amount of Cotton Ginned Prior to Oct. 10 Estimated at 70 Per Cent., Against 52 Last Year.

Another sensational advance took place in cotton yesterday and prices were carried with a rush up to another set of new high levels. The opening was strong at an advance of 19 to 56 points, with trading active and excited. The advance in the first few minutes of trading carried May up to within 7 points of the 19c level. There was some realizing, which caused a slight reaction, but another outburst of buying established a maximum gain of 60 points over Tuesday's closing. Realizing for profits took place on an enormous scale and this was sufficient to bring about a reaction of 25 to 28 points from the high figures of the day. The close represented a net gain of 34 to 42 points.

The incentive for the sharp rise at the opening was furnished chiefly by the Giles report, estimating the amount of cotton ginned prior to October 10 at 70 per cent., compared with 52 per cent. at the same time last year. Ginning was reported to be well up with picking, and the amount of cotton already picked was placed at 75 per cent., compared with 60 per cent. last year. There was also some apprehension over the Gulf disturbance, as the weather map showed a strong low barometer at the mouth of the Mississippi, with a minimum reading of 29.5. Rains were reported in Georgia, Alabama, Texas and a few points in Oklahoma.

Liverpool cabled that the Neill circular of October 17 estimated the crop, including linters, at 13,150,000, and consumption, subject to revision on unexpected political developments, was placed at 14,750,000 bales.

Fluctuations throughout the day were rather violent and irregular. New Orleans opened with shorts demoralized. The May option in that market opened at 19.07, against 18.21 at the closing on Tuesday, sold off to 18.47, and rallied to 18.65.

Some idea of the strength of the demand for spot cotton is gained from the following advices from Memphis, which come from a well informed source:

"Memphis is doing an unusually large business in spots, with sales for the week of 20,500 bales, compared with only 11,000 a year ago, and 6,000 in 1914. They are the largest since 1908 and 1909 for the period, the former year showing sales of 25,150 bales and the latter 25,100. The price in 1908 was 9 cents and that in 1909 was 13⅜c. The present quotation here is 17 cents for middling upland, which gives some idea of the difference in value as between the several seasons."

Market closed barely steady.

ASKS FEDERAL TRADE AID.

Head of Implement and Vehicle Association Reports Bad Conditions.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 18.—President A. J. Brosseau of Albion, Mich., reported adverse trade conditions and asked manufacturers to look to the Federal Trade Commission for their solution in his address today at the opening of the annual convention of the National Implement and Vehicle Association.

He added that similar conferences arranged by manufacturers in other industries had resulted most profitably and the commission had also shown an altogether friendly attitude in helping to correct the perplexing problems confronted. Mr. Brosseau urged the standardization of various types of materials so that investments for equipment might be reduced, smaller surplus stock, and concentration on marketing, terms and collections in order partially to relieve the tense situation.

"It may be a far cry," Mr. Brosseau said, "but if legislation which gives us postal savings banks, Federal reserve banks, land banks, eight-hour laws, a tariff commission, and the Clayton bill really designed to benefit the people as a whole why not pass a law that will permit manufacturers to co-operate under Government control to improve the conditions under which we are now obliged to do business in the domestic trade. It can be done if the proper effort is made."

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The bullish excitement which started in the wheat market on Tuesday continued during most of yesterday's session, and prices sold at the highest point so far reached since the war in Europe began, and also at the highest figures experienced since 1898. The December position in Chicago sold at 1.68, while May sold at 1.68⅜, which compared with 1.67, the highest point reached during 1915. At the extreme advance values were 9⅜ to 11⅝c above the low point of Monday. The sharp upturn in values checked the export business, however, and toward the close of the day the market experienced a partial reaction under profit taking, final prices being net unchanged to 2⅝c higher. The Price Current report on acreage was considered very favorable for a large new Winter wheat area, and this caused some pressure in July. In the local cash market No. 1 durum was quoted at 1.96; No. 2 hard, 1.82; No. 1, North Duluth, 2.00; No. 1, North Manitoba, 1.92½, all freight on board., New York.

CORN.

Exporters were again after corn, and the market advanced to new high records, closing with only a slight reaction and with net gains of 1@1⅜c. Limited freight room again had a tendency to check business, but sales were estimated at about 400,000 bushels. Receipts at primary points were again moderate, but it was thought probable that the high prices may loosen up country holdings to some extent. In the local market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $1.04½, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was steadier, in sympathy with the advance in wheat and corn and on export sales of about 300,000 bushels, but there was an absence of enthusiasm on the buying side, owing to the very large supplies. The local cash market was firmer. Standard quoted at 54 to 54½c; No. 2 white, 50 to 55c; No. 3 white, 53 to 53½c; No. 4 white, 52½ to 53c; fancy clipped white, 56½ to 58½c; ordinary clipped white, 55½ to 56½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was firm, and in some cases prices made new high records. The strength in corn had an apparent influence on values, and while hog receipts were fairly liberal, prices at the yards were higher. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 28,000; estimated for Thursday, 25,000; Kansas City received 11,000, adn Omaha 4,200.

Further new high records were established in the cottonseed oil market yesterday, and, while there was a partial reaction under profit taking, final quotations were 7 to 21 points net higher. Total sales were 52,500 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market was somewhat irregular yesterday. There was some further scattered buying on the more bullish crop advices of Tuesday, but the demand failed to broaden and the market weakened during the afternoon under a renewal of scattered trade selling or liquidation. The close showed a net loss of 7 to 9 points, and sales were reported of 40,500 bags. DROPPED FULL YEAR IN HIS ROFRANO TALE

Montimagno Amends Direct Evidence as Sick Juror Halts Murder Trial.

DENIES GUNMEN'S STORIES

State's Chief Witness Admits Crimes of Violence Before He Killed Gaimari.

The illness of a juror halted Martin W. Littleton's cross-examination of Gaetano Montimagno, slayer of Michael Gaimari, yesterday, and caused the court to order a recess until this morning in the trial of Michael A. Rofrano, alleged promoter of the crime. The interruption came after Montimagno had been compelled to amend in several important particulars the story he had told under direct examination.

John E. Heartt of 556 West 141st Street, 65 years old, was the juror who became ill. He caught cold on Tuesday while being taken to his hotel in an automobile and nearly collapsed as he and the other members of the jury were returning to court yesterday after the noon recess. He was hurried into an ante-room, and Dr. Perry Lichenstein, the Tombs physician, and later Dr. Andrew J. Love, the juror's personal physician, were called to attend him. They found Mr. Heartt's temperature at 102, and that one of his lungs was badly congested.

Notwithstanding his condition, Mr. Heartt offered to sit in the jury box the remainder of the afternoon, but Justice Bartow S. Weeks would not permit it. Mr. Littleton was also opposed to going on with the case until Mr. Heartt was in condition to listen to the testimony without discomfort.

Had Stabbed Two in Brooklyn.

Should Mr. Heartt be unable to sit this morning, recess may be taken until Monday when, if he is still indisposed, counsel will ask that another juror be chosen and that the testimony already introduced be read to the jury.

The cross-examination of Montimagno took him back over his testimony of Tuesday, when he told the jury that Rofrano, posing as a sort of King who could override the Mayor, the Governor and other powers of the city and State, had compelled him, under threat of death, to kill Michael Gaimari. He insisted, as he had done on Tuesday that his ignorance of the language and the customs of the country had combined to make him Rofrano's dupe, but Mr. Littleton caused him to admit that he had stabbed at least two men in Brooklyn before he killed Gaimari.

One of his admissions was that he had, in his direct examination, dropped a whole year out of his narrative, and he gave evidences of discomfort as Mr. Littleton continued to ask him question after question about this lapse of memory.

Montimagno contradicted important testimony of other gunmen called to testify by the District Attorney. Two of these gunmen, Joseph La Salle and James Serafino, had testified that they had understood that Montimagno had made two attempts on Gaimari's life, and that he had stabbed Gaimari on Dec. 18, 1913, with a cheese knife that had been "poisoned" in garlic juice to insure Gaimari's death.

Serafino had added that he saw Montimagno running hatless from the scene of the stabbing in Monroe Street, and La Salle had testified that he had been present at the home of Rocco Carnevale, one of the leaders of the gunmen, when Montimagno, then a guest there, admitted that he had stabbed Gaimari and had expressed regret that the wound had not proved fatal.

"The next time, I'll empty the whole gun into him," La Salle said that Montimagno had said.

This testimony, although contributed by gunmen who were assisting in the prosecution of Rofrano, did not agree with the slayer's contention that he had never known Gaimari until he was pointed out by John Brundini a few weeks before the murder, and Montimagno contradicted them on the stand.

Dodges Dates and Numbers.

As Mr. Littleton continued to press Montimagno with questions, he seemed convinced that the lawyer was trying to lead him into a trap. He studied each question carefully, and refused to commit himself on dates or numbers. Although forced to contradict himself when questioned about his movements before he killed Gaimari, he could not be shaken from his declaration that Rofrano had ordered him to commit the crime, and that he and "the boss" had had frequent conferences over the proposed murder.

Mr. Littleton attempted to show that Montimagno had killed a man in Brooklyn before stabbing two others and shooting Gaimari, but this the witness denied. He admitted that he had lied to Rofrano when he told him that he would bring "men from Brooklyn" to Rofrano's club house during the Mayoralty election of 1913, and also that he had had no scruples about stealing before turning his hand to murder.

Montimagno's cross examination will continue for another day, if not longer. He will be followed on the stand by Louis Mira, another gunman, who will testify, it is said, that he saw Montimagno meet Rofrano under the Manhattan approach to Brooklyn Bridge on the morning Gaimari was shot. On the other hand, Salvatore Curica, or "Chucks," who, it was said, threatened to shoot Montimagno if he did not kill Gaimari, is expected to testify for the defense, as is Rocco Carnevale, who is said to have taken a prominent part in all of the murder conferences.

BEAT AND ROB POLICEMAN.

Thugs Attack Man Who Won Honor by Capturing Three Burglars.

Three men set upon Patrolman Florence J. Sulliman in Dyckman Street, near Sherman Avenue, yesterday morning, beat him unconscious, and robbed him of $25 and his revolver.

Sullivan was going home to 340 Prescott Avenue when he was attacked. He was found unconscious fifteen minutes after the assault by George Provost, a milk wagon driver, who took him to the home of his brother at 152 Dyckman Street. A physician said Sullivan was suffering from concussion of the brain.

Sullivan was appointed to the force on Feb. 21, 1913, and has a good record. On May 9, 1914, he arrested three burglars single-handed and won the commendation of the Police Commissioner.

DIVORCE AND $33,000 FOR MRS. HARKNESS

Son of Late Standard Oil Director Must Pay That Alimony Yearly.

WELL KNOWN AS SPORTSMAN

President of Sheepshead Bay Motor Speedway and Driver of Racing Automobiles and Aeroplanes.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Harry S. Harkness, son of the late L. V. Harkness, a Director of the Standard Oil Company, was divorced here today. Supreme Court Justice J. Addison Young signed a final decree in favor of Mrs. Marie M. Harkness, allowing alimony of $33,000 a year, payable $2,750 monthly.

Justice Young ordered the papers sealed, so none of the details of Mrs. Harkness's charges became public. The decree was signed on the recommendation of Charles H. Young, former President of the Republican Club in New York City, who acted as referee. Paul V. Hoyler of 27 Pine Street, New York, represented Mrs. Harkness and Cornelius J. Sullivan of 61 Broadway appeared for Harkness.

News of the divorce was a surprise to many persons who know Harkness and his former wife. The hearings before Mr. Young were conducted secretly and few knew that Mrs. Harkness had started the proceedings, although friends of the couple were aware, two years ago, that differences between them existed.

Neither lawyer would discuss the case yesterday, but it was said several women were mentioned by Mrs. Harkness's lawyer, although no co-respondent was mentioned by name.

Mr. Harkness and Miss Marie Moss Marbeck were married in November, 1906, in the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street. The Rev. Dr. David James Burrell performed the ceremony, and there were only two witnesses, each of whom was sworn to secrecy, so as little was known about Harkness's wedding as has now become public concerning his divorce.

Miss Marbeck gave her address at the time as the Hotel Navarre, but after the wedding inquiry at the hotel failed to disclose that she had made her home there. The marriage became known after Harkness and his bride had spent two weeks of their honeymoon on the ranch of Dr. Harry Macomber, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Harkness, near Palcias, Cal., where the elder Harkness joined his son and daughter-in-law.

Mr. Harkness could not be found yesterday, and at the office of the L. V. Harkness estate, 353 Fifth Avenue, it was said that he was yachting near Bermuda. Mr. Harkness has an international reputation as a sportsman. He is President of the Sheepshead Bay Motor Speedway and is a driver of racing automobiles and aeroplanes.
